CZAR'S HOPE IN PEACE CONGRESS.

Russia's Ruler Believes with America, England, and France He Can Control Conference.

PLANS FOR ARBITRATION.

Delegates to The Hague May Form a Great Tribunal to Settle Disputes Between Nations.

SESSIONS TO BEGIN TODAY.

[SPECIAL CABLE BY W. T. STEAD TO THE NEW YORK JOURNAL AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

The Hague, May 17.—While I cannot repeat directly anything the Czar said to me during our interview a few days ago at St. Petersburg it is permissible to tell America that he is in excellent spirits and full of hope for results from the peace conference.

There is no trace in St. Petersburg of the anti-American feeling which found expression in the German Delegate Stengel's pamphlet against peace.

So far from regarding war with the United States as the inevitable destiny of Europe, the Czar expressed the utmost confidence that the American delegates will stand by those of Russia, France, and England in securing the establishment of some definite, practical system of international arbitration for all disputes turning on questions of law, on interpretation of treaties, or on investigation of questions of fact.

The Czar also believes the Americans will favor recognition of the principle of arbitration in all questions involving national honor and interest.

For a Great Tribunal.

The tribunal which it is hoped will issue from the conference for the settlement of questions "du droit" will probably be found on the same principles as those which have worked so successfully in the Postal, Telegraph, and International Railway bureaus at Berne, Switzerland.

That is to say, a small body of jurists and practical men, chosen from one or more of the minor powers, would be authorized to deal with such questions in the name of and with the authority of the powers composing this conference.

The question of mediation to be proposed is simply an extension of that clause of the treaty of Paris whereby the powers agreed, in the case of the Turkish question, to invoke the mediation of other powers before fighting.

By the establishment of this principle the powers would voluntarily refer serious disputes to arbitration and the mediation of such powers as they might choose.

Each Power Represented.

It will be proposed that each power name one of its highest court Judges to act as permanent arbitrator, who shall always be at the service of the other powers when invited, thus effacing politics and other influences in the selection of members of the court of arbitration.

While I cannot repeat what the Czar said to me about America, I may say he likes the United States and admires the principle of united sovereign States conducting their affairs peacefully without standing armies.

United States of Europe.

While the "United States of Europe" is still far in the future, yet the Czar's ideas are all tending toward that.

He is in earnest about checking armaments and he hopes for great beneficial results from the conference.

It is Germany who is the stumbling block on the limitation of armaments. France is thoroughly with Russia.

Russia, America, England, and France will be able, I think, to rule the conference.

De Staal May Not Preside.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK JOURNAL AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

The Hague, May 17.—Baron de Staal may be unable to preside over the peace conference, owing to a severe attack of influenza. M. Beaufort will probably take his place.

The German delegates arrived today. They intimate Germany will not be so warlike and intractable as is generally stated. All the delegates, however, are bound by strict instructions to secrecy, and Emperor William's representatives at The Hague are no exception.

Forming a Moral Alliance.

A tentative moral alliance between Russia, England, France, and the United States is in process of formation to control the conference in opposition to the aggressive sentiments of other powers, led by Germany.

Baron de Staal rose from his sick bed today to call on Sir Julian Pauncefote to arrange the details. The combination is the result of similar instructions from the respective home governments to support the principles of arbitration and cordial feeling between these countries. France is simply following Russia's lead.

American Delegates Organize.

The United States delegates met this afternoon and organized, with Ambassador White as chairman. The conference assembles tomorrow at 2 o'clock. The session will be purely formal. Business will not begin until Tuesday, when Baron de Staal, as President, will outline the work in an important speech.

May Adjourn a Year.

The debates on methods of arbitration will be long, and it is not improbable that the conference, after a full debate, may adjourn for a year, to let the home governments figure over the various plans proposed, and then will reassemble to agree on a definite form.

It is generally agreed that disarmament is impossible, and the limitation of armaments is also improbable. Arbitration only is hopeful of result, but the compulsory reference of disputes to arbitration is out of the question. The news from the Transvaal caused much excitement in Holland, which warmly supports Kruger. The incident is an unpleasant inauguration of the peace conference.

The Czar's birthday, tomorrow, will be celebrated with religious ceremonies. Many of the delegates will participate.

Baroness Suttner Present.

Baroness Suttner, whose book first attracted the attention of the Czar to the disarmament subject, has arrived, and will labor among the delegates. She said:

"I am confident of great results from the conference. Peace and arbitration must ensue. Even the most warlike powers favor it.

"Here is a letter from a French delegation informing me that they stand firmly by the Czar in all his proposals.

"I am hopeful of permanent peace."

William T. Stead arrived today from St. Petersburg, and immediately went into conference with Baron de Staal.

The petition of the women's peace crusade of England, America, and other countries will be presented to Baron de Staal tomorrow.

Delegates All Present.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Hague, May 17.—All the delegates to the international peace conference have arrived. Today was spent in a general exchange of visits.

The permanent President of the conference will be M. de Staal, Russian Ambassador to Great Britain and the head of the Russian delegation. The honorary chairman, who will open the proceedings, will be M. de Baufort, President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the government of the Netherlands.

The city is brilliantly decorated with foreign flags, denoting the various national headquarters. This evening M. Van Karnebook, former Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs, gave a dinner to introduce the foreign delegates.

The reporters will be admitted only to hear the inaugural address of M. de Beaufort, who is excluded from opening the discussion of the Czar's project.

To Arrange Three Programs.

Three commissions will then be named to arrange programs for discussion. The first relates to restrictions of armaments and military expenditure. The second deals with the laws governing civilized warfare and the third with mediation and arbitration.

SCHLEY SPEEDING WEST.

REAR ADMIRAL WILL REACH CHICAGO THIS AFTERNOON.

He Will Remain but a Short Time, Resuming His Journey to Visit General Manderson in Nebraska—Tour of the Yellowstone and Other Places—Talks Entertainingly of His Vacation, but Is Silent on the Battle of Santiago.

ON BOARD PENNSYLVANIA TRAIN, NO. 21, Harrisburg, Pa., May 17.
[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Admiral Winfield Scott Schley is navigating the continent today on his first exploring expedition to the interior. He will arrive in Chicago tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock over the Pennsylvania railroad, unless he is taken off the train somewhere along the way by his admirers.

Invitation committees have been taking turns at pressing him to stop over ever since he left Washington at 3 this afternoon. To all these enthusiastic and persistently admiring callers he has explained that he has not sufficient time at his disposal to accept any of the invitations. He is going direct to Omaha to visit with ex-Senator Charles F. Manderson, and after he arrives at the Nebraska town his real experiences will begin.

The hero of Santiago is going to be asked to ride a horse before he has finished his visit in the wild West.

"The prospect of steering a horse is the feature of this trip that gives me most concern," said Admiral Schley. Then he leaned back in the seat of the smoking-room of the car and told the correspondent of THE TRIBUNE something about horses.

"A man should not be expected to ride a horse," he continued, "the rudder is at the wrong end of them. Instead of having it astern it's ahead. That's why I am afraid I'll go over the bows when I get aboard this horse that General Manderson thinks I am going to ride."

On a Sight-Seeing Trip.

It should not be inferred that Admiral Schley, who is accompanied by his wife, is going half way across the continent simply to ride a horse or to try to do it. He is going to visit and have an outing, and the proposed horseback ride will be an incident in the outing part of the trip.

An extended tour of the sight-seeing places in the Rocky Mountain region has been planned by General Manderson for his old-time friend. Pike's Peak will be ascended and the pretty places will be viewed and the Yellowstone Park will be rambled through. In the park there are places where the use of saddle horses are necessary, and it has been fifty-three years since the man who sank Cervera's fleet has been astride a horse. He was born on a farm in Frederick County, Md., and lived on the farm till he was 6 years old.

"Then I knew all about horses," he said smiling, possibly at the thought of a farmer boy saying the "rudder of a horse is at the wrong end." "At any rate what I did not know of horses at that period I made up by my love of them. But then I left the farm and ten years later I took to the sea. That was forty-three years ago." He shook his head slowly as if he were coursing back over the high sea of memory.

First Real Visit to Interior.

This is an odd sort of a trip the veteran sea fighter is making. It will be the first time he has ever really visited the interior of his native land, if his connection with the Columbian Exposition be excepted. But he has traveled from San Francisco to New York and back more than half a dozen times. On those trips, however, he went through under full sail, not even stopping for dinner along the way. On another occasion, and that was two years ago, Admiral Schley and Mrs. Schley made a tour of the great lakes.

"I am going to keep an often promised and long delayed engagement to visit our old friend, General Manderson, and he has planned to give me a chance to see some of the wonderful places in the West. We will remain with him about ten days and will return by the way of St. Louis. If we have time enough we will stop over in Chicago for a day. I must be back in Washington on June 5."

"Can you not make your stay in Chicago longer?" he was asked.

"I fear not. It will depend on the termination of our sightseeing visit in the Rocky Mountains."

"This is purely a pleasure trip?"

"Yes, in the form of a personal visit. I wish I had more time to stop in Chicago."

His Impressions of Chicago.

"What impression of Chicago of the World's Fair days do you retain?"

"A vivid recollection that Chicago impressed me as the most thoroughly American city in America."

The Admiral had finished his cigar and returned to the drawing-room of the car to Mrs. Schley.

"And the World's Fair," said Mrs. Schley, prompting him, "I think no other city in the world could have made such an exposition and in such a short time."

"That was a most wonderful accomplishment," he added. "Every time I looked on it I thought some Aladdin must have rubbed a lamp to produce it. It was a work of magic rather than of mortal hands, to my mind."

It is not commonly known that this man of sea fighting had a hand in producing the wonders of the White City. He not only contributed to it, but his contribution was a most unique one. It was he who planned, devised, and superintended the laying of the electric buoys that marked the course in the lake from Van Buren street to the fair grounds. In doing it he succeeded for the first time in making a subaqueous cable with a high voltage and making it work successfully. He therefore has his victories in peace as well as in war.

Will Not Discuss Santiago.

One would think he felt more pride in having had a hand in making the World's Fair than in striking the blow that ended a war and crushed the remnant of the empire of Charles V. He spoke with a plain show of pride of his days in Chicago, but when the naval duel at Santiago was recalled he modestly withdrew from the discussion.

"Of my part in that fight," he said when pressed to talk of it by a visitor from Altoona who had boarded the train at Washington to invite him to stop off at Altoona, "there was enough glory in it for all; enough for every man in the navy, and it belongs to all of them."

"But you won the fight, Admiral," said the astonished visitor.

"Now you wouldn't take his share of the glory from the man behind the gun or the jackie in the hold, would you?"

"No, no," said the visitor thoughtfully.

"That's right. No true American would. The entire navy shares that credit equally, and the man who was unfortunate enough to be kept on shore duty comes in for a division of it just the same."

"Did you hear the way he talked?" said the visitor from Altoona as he withdrew. "I had some doubts before. Now I know it was Schley who won that glorious fight. I'll bet we get him to visit Altoona, because I'll worry him till he comes."

Everybody who boarded the train heard as soon as he met the conductor or the brakeman or the porter that Admiral Schley was on it. The passenger would go coasting through the train looking for him.

"You can tell him by his pictures," the informant would say.

"Can you shake hands with him?"

"Can you? Why, you can ask him for a light from his cigar or to get up to give you his seat and he'll do it."

"Well, say, he must be all right."

"Is he? Just go and shake hands with him and you'll wish you had a chance to vote for him."

Nobody seemed to have any difficulty in finding the distinguished passenger; some of the passengers approached him hesitatingly, but by the time they got within arm's reach their hesitation was gone.

"I knew you by your pictures, but you don't look so old as I thought you would," was the usual style of opening the conversation.

"Well, I am 59 years old," he said.

"You don't look it."

"Don't flatter me."

"Well, you don't. You look a dozen years younger."

Mrs. Schley Concurs.

Mrs. Schley subsequently expressed concurrence in what was said about the aged appearance of the Admiral in his pictures.

"The most aggravating thing about it is that the pictures look like him, too," she added.

It is the strong lines in his face that make it easy for an artist to get a recognizable picture of him that is not a true likeness. He seems not so old as the average man of 50 years. His hair is thinning at the top, but not so much as his commoner pictures lead one to believe. His mustache is the same color of his hair—a dark iron gray.

There is a vigorous, healthy flush in his face, which is free from the wrinkles of age. He is erect and his step is as elastic as that of a newly graduated Ensign. His shoulders are broad and square. He is a little above medium height and as trim built as an athlete in condition.

Mrs. Schley, who is accompanying him, is remembered by those of a generation ago at Annapolis as the prettiest girl in the academy town. She was Miss Annie Franklin, and, like the dashing young Ensign who won her hand, of an old and highly respected family. She has not lost all the beauty of her youth. She is graceful in her manner and engaging in conversation. She takes almost as much interest in her husband's ships as he does, but she does not like to be always talking about them. It is because of the great pride she feels in her hero that she shrinks from talking of his achievements.

"I do hope you will not print a big, long article in THE TRIBUNE," she said.

"The readers of THE TRIBUNE are anxious to hear a great deal about your distinguished husband."

"O, but so much has been published already," she pleaded.

Become Troubled Over Crops.

The sweet-faced little woman looked pathetically at her husband. He looked out the car window.

"Is that oats or wheat?" he asked her, indicating a waving field.

"I think it is oats," she ventured.

"It looks to me like wheat."

"I am almost sure it is oats."

"I'll bet you a quarter it's wheat."

"If its tops were grown out I'd bet with you."

"Now, if it was hay or grass I wouldn't bet," he said, and he turned to explain that he still took a great interest in agriculture, but he had seen so little of it in the last forty-three years that he had forgotten a great deal about many of the crops.

"Ah, the farmer is the most important man in the State," he added. "All prosperity begins with him. He is the corner-stone of the nation's wealth and its greatness."

As the train rumbled along through the green valleys and over streams that were babbling with the strong rains he talked of other things as far away from the sea as wheat fields.

Patriotism Makes Men Great.

"It is the patriotism of the American people that makes them great," he said. "Their patriotism is founded on better ground than the patriotism of people in foreign lands. This great people is sprung from those who came here to find freedom of religion and from political oppression, and their patriotism is loyalty to sacred causes and not the artificial patriotism of loyalty to any individual set above them."

When the train rounded the long, graceful curves that are swung about the bases of mountains he drifted to another phase of the theme of patriotism.

"It is in the virtue of American womanhood that the strength of our republic lies. Virtuous women are the mothers of strong, brave men, and that is why we are a gigantic force among the nations."

The valleys, and the mountains, and the streams were shifting in the panorama of the car window when he was led back in mind to the vicinity of Chicago, to his trip on the lakes.

"Do you know what impressed me most when I was traveling on the lakes? Well, I'll tell you," and he smiled as if chiding himself for telling it. "It was the fact that we were sailing in fresh water. I could not get used to the idea that the water everywhere about me was good to drink. I would dip some of it from over the ship's rails and drink it, and yet I could never accustom myself to the idea. When I would go to take a bath on the boat I would see the fresh water running into the bathtub, I would feel ashamed to be using good drinking water for such a purpose.

Great Commercial Possibilities.

"But other things impressed me on that trip. I observed the commercial possibilities everywhere in that region and I concluded that the commerce of the lakes had only been scratched at. The future greatness of that region is beyond human computation. I know the shipping on the lakes is great and that Chicago is a greater port than New York and Liverpool in the tonnage of its entrances and clearances, but it has only begun. I see no reason to speculate on the future of the lakes as a fighting ground. It is as a highway of commerce that it commands attention."

"Then you see much greatness in the future of Chicago that it has not attained?"

"Its greatness is at its beginning. The people of Chicago are so energetic, so clear-headed, and so completely without hesitation, that they of all people seem to be equal to the advantages with which nature has surrounded them."

The last thing he said before retiring was that he would like to visit in Chicago more than one day, as he is returning to his post as President of the Retiring board. When he arrives in Chicago tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock in the Union Station he will find the Burlington train waiting there, on which he will be carried to Omaha. His stay in Chicago this time will be a few minutes only.

China Must Yield to Russia.

London, May 18.—The Peking correspondent of the Times says: "M. de Giers, Russian Minister to China, declines to accept the refusal of the Chinese government to grant the railway concession to connect Peking with Russia's present railroad system in Manchuria. He will insist upon the grant. Unless supported by some other power China will yield to Russia. She is surrounded by calamities brought upon her by Italy, France, and Germany, while England's hands are tied by the Anglo-Russian convention."

DREYFUS CASE COMES CLOSE TO EMPEROR OF GERMANY.

General Boisdeffre Now Reported to Have Declared He Himself Saw Letters Written by Wilhelm to the Accused—Marchand the Talk of Paris—Shah of Persia and Other Foreign Sovereigns to Visit the Exposition Next Year.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY GRACE CORNEAU.]

Paris, May 17.—Among the documents forming a part of the secret evidence used against Dreyfus was one reported in which was a report of an alleged conversation between Princess Mathilde and General Boisdeffre. The Princess is reported to have said she had doubts of the culpability of Dreyfus.

"Ah, if you had seen what I saw," said the General.

"What?" inquired the Princess.

"I have seen with my own eyes letters from Emperor William to Dreyfus," said the General.

"I am but a simple Princess," replied Mathilde, "but I know enough about courts to know there are some things that are not done for publication."

This draws another set of people into the Dreyfus affair hitherto unknown to the public.

Princess Mathilde tonight sends the following denial in regard to the reported conversation:

"The article is false in whatever particular it concerns me. MATHILDE."

In Behalf of Picquart.

Serious efforts are again in progress to secure the release of Colonel Picquart. Maitre Labori today made a formal demand for his release, but the government has no intention of liberating any persons now in custody who might make new trouble before the Dreyfus affair is definitely settled.

Colonel Picquart, Paul Deroulede, and Marcel-Habert are all illegally kept in prison for this reason, adopted as a purely precautionary measure.

Paris Wild Over Marchand.

The Paris press is full of Marchand. He is the idol of the hour and his name is the only one spoken in Paris today. His arrival at Djibouti was the signal for a great reception, but he will be given a greater one when he sets foot on shore of France and when he finally reaches Paris.

Much stress is laid on the reception given Marchand at Addis Sheba by Emperor Menelek and the Abyssinian court. The explorer was given a banquet, and he afterwards reviewed the Abyssinian army beside the Negus.

All along the route from Addis Sheba to the coast the Ethiopian chiefs received Marchand with enthusiasm. An Ethiopian escort was placed at his disposition for the march. Before leaving the Abyssinian capital Marchand was given a reception by Emperor Menelek, at which all the foreign envoys at the barbaric court were present, with the notable exception of those from Great Britain.

At Djibouti, when Marchand stepped aboard the French cruiser, the ribbon of the Legion of Honor was presented him.

Marchand will sail for France at once on the cruiser D'Assas.

Shah of Persia Coming.

It is definitely announced the Shah of Persia will visit the exposition next year. Many foreign sovereigns are expected, not only from Europe, but from Asiatic provinces and the Orient. Elaborate plans are already under consideration for their entertainment, and a special service of police is being organized for their protection. This announcement was made by Premier Dupuy today.

Wedding in High Circles.

The marriage of Count Henri de Munsow, the Catholic leader in the Chamber of Deputies, with Mlle. Annie Merquer was celebrated today with great éclat in the aristocratic world of the Faubourg St. Germain.

Suit by Madame de Mores.

Mme. de Mores, wife of the explorer, who was some time ago assassinated in Sahara, brought suit for damages today against the Criminal Chamber of the Algerian Court. She recites in her complaint the Algerian court did not sufficiently investigate the case in order to discover the assassin and his accomplices.

Decides a Railroad Case.

The higher court today decided in test case that railroad companies have no right to sell railroad tickets for advertising purposes.

Sarcey's Funeral Today.

The funeral of Francisque Sarcey will take place tomorrow at 10 o'clock in Trinity Church. The body will probably be cremated.

NOW BELIEVE IT A SUICIDE.

Earl of Strafford's Death Thought to Have Been Planned by Himself.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK WORLD AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

London, May 17.—It is believed in many quarters the Earl of Strafford's death was really a suicide. According to the latest accounts, he was seen to slip off the end of the platform in front of the approaching express. He had been standing looking eagerly up and down the track for a couple of minutes, evidently waiting to immolate himself before the train. The body was dragged 150 yards along the line, the head cut from the body as though by a guillotine.

The Countess of Strafford, on her arrival, swooned in the hotel where the remains had been placed. The doctor and her friends used every persuasion to prevent her seeing the body, but in vain. She remained by its side in poignant grief until early morning, when she retired, completely worn out. The body, which was unrecognizable, was first placed in a pigstye in the hotel, but after the doctor had identified it it was taken to the hotel sitting-room.

Despondency caused by his low state of health since his apoplectic stroke at Windsor during the winter and apprehensions of mental failure are the reasons ascribed by those who hold to the suicide theory.

The Queen was dreadfully shocked, as the Earl of Strafford was one of her most trusted servants.

Two letters were found on the body, together with a gun metal cigaret case with a crest in brilliants, a gift from the Countess. The inquest will be held probably tomorrow.

Thousands Hear Women Orators at The Hague Discuss The Hague Conference.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. B. MACGOWAN.]

Berlin, May 17.—Thousands of friends of the woman's movement tonight heard Anita Augsburg and other woman orators discuss the peace conference which assembles tomorrow at The Hague. Anita Augsburg, in her address, regretted so few of the German cities are participating in the international movement, for which she claimed Germany furnished the initiative.

Germany the Home of Socialism.

The Danish Socialist, Lang, in an article on socialism, states Germany has over 2,000,000 of Europe's 5,000,000 Socialists. The Hamburger Zeitung, in an interesting article on the subject today, declares England and Norway, politically, are the freest countries and have the fewest Socialists, while in Germany, the home of socialism, the police have power enough to preserve the safety of the government. The Zeitung, in closing, declares dull statistics often speak pretty loud.

Quarrel Over Good Friday.

The religious press today resumed the attempt to conjure up a "Kulturkampf," or religious controversy, from the Landtag's proposal to forbid all noisy work on Good Friday. Ultramontane Germania is vieing with the evangelical Reichsbote. The Protestants complain worship is purposely disturbed in Catholic districts, while the Catholics defiantly declare a Protestant holiday cannot be forced upon them.

Nepotism at Bonn.

From Bonn comes the surprising report the university is suffering from the effects of nepotism. Sixteen instances are given of professorships being given to sons or nephews of the members of the faculty.

Rival Picture Exhibitions.

The first hanging day of the so-called secession exhibition by Boecklin, Adolf Menzel, Lieberman, Hoffmann, and other modern German painters opens on Saturday in opposition to the regular exhibition.

Threatens Reichstag Reporters.

In the Reichstag today Vice President von Frege, hurt at the criticism of the Breslau Zeitung in a letter published this morning, threatened to empty the benches of the press gallery unless the offending correspondent is chastised. This incident is arousing indignation.

Convicted of Lese Majesty.

There was another conviction for lese majesty today. At Essen the court sentenced a former bailiff to seven months' imprisonment for making drunken remarks about the Kaiser.

Collapse of a Plot.

The Liberal papers are enjoying the collapse of the Alexandria Anarchist plot story and the conviction at Ancona by the Italian police of Bazzani, who, as already cabled, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment for originating the affair. The government organs are silent over the incident, but the Minister of Police declared in the Lantag the Kaiser's life was really in danger.

Effect on German Agriculture.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK JOURNAL AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

Berlin, May 17.—Carl Simon, the Roumanian Consul at Baden, has written a book, which he has dedicated to the Grand Duke of Baden, upon the effect upon German agricultural conditions of imports from the United States. The Consul has compiled his facts with intelligence and from his compilations he draws conclusions of the course for Germany to pursue to maintain the prosperity and conserve the industries of the country in the face of the competition of the United States.

EXTRA SESSION STILL IN DOUBT

President Has Not Considered Question of Assembling Congress—Congratulates General Lawton.

Hot Springs, Va., May 17.—President McKinley has not yet given consideration to the subject of an extra session of Congress. This statement was made officially here tonight and was brought forward by published announcements that an extra session had been decided upon on the one hand and on the other that such a session would not be called. The dispatch of General Otis regarding the capture of San Isidro by General Lawton and his forcing of the scattered insurgent ranks into the mountains was so pleasing to Mr. McKinley that he immediately sent his congratulations to General Lawton. Secretary Porter returned to Washington tonight.

QUEEN'S VISIT MAY BE LAST.

Victoria Officiates at the Laying of the Corner Stone of London's Great Museum.

CHEERED BY BIG CROWDS

Completion of the Great Project Begun Forty Years Ago by the Prince Consort.

END OF MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY H. J. WHIGHAM.]

London, May 17.—Queen Victoria today completed the work begun forty years ago by the Prince Consort. The South Kensington Museum, one of the world's finest collections, hitherto housed in wretched makeshifts of buildings, is now assured of a building worthy of the great material.

The old name has been removed, and the building, when completed, will be called the Victoria and Albert Museum.

The British public certainly cares little for pageant. This, possibly the last public visit of the Queen to London, was a dull, colorless affair. There were no hosts of soldiers, no arches of welcome—nothing but a few flags and bits of bunting hung out promiscuously on Brompton road, without order or design, by private individuals.

Nevertheless, an enormous crowd gathered to greet her Majesty, and waited for hours during the morning outside the gloomy exterior of Buckingham Palace without a sight of royalty. Carriages drove up and went away with distinguished visitors coming to write their names in the visitors' book.

Waiting for the Queen.

The crowd waited patiently while the Queen drove quietly in the private grounds of the palace in a donkey carriage, away from public view.

When at last the procession started it proved little of a real pageant. A small bodyguard was followed by four carriages with the members of the royal family. The feminine portion was all dressed in black, and the men wore black bands on their sleeves because the court is in mourning.

Along Knightsbridge and Brompton road the crowd grew thicker, but was most orderly, scarcely needing the large detachment of policemen employed.

As statesmen, Ministers, and foreign Ambassadors arrived outside the large pavilion erected for the ceremony cheers came for well-known faces. Lord Rosebery, Campbell-Bannerman, Lord Charles Beresford, and the Duke of Devonshire won indiscriminate applause. The others passed unnoticed because unrecognized.

Meanwhile the Guards' Band discoursed popular music while the people waited.

Enthusiasm Is Immense.

When the Queen at last came the enthusiasm was immense. She was accompanied in her carriage by the Duke of Connaught, Prince Christian, Princess Henry of Battenberg. The "little old lady" in black looked wonderfully well and was exceedingly pleased with her reception. Apparently she has no intention of making this her last public visit to London.

As she entered the pavilion she found herself face to face with all that is distinguished in her kingdom. Parliament tacitly acknowledged her presence in London by failing to make a quorum, so that all the Ministers and officials, from Lord Salisbury down, were able to attend the laying of the foundation stone. Consequently the pavilion was a mass of brilliant uniforms, forming one really fine part of the pageant. The Queen was received by the Duke of Devonshire and the Rt. Hon. Aretas Akers-Douglas, First Commissioner of Works. She chatted with the Prince of Wales until the national anthem struck up, after which the enormous stone was put in place. The Prince of Wales, in the name of the Queen, pronounced it truly laid. The whole business was over in a few minutes. The Queen drove to Paddington, reaching Windsor tonight.

The crowd dispersed satisfied. Altogether it was a business-like but uneventful ceremony, exhibiting, of course, the popularity and activity of the Queen, but also the great carelessness of Englishmen for royal functions.

Music Festival Closes.

Today at Queen's Hall the last concert of the London Music Festival was given with the combined orchestras of Wood and Lamoreux. At the finish Mr. Wood conducted the bands as they played the "Marseillaise," after which M. Lamoreux in return summoned his men to play the English national anthem. The success of the festival was emphasized by the magnificent reception given M. Lamoreux's orchestra. The whole affair has brought the English and French musical worlds in closer touch and increased the friendly feeling between Paris and London. Above all, Wood has shown London supports a native band. As a conductor he is inferior to none in Europe.

Boer Play Falls Flat.

All the London papers today are full of Transvaal reports of the mysterious but probably unimportant arrest at Johannesburg. Not a single one of the arrested men can be shown to be a British officer, although some of the so-called "Colonels" and "Captains" may be ex-sergeants. The general opinion is the whole thing has been greatly exaggerated through Boer channels, and possibly even purposely exaggerated by President Kruger, who is anxious to create a diversion. Anyhow, British press officials are prompt to disclaim any sympathy with or knowledge of the arrested men.

Daily Mail's New Enterprise.

The Mail in the morning will publish its intention of starting a Saturday illustrated weekly, instead of a Sunday paper, on June 17. It shows great astuteness in making capital now out of its graceful concession to public opinion.

ACCUSE RHODES OF PLOT.

BOERS CHARGE THE EMPIRE BUILDER WITH CONSPIRACY.

People of Johannesburg Allege the South African League Is Directly Responsible for the Alleged Project of Starting a Revolution in the Transvaal Republic—Admit Kruger Has Overreached Himself—Prisoners Sent to Jail for Two Weeks.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK JOURNAL AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

Johannesburg, Transvaal Republic, May 17.—The greatest tension prevails here, growing out of the arrest of the eight British officers on a charge of high treason in planning a revolution.

It is learned that the troopship Avoca, departing from England with soldiers whose time had expired, has been ordered to remain in Table Bay for the present.

The allegation that the South African league is responsible caused deep resentment among its members.

Cecil Rhodes, the President, freely suggested in his London interviews that the whole affair, these arrests, and the story that British officers plotted a revolution are a gigantic trick on the part of Kruger to delay the reform negotiations.

Specific Charge Against Rhodes.

The Johannesburg Boer organ specifically charges Cecil Rhodes with being the actual plotter.

The idea is becoming general, however, that Kruger overreached himself in his attempt to foil Chamberlain and delay the reforms. The President promised to introduce reforms tomorrow. The Milner-Kruger conference will not take place before the Queen's birthday.

Immense crowds lined the streets of Pretoria today to see the prisoners taken from the jail to court. Fries, the Dane, was not among them. It is generally believed he turned tail and confessed. He was brought back to Johannesburg.

It is generally remarked that the prisoners have not the slightest military bearing, and looked the part of adventurers. They were remanded for two weeks.

Prisoners Brought into Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pretoria, May 17.—The seven alleged revolutionists, who presented the appearances of ordinary loafers, were arraigned in court today, charged with the capital offense of high treason. They were remanded for a fortnight.

Sworn affidavits allege 2,000 men have been enrolled for military service, and that it was intended to arm them in Natal, to return them to the Rand, and, at a given signal, to seize and hold the Fort of Johannesburg for twenty-four hours pending the arrival of British troops.

The Press says the government regards the matter as "an unfortunate local incident, which will not affect the general political situation."

The government also confirms the report that the arrangements between President Kruger and the Governor of Cape Colony and High Commissioner of south Africa, Sir Alfred Milner, for a meeting at Bloemfontein, capital of the Orange Free State, are nearly completed. The President's proposed reforms will be presented to the Volksraad prior to the meeting.

All Prisoners Are Remanded.

Cape Town, May 17.—The expected conference between President Kruger of the Transvaal Republic and Sir Alfred Milner, Governor of Cape Colony, has not yet been arranged.

The President of the South African league repudiates any connection with the enlistment of men for any purpose.

Fries was the only prisoner who did not appear today at the Pretoria court for arraignment. The streets were thronged, and the prisoners were escorted under a strong guard from the jail to the court. A remand was granted and the prisoners were returned to the jail.

The excitement here is somewhat abating.

Report from Transvaal Consul.

London, May 17.—The Consul of the Transvaal here has received the following telegram from his government, dated Pretoria, May 16:

"Richard Nicholls, describing himself as a Colonel; George Patterson, a Captain; Edward J. Tromlett, Charles Ellis, and John A. Mitchell, and Fries and Cooper were arrested yesterday morning on the sworn declaration of three Englishmen on the charge of high treason in connection with the alleged object of the enrollment of troops to create a revolution, seize Johannesburg fort, and hold possession of the town until the British troops from Natal could come to their assistance.

"One of the prisoners alleges that he was acting under instructions from the British War department."

A government official here pronounces the closing statement "too absurd for refutation."

Trumped Up by the Boers.

Prominent south Africans connected with leading concerns of Johannesburg declared today they had not received a word from their own agents in Cape Colony, the absence of advices indicating that the affair was "trumped up by the Boer police," and that in any case the men arrested were irresponsible nobodies with fictitious military titles affixed by the Boers, with the object of discrediting the British in the eyes of the continental powers.

It is now believed Tremlett (not Tromlett) was formerly a Captain of volunteers in Cape Colony, and that he is now a mining agent; Patterson is described as a butcher and a labor agitator; Mitchell is said to be a storekeeper; Cooper is classed as a carpenter; Ellis is alleged to be a private detective; and the occupations of Fries and Nicholls are unknown.

A prominent Outlander said:

"My own view is that a few irresponsible men met together to discuss means of defense in case the necessity for such action arose. Those who are acquainted with Johannesburg know that such precautions are necessary. But the statement that there has been a conspiracy during the last four months and that the South African league was connected with it is untrue. No Outlander is allowed to possess a rifle, yet at every corner are policemen armed with rifles and revolvers. The feeling of alarm on the arrival of the Boer artillery can be conceived."

The impression is gaining ground here the alleged plot was prepared by President Kruger's agents to discredit the South African league.

The officers of the Liverpool regiment and an artillery regiment, who were to have left tomorrow, under orders to proceed to the Cape, were stopped at the last moment.

CUBANS IN CALMER MOOD.

Leaders Now Trying to Quell the Recent Spirit of Hostility to the United States.

Havana, May 17.—Cuban emotion has taken a swift turn toward moderation. All the political groups and the fifteen daily newspapers of Havana realized today that a cessation of wild talk was desirable.

At the meetings of the National league tonight all the speakers advised reflection.

General Carlos Roloff, in the course of an interview today, said: "Nothing serious will result from the wild words of youth, and older men realize that it would be impossible to maintain war against the Americans. It is thoroughly practical to return to work. To oppose the United States would mean deliberate suicide."

Some of the Havana orators have been representing the country districts as seething with excitement and ready for revolt. Today Captain Stewart Janney and Mr. Dwight Mallory returned from a trip in the eastern districts. They report that the country which they traversed is quiet and innocent of revolutionary sentiment.

The manifesto of General Gomez was read today by Governor General Brooke and the latter's forthcoming order on the subject of payment of Cuban troops was read by Gomez. Approvals were exchanged.

The principal change in the original program is that the arms are to be turned over to the Mayors of the cities, the latter officials to be responsible. When 500 or more are stored in one place a Cuban ex-soldier will be employed as an armorer and paid by the general government.

Labor Riot at Cienfuegos.

Cienfuegos, Province of Santa Clara, May 16, 9:15 p. m., via Havana, May 17.—The agitation of the Cuban dock laborers here, who have been demanding back pay, culminated this evening in bloodshed. A negro was killed by a Cuban officer. The dock laborers have now been paid. A detachment of twenty-five soldiers is guarding the custom-house.

Major Dempsey is understood to be fearing an anti-American demonstration, as there is much excited talk against Americans, apparently due to nothing more than the talk of the agitators who are advocating complete indeepndence.

No Brigandage in Santiago.

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The following dispatch has been received at the War department:

"Havana, May 17.—Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.: General Wood reports as result of his recent trip through department everything quiet and peaceful. Reports of brigandage absolutely without foundation. People working everywhere. Similar conditions in other departments.

"BROOKE, Commanding."

EXPECTS PEACE IN TRANSVAAL.

Major Jameson Discusses African Problems—Parsee Student and Japanese Professor in Chicago.

Major J. Eustace Jameson, Nationalist member of Parliament for the division of West Clare, Ireland, President of the Dublin Distillers' company, limited, is registered at the Auditorium Annex. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Chicago Packing and Provision company, and his visit here is connected with the reorganization of that company.

"I do not believe that England and the Transvaal will become embroiled in war," he said. "Still, if the arrest of the men said to be English officers by the Boers should prove to be an attempt to manufacture evidence to give the government an excuse for denying the demands of the Uitlanders, I fear serious complications would arise."

A Parsee, one of the sect which numbers only 80,000, and which will receive no converts, one having to be born to the faith, is registered at the Auditorium Hotel. He is Rustum D. N. Wadia of Bombay. He is young, athletic looking, and has taken the degree of Master of Arts in the Bombay University, and is a member of the Inner Temple, London. He declared India is well satisfied with English rule, and that in case of a conflict with Russia its people would ally themselves practically solidly against the latter. He will visit President Harper and will look into the Chicago University while here.

Professor I. Kadono, dean of the faculty of the University of Keiogijuka, Tokio, Japan, is at the Auditorium Hotel. He has been a year in Europe, studying educational methods, and is doing the same here. He will visit the University of Chicago and Northwestern University. He said the University at Tokio has a full English course, in which the sciences and other branches of study are taught in English.

BOARDS OF CHARITIES MEET.

National Conference Opens in Cincinnati and Dr. Charles R. Henderson Delivers Address.

Cincinnati, O., May 17.—The twenty-sixth national conference of charities and corrections began here today for its annual session of one week. At the opening public session tonight there was a large attendance. W. J. Breed of Cincinnati presided. The invocation was by Dr. David H. Moore, editor of the Western Christian Advocate. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor Tafel and Governor Bushnell, with response by Robert Treat Paine of Boston. The argument of Governor Bushnell for non-partisan management was loudly applauded. The feature of the evening was the annual address by Dr. Charles R. Henderson, professor of sociology in the University of Chicago, and President of the National Society of Charities and Corrections. His subject was: "The Relation of Philanthropy to Social Order and Progress." Tomorrow the convention will be addressed by Mayor Jones of Toledo.

MARINE FIREMEN ORDERED OUT

Will Quit Work at Noon Today Unless Buffalo Strike Is Settled—Negotiations Progress.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 17.—[Special.]—The most important development of the strike situation today was the action of the Marine Firemen's Benevolent association in resolving to quit work unless the trouble with the grain shovelers is settled by noon tomorrow. This organization represents all firemen of the lakes, who will be called out as soon as they can be notified. Bishop Quigley has prevailed upon the freight handlers to appoint a committee, with power to act, to confer with the lake line managers tomorrow. The grain scoopers made an amendment to the agreement signed by Contractor Conners and Inspector Donavon, to the effect that none but those who were members on April 3 should be recognized by the scoopers' union. Conners accepted the amendment. Bishop Quigley told the men they would probably be at work again by Friday. The State Board of Arbitration held a short meeting tonight.

DR. R. F. SAMPLE IN THE LEAD.

New York Minister Ahead in Contest for Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—While many delegates to the eleventh Presbyterian General Assembly are in the city, the majority will not reach here before morning. Preceding the opening of the assembly tomorrow the greatest interest tonight centers in the election of Moderator. Friends of the various candidates are working in caucus and out in the effort to win delegates. To all appearances Dr. Robert F. Sample, New York, is in the lead, although Dr. M. L. Haines, Indianapolis, is a close second. The choice will virtually rest between these two men. Other candidates are the Rev. R. F. Coyle, Oakland, Cal.; the Rev. William McKibbin, Cincinnati; the Rev. S. J. McPherson, Chicago; the Rev. M. B. Babcock, Baltimore; the Rev. Arthur J. Brown, New York; and the Rev. Charles A. Dickey, Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT COLLEGE TRUSTEE.

Meeting of American University Board Held in Washington—Two Endowments Reported.

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The semi-annual meeting of the trustees of the American University was held today at the Arlington Hotel. John E. Andrus of New York presided.

Bishop Hurst, the Chancellor, announced the gift of $00,000, from a friend whose name is not made public, for the founding of the Thomas Coke College for Missions.

Bishop McCabe of Texas reported $128,000 as recently subscribed for the endowment fund.

President McKinley and Mr. Arthur Dixon of Chicago were elected to membership in the Board of Trustees.

Fear She Has Killed Herself.

Friends of Mrs. Alma Moench fear she has made away with herself and her two children, Flora and Carl. Yesterday Henry Moench, her husband, asked the police to search for them. Last Saturday Mrs. Moench, taking her children with her, left her residence, 5058 State street, and nothing has been seen of them by their friends since. The woman's husband says she is subject to spells of mental derangement and, during them, shows suicidal tendencies.

STILL BAR CHICAGO WORK

REMOTE PROSPECT OF SOLVING GRANITE CUTTERS' STRIKE.

Contractor and Federation of Labor Leaders Cannot Come to Terms—Secretary Gage's True Prophecy Regarding General Lawton — Joint High Commission May Meet if New Bases of Negotiations Can Be Fixed with Certainty.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, }
Washington, D. C., May 17. }

No Sign Yet of Settling Stone Cutters' Strike.

There is still no prospect of a satisfactory solution of the strike of the granite finishers of the Mount Waldo quarries, and from the present outlook the work on the Chicago Public Building will be greatly delayed. Architect Henry Ives Cobb today had a conference with James Duncan, secretary of the Federation of Labor, who said the strikers would not resume the work of finishing the granite for the Chicago structure except on an eight-hour basis and an advance of 50 per cent.

Contractor Pierce will not agree to this proposition, but has offered every inducement to the strikers except the surrender of the principle for which he is contending—that the Chicago building shall not be discriminated against.

The strikers seem to be well able to engage in a protracted struggle, as they are now finishing stone for other buildings and are simply delaying that for the Chicago structure.

It is believed the ultimate outcome of the struggle will be the employment of non-union labor on this work. Contractor Pierce has done everything in his power to start the work, and the Treasury department is standing by him in the contest, as the strike is pronounced an unreasonable one.

It would not be surprising if terms are made with a stone cutters' union which does not belong to the Federation of Labor to begin the work, but as soon as this union attempts to antagonize the federation it will be pronounced a "scab" organization.

This seems to be the only way to start operations, as the federation declares it will not yield an inch.

Secretary Gage's True Estimate of Gen. Lawton.

At a big dinner during the winter, when many of the heroes of the war were present, there was only one, a tall, reserved man, who appeared in uniform. When called on for a speech he rose quietly, made a gentle bow, and sat down amid a storm of applause. "That's my notion of a soldier," said Secretary Gage to his neighbor at the table. "I'll be willing to guarantee he would go where he was told, obey orders, fight like a devil, and then make a salute to his commanding General and sit down to wait for more orders and more fighting. I think we will hear more of him."

The soldier who was so highly commended by the Secretary of the Treasury was General Henry W. Lawton, fresh from the glories of San Juan.

Today he is the central figure of the campaign against Aguinaldo, having pushed his division steadily northward, crossing rivers and unknown wastes, flanking the insurgents out of one line of trenches after another, until now he has captured San Isidro, the latest rebel capital.

Lawton's march is pronounced by military men the most brilliant piece of strategy and bulldog fighting seen during the Spanish-American war. He was a non-commissioned officer of volunteers in an Indiana regiment and won his straps as Lieutenant Colonel in that service. He went into the regular army as a Second Lieutenant after the rebellion. Since 1888 he has been in the Inspection department, and was made a Brigadier of volunteers a year ago, being promoted to Major General after the Santiago fight.

He is likely to be the next Brigadier in the regular service as a reward for his fighting record in two hemispheres.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiter left this morning for Chicago and their Dupont Circle house is boarded up for the summer.

Joint Commission May Meet on a New Basis.

It is now believed the Joint High commission will hold another meeting this fall, but if the commissioners meet again it will be on an entirely new basis. Ambassador Choate has been conferring with Lord Salisbury and Sir Julian Pauncefote under instructions from Secretary Hay, with a view of getting the British government to yield something on the Alaskan boundary question, which is the great stumbling block to successful negotiations. Reports received from Ambassador Choate are encouraging and give hope that if negotiations are resumed at all there will be better prospects of reaching an agreement.

If the commission reconvenes assurances must be given in advance that some results will be obtained.

The nature of these concessions must be fully set forth before it is formally agreed to have another meeting. Senator Fairbanks, who had already started for Alaska, was recalled by Secretary Hay, and, with John W. Foster, had a conference of about four hours' duration with the Secretary of State. After the conference both Senator Fairbanks and Mr. Foster expressed themselves as believing the sittings of the commission will be resumed, and the Canadians will be willing to yield considerably, but as yet no positive assurances on this point have been received.

Senator Fairbanks will go to Alaska, but he will return about the middle of July, and if by that time the Canadians are ready to give the assurances demanded by this government negotiations will be resumed, but in their absence the conference will be declared off.

Admiral Schley One of the Navy's Best Speakers.

Admiral Schley left for his Western trip this afternoon, and before he returns to Washington will stop in Chicago. He will be the guest of former Senator Manderson at his Nebraska home. While in the West the hero of Santiago will accept all the invitations he can, and it is said will deliver a few speeches. The Admiral, by the way, is one of the best speakers in the navy, and he and Captain Sigsbee of the Maine have thus far made the most popular after-dinner addresses of any of the war heroes. It is a significant fact that Admiral Schley, in spite of the hostile attitude of the Secretary, has never been betrayed into making an intemperate or disrespectful comment, although he has spoken dozens of times.

Secretary and Mrs. Gage and a party of friends took a short sail down the Potomac tonight on the new coast survey steamer Pathfinder. This is the steamer which was launched last December and was christened by a niece of Secretary Gage.

Expect No Clash Over Brazil Stoning Incident.

State department officials do not apprehend a clash over the stoning of the American consulate at Manaos, Brazil, but believe the Brazilian government will disavow the act and apologize and salute the flag. It is understood the mob which stoned the consulate and tore down and destroyed the consular coat-of-arms does not represent the sentiments of the government, which is extremely friendly. From the meager advices received here it is gathered the mob was infuriated over the action of Captain Todd of the cruiser Wilmington.

Before proceeding to Manaos the commander of the Wilmington asked permission of the Governor of Para to ascend the Amazon. This was referred to the central government, with the assurance that the request would be granted.

Captain Todd and the officers of the ship were entertained by the Governor of Para while waiting for the desired permission, and the utmost good feeling was manifested toward them. After waiting what he considered a reasonable time, and formal permission being withheld, Captain Todd decided to proceed without it. This he did, and when he arrived at Manaos the inhabitants of that city became infuriated at his action and vented their anger by stoning the consulate.

Fortunately the Consul was absent and no one was injured, and while the Brazilian government has not as yet communicated with this government, it is believed the matter will be arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Announcement was made today that the concert and dance in the temporary ballroom of the Blaine house will be postponed from Friday evening of this week to Monday of next. Over 500 tickets at a dollar each have been sold. Mrs. Westinghouse is to be hostess. The affair is for the fund for the enlargement of the Children's Country Home in connection with the Children's Hospital.

Indian Claims for Millions Are Presented.

The Interior department was today presented a claim aggregating $1,000,000, which John H. King of Chamberlain, S. D., who is here looking after the interests of the Rosebud Sioux Indians, says is due this tribe of Indians under section 24 of the Sioux agreement or treaty of 1889. The section provides that the government shall pay the Sioux Indians $1.25 an acre for each section 16 and 36 in each township of the ceded portion of the Sioux reservation.

Mr. King claims this money has been due and payable for eight years, and has not been paid because the Sioux have never had efficient counsel to look after their interests. Unless he can induce the government to rectify the alleged neglect and pay the interest equitably due by its non-payment there would be a loss of over $400,000 of interest money alone on this one item.

Mr. King is also filing his appearance in about 800 depredation suits now pending against the Sioux and rendering to the Rosebud Indians a complete statement of the amount and number of the claims, the names of the claimants, and also the amount of the judgments against them and paid against them. The sum total of the depredation claims in suits of the Court of Claims amounts to over $2,000,000.

Mr. King has just received the payment to the Rosebud Indians of the sum of $148,000 appropriated last winter under the treaty with the Lower Brules, and the payment is now being made through the Indian agency at Rosebud Agency.

Pretty Wedding of Miss Ward and C. P. Anderson.

Miss Harriet Ward of this city and Mr. Chandler Parsons Anderson of New York were married today at noon in St. John's Church. Effective decorations of palms and white peonies filled the chancel, and a distinguished assemblage of guests witnessed the event. The ushers were Mr. George E. Elliot of New York, Mr. Charles B. Warren of Detroit, Mr. William Williams of New York, Mr. Reginald Tower, Chargé d'Affaires of the British Embassy; Mr. Frederick Evans, private secretary to Vice President Hobart; and Mr. P. L. Phillips of this city.

The Rev. Dr. McKay-Smith was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Ward, as maid of honor, who wore a pink silk gown trimmed in white lace, hat of pale pink tulle, and carried bridemaid roses.

The bride's gown was an elaborate one of white satin and tulle. Her veil was caught with lilies of the valley and her bouquet was of the same flowers.

The guests at the church were Secretary and Mrs. Hay, Mrs. and Miss Miles, former Secretary and Mrs. John W. Foster, Mrs. and the Misses McKenna, Representative and Mrs. Hitt, General Corbin, Commander and Mrs. Emory, Miss Emory, the Russian Ambassador and Mlle. Cassini, the French Ambassador, the Countess de Sibour, the Swiss Minister and Mme. Pioda, Mrs. Nicholas Anderson, Miss Elsie Anderson, Mrs. Henry H. Anderson, mother of the groom, and Mrs. Tremaine of New York.

The groom was a graduate of Yale and secretary of the American Board of the Joint High Commission. The young couple will reside in New York.

James Etter Tells How Lincoln Played Watchman.

James Etter, a doorkeeper in the War department, frequently occupies a chair from which he could not be induced to part, because it was once occupied by Abraham Lincoln when he was President of the United States, although at the time he acted as watchman with a badge pinned on the lapel of his coat. Mr. Etter explains the incident by saying: "One day during the war I was sitting here, when a tall, angular gentleman entered the main door and asked if the Secretary was in. I told him that it was too early for the Secretary to be in his office.

"'At what hour can I depend on finding him here?' he asked. I told him, and with a pleasant 'Thank you' he walked away.

"Promptly on the hour the tall gentleman ascended the steps, walked in the door, and I was almost struck dumb when he asked me if I would not go into the Secretary's room and tell him to step out in the hall. I recovered myself and informed the caller I could not leave my post of duty, and even if I could I did not think the Secretary would come out to see him.

"He replied: 'O, I guess he will, and as for leaving your post, I will be personally responsible for that. I am Mr. Lincoln, and I will simply take your badge and keep door while you step in for me.'

"Well, I couldn't doubt him, and he pulled off my badge, pinned it on his coat, and took my chair, just like an old-time watchman.

"A smile played over his face as I left him, and you can rest assured it was not long before he and the Secretary were holding a quiet talk in an out of the way corner in the hall."

Dewey Fund Circulars Ready to Send Out.

Another meeting of the Dewey's Home Fund committee was held this afternoon, when steps were taken to arouse public interest in the movement. It is the desire of the committee to make it a popular and national affair to the fullest extent. To this end the committee decided to send invitations to bankers, postmasters, and the larger newspapers throughout the country asking their coöperation with the committee in encouraging subscriptions and acting as depositories.

It is desired to give every patriotic citizen a chance to contribute according to his means. Large returns are expected from the dollar subscriptions, but it is confidently expected wealthy citizens will donate liberally to the fund.

Mr. Vanderlip has prepared a circular letter addressed to the bankers, Assistant Postmaster General Heath one to the postmasters, and Treasurer Roberts a similar letter to the chambers of commerce, asking coöperation in this cause.

The committee is anxious to secure the receipts within a short time in order to enable them to coöperate with Admiral Dewey in the selection of a home immediately upon his arrival. The fund now amounts to only $1,287.

Citizens of Nashville Seek Fitting Trophies.

Representative John Wesley Gaines of the Nashville (Tenn.) district came to Washington on a hunt for trophies for his city. He secured one of the big guns captured from the Spaniards at Manila, and then urged Secretary Long to give him one of our own bulldogs that barked during the war with such good effect. It was the cruiser Nashville that fired the first shot of the war off the coast of Cuba on the morning of the 22d of April. The people of Nashville want that particular gun to put on Capitol Hill.

Secretary Long told Mr. Gaines that not until the gun had been condemned could he comply with the wishes of the Tennesseeans. He promised to write to Captain Maynard in command of the vessel and ascertain the size of the gun, its cost, etc., so that Mr. Gaines could follow out his own suggestion and go to Congress for legislation granting the gun to his native city.

Representative Gaines opposed the idea of having a condemned gun. He declared to the Secretary that neither Nashville as a city nor Nashville as a cruiser had ever had anything condemned, and he did not wish either to begin that business now.

Mr. Gaines will lay the matter before the people of Nashville, and a subscription will be taken to purchase a new gun, so that Congress can donate the one now in use and not be loser a dollar by the favor.

In addition to his duties at the Rock Island Arsenal Captain William S. Pierce has been detailed as inspector of mortar carriages at St. Paul, and will make two visits a month to that place.

MILLIONAIRE'S LOSING FIGHT IN WEST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Young Pastor, Opposed by Older Faction, Wins at Every Point—New Vanderbilt Home to Be Built on Fifth Avenue — General Guy V. Henry Talks of Porto Rico—Ian Maclaren Goes to England for Queen's Birthday Celebration—New York News.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, }
New York, May 17. }

Disruption May Follow Election in Church.

Dollars were arrayed against sentiment tonight at the election of a new Board of Trustees for the West Presbyterian Church, West Forty-second street, the Rev. Dr. Anthony J. Evans, pastor. Sentiment won, the young pastor was sustained, and Russell Sage and his fellow-trustees were defeated. Mr. Sage received fewer votes than his assistants.

When the congregation refused to accept Dr. Evans' resignation the trustees resigned. One ticket tonight was composed of the old board, the other of younger men.

The election may mean the disruption of the church, as the older and wealthier members supported the defeated board. Several of the elders threatened to resign if the congregation should sustain Dr. Evans.

Miss Maude Adams closes her brief engagement in "Romeo and Juliet" at the Empire Theater on Saturday night. She started out to give fourteen performances, but increased the number to sixteen. The house has been sold out in advance for every performance and the receipts for the two weeks will reach $40,000.

Three Homes for Millionaires to Be Built.

The news that William K. Vanderbilt Jr. would build a home for his bride, and that houses would be erected for James A. Burden J. and John Henry Hammond, all in upper Fifth avenue, has been confirmed. Andrew Carnegie has sold the block fronting on Fifth avenue between Ninety-first and Ninety-second streets and an additional plot on Ninety-first street to William K. Vanderbilt Jr. The price paid for the Fifth avenue plot was $800,000; that of the Ninety-first street plot is not given.

Young Vanderbilt will erect a $2,000,000 mansion.

Adjoining it, it is understood, Mr. Sloane will build twin houses for his daughters, Mrs. James A. Burden Jr. and Mrs. John Henry Hammond, cousins of young Vanderbilt.

Certificates for Great Northern railway rights will be mailed on Saturday afternoon to stockholders of record on that date. The certificates are in negotiable form, and the holder is entitled to subscribe for new stock at par under the terms of the circular. Payment is to be made June 22 in one amount. The issue has been already approved formally by about 70 per cent of the stockholders.

Gen. Henry Tells of Progress in Porto Rico.

Major General Guy V. Henry, U. S. V., until recently Military Governor of Porto Rico, who arrived on the transport McPherson from San Juan, was accompanied by Mrs. Henry and his daughter, Mrs. Benton. The party will remain in this city until Monday, when they will leave for Washington. General Henry is enthusiastic about Porto Rico, its people, and its possibilities. "It is a wonderful country," he said, "but we will have to go slow in bringing about reforms.

"Capital invested will bring large returns.

"When I left San Juan I was given a reception in the theater at San Juan, in which over 2,000 school children took part. They sang American patriotic songs and several of them delivered addresses in English. The same thing took place at Ponce, where there are five English teachers.

"The Porto Ricans are anxious for a territorial form of government, but the question is how are they going to get money if the customs duties are wiped out?

"With the exception of a few disgruntled politicians, the island is free from all ill will toward the United States.

"Of course, there is talk about an uprising, but there is really no danger of such a thing happening.

"To one man who came from Adjuntas to tell me of an uprising, I said, 'Go back to Adjuntas and dig many graves. Rise tomorrow and I shall order out the American soldiers to shoot the Porto Ricans down and fill those graves.' He went home and telegraphed me later that there would be no massacre.

"Porto Rico is the place for the capitalist rather than for the poor man. At the present time there are thousands of the poor class without employment. When I left there were 15,000 laborers employed on the roads at 30 cents a day, American money, under my direction."

Ian Maclaren Sails for Home on the Teutonic.

The Rev. Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren) sailed with his wife on the Teutonic today. He returns to Liverpool for the Lord Mayor's banquet on May 24, the Queen's birthday. "Being an Englishman, of course I am an expansionist," said Dr. Watson. "There are many expansionists here, though they don't appear to be as sincere as those who oppose that policy.

"The American anti-expansionist is the only consistent upholder of the constitution and traditions of the republic.

"In America the railroads can at will build up a town or ruin a city. This is too much power for a corporation to hold.

"The building of the Isthmian canal I am told is held in check by the railroads, because the water route to the Pacific would interfere with transcontinental traffic and lower freight rates."

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin sailed today on the Teutonic.

Drug Houses Latest to Form Amalgamation.

The latest consolidation of business interests to be announced is that of the wholesale drug houses. The promoters call it an amalgamation. They emphatically declare that it is not a trust. Ninety-one jobbers in the drug trade, east of the Rocky Mountains and north of and including Memphis and Richmond, whose invested interests are estimated at $17,000,000 and whose annual sales aggregate $60,000,000 have been invited to join. Seventy-five per cent of these now favor the project and have promised to come in.

The amalgamators expect that before the 1st of June 90 per cent of the trade will have been brought within the consolidation.

The glass industries of the East soon will be controlled by two trusts. The bottle trust has options on all the hollow-ware factories. The window glass trust will buy up the window glass plants.

Representatives of the $30,000,000 window glass combination were in Bridgeton today arranging for the purchase of the Cohansey glass works, the largest in South Jersey.

The new trust, which will go into effect on May 29, will own seventy window glass factories, and controlling over 93 per cent of the output in the United States.

Marie Dressler Faints While Playing Burlesque.

Marie Dressler fainted tonight on the stage of the New York Theater while doing her part in the burlesque of "Romeo and Juliet." There was a commotion in the audience, but the ushers assured everybody that the actress was all right and not in any danger. Miss Dressler plays Romeo in the burlesque, Sam Bernard is Juliet, and Walter Jones is Mercutio.

The skit went along merrily enough till just the moment when Romeo takes the fatal draft of poison. Miss Dressler held the vial to her lips in mock tragedy and fell to the stage, apparently dead.

The audience laughed its delight, and Juliet and Mercutio went on with their parts for a minute or more longer.

Then it is on the bill for Mercutio to hold up a sign, "For further particulars see William Shakspeare," while Romeo and Juliet steal out behind it.

But Miss Dressler did not rise at her cue. Then Jones and Bernard saw something was wrong. So, dropping the sign and lifting up Miss Dressler, they carried her out into the wings. Later she was carried into her dressing-room, where she slowly revived.

Actress Dies of Heart Disease Going Up-Stairs.

Mary Timberman, an actress, 35 years old, died today in the Sturtevant House while ascending the stairs. Her death was caused by heart failure. She had been stopping at the hotel for several weeks. She last appeared at the Herald Square Theater with the McLean-Tyler-Hanford company, and had also appeared in Shakspearean rôles, making her début as Lady Anne in "Richard III." in support of Thomas W. Keene, and afterwards playing leading parts with Mme. Janauschek.

Miss Timberman was born at Keokuk, Ia., and her mother is still living there.

Today after taking a Turkish bath she returned to the hotel and tried to climb the stairs to her room instead of taking the elevator.

William A. Jones Ends His Life in His Own Office.

William A. Jones, General Agent of the Empire Fast Freight line, at 381 Broadway, today killed himself in full view of the entire office. Mr. Jones was dead before the first of the clerks reached his side. It was about the noon hour when a woman called for him on the long distance telephone. She had bad news to tell him of his wife, a patient in a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn. She has been an invalid for years.

Mr. Jones turned away from the receiver and the clerks noticed that his usually cheerful demeanor was changed. Shortly after he turned on all the lights in his office, sat down at his desk, and shot himself.

The last thing the suicide did was to place a photograph of his wife before him on the desk.

Former President Harrison Talks of Dewey's Work.

Former President Harrison sailed for Europe today on the steamship St. Paul. Before the vessel left the dock he talked about Admiral Dewey and the work which made him famous, saying: "The things which Admiral Dewey has done and the things which he left undone since that memorable May day have made him as great a diplomat as he is a fighter. He is the great hero of the Spanish-American war and deserves all the praise which the people of the American nation can give him.

"He not only destroyed Spain's power but kept would-be meddlers from making it a triangular fight."

Former President Harrison believes the people cannot do too much for Dewey.

The Rev. John Noblock Stuart of Montrose, Scotland, who arrived in Boston last week, will preach next Sunday at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. It is said that the invitation to preach may be followed by the consideration of his name for the pastorate left vacant by the death of the Rev. Dr. John Hall, and recently refused by the Rev. Mr. Connell of London.

CELEBRATE NORWEGIANS' FETE

Thousands Attend Meeting at the Auditorium—W. J. Bryan One of the Speakers.

W. J. Bryan was both a spectator of and a participant in the celebration of the eighty-fifth anniversary of the independence of Norway by the Norwegian societies of Chicago at the Auditorium Theater last night. Norwegian and American sentiments, songs, and music were intermingled. Mr. Bryan delivered an address on "Our Adopted Citizens in Peace and in War." He said:

"Our nation, because of its material and governmental advantages, has drawn to its shores a multitude of ambitious, enterprising, and industrious emigrants, and these have brought with them the ideas and customs of their respective countries. Here in free America the process of comparison and selection goes on. So long as we believe in the omnipotence of truth we must believe that out of this clash of ideas and customs will come the survival of those ideas and customs which are proven to be the best.

"The commingling of the fruits of the older civilizations of Europe gives to our people as a whole opportunities for observation and investigation which, in other countries, come only to those who are able to travel abroad.

"In time of peace our naturalized citizens have contributed to the nation's growth and to the nation's productive power, and in time of war they have ever shown themselves ready to defend the flag on land and sea."

The speech of the day was made in the Norwegian language by the Rev. Adolph Bredesen of Stoughton, Wis. He pictured the celebrations of political independence as they occur in Norway. He recounted the events that culminated in 1814 in the political independence of Norway. Sweden, he said, was trying to dominate over Norway. The Swedes, he said, want the Norwegians to abolish their diplomatic relations with the powers and let Sweden control the destiny of the two nations.

Congressman F. M. Eddy of Minnesota, speaking alternately in English and Norwegian, told of the industry of the Norwegians in developing the Northwest States.

Music was furnished by the Bjorgvin Singing society, the Norwegian Glee club, the Norwegian Singing society, and the Norwegian Ladies' Quartet. The Norwegian Turners and the Sleipner Athletic club gave gymnastic exhibitions. The celebration ended with tableaux of scenes from Norwegian history.

The receipts of the evening, which will be given to the Norwegian hospital fund, reached $2,000.

WORK OF STATE G. A. R.

BUSY DAY AT DANVILLE DEPARTMENTAL ENCAMPMENT.

Parade Reviewed by Commanders—Chorus of School Children Sing Patriotic Songs—Strong Resolutions Committee Appointed—Gen. Black Refers to Question of New Members—Allied Associations Hold Session—Business to Be Transacted.

Danville, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—This has been the big day of the encampment of the Grand Army and 15,000 people witnessed the parade this afternoon.

There were 2,000 veterans in line. The Grant, Lincoln, and Thomas Posts of Chicago had the position of honor just behind the Department Commander and his staff.

The procession was reviewed by General Black and staff and Senior Vice and Acting National Commander W. C. Johnson of Cincinnati.

A large stand upon the public square held a thousand school children, who sang patriotic songs as the veterans marched past.

The encampment met in the morning at the armory, and the first thing was the address of the Department Commander.

General Black's Speech.

General Black reviewed the history of the war with Spain, dwelling with stress upon the sweeping changes that had occurred since the department had assembled a year before in the same place.

After speaking on the subject of peace for some time General Black took up subjects more closely related to the department and which involved the question of admitting soldiers in the last war to membership.

He closed with a description of the work done on the memorial hall and a tribute to dead comrades.

The Committee on Resolutions was made exceptionally strong this year with a view to avoiding resolutions of a political character.

The Committee on Resolutions is composed of Judge Crabtree of Dixon, Thomas J. Lawler of Rockford, George C. Harrington of Watseka, Benson Wood of Effingham, and E. A. Blodgett of Chicago.

Officers were nominated, but only a Commander was elected. John B. Inman of Springfield and W. C. Coffman of Champaign were placed in nomination, but Mr. Coffman withdrew and moved the election of Mr. Inman by acclamation, and the encampment then adjourned till tomorrow.

Women Relief Corps' Work.

The Women's Relief Corps met and the first thing was the report of the President, Mrs. Alexander, who was presented with a diamond studded badge, the presentation speech being made by Mrs. Jennie Bross of Chicago.

The rest of the session was taken up in hearing the reports of officers, appointment of committees, and the receiving of the committees from the other organizations, who brought friendly greetings.

Officers were nominated and the election will take place the first thing in the morning.

S. of V. Business Session.

The Sons of Veterans had their business meeting in the I. O. O. F. Hall, and most of the delegates were present when President William T. Church called it to order.

SUES FOR LOSS OF HIS WIFE.

W. D. Zimmerman, a Chicago Lawyer, Wants Damages from His Brother and a Buffalo Doctor.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 17.—[Special.]—William D. Zimmerman of 164 Dearborn street, Chicago, a patent attorney, has brought an action in the United States Court to recover damages for the loss of his wife and daughter by an alleged conspiracy engineered by his brother, Charles D. Zimmerman, and Dr. James W. Putnam of Buffalo. Zimmerman married Miss Fougner, a niece of Jerry Rusk, in New York in 1895. She left him within a month. Later he endeavored to have her sent to an asylum and hired Dr. Putnam to examine her. The doctor refused to grant the necessary certificate. In asking $65,000 damages the plaintiff charges that Dr. Putnam and Zimmerman influenced his wife to leave him and go to Europe, where she studied singing under Mme. Marchesi. Mrs. Zimmerman is now in Norway.

[William D. Zimmerman lives at 866 North Park avenue. He left for Buffalo last Friday, and said that he did not know when he would return. At the house it was said last night nothing was known of the case.]

REBELS KEEP ON RUNNING

AMERICANS CAPTURE SAN LUIS AND ADVANCE ON CANDABA.

Filipino Position at San Luis Captured Today with Slight Opposition—United States Troops Now Marching on the Filipino Stronghold Six Miles Farther North — Insurgents Along MacArthur's Front Retreat—Twenty-third Infantry Sails for Jolo.

Manila, May 18, 11:25 a. m.—Major Kobbe's column reached San Luis, eight miles up the Rio Grande, yesterday, meeting with but slight opposition. One man was wounded during a brush with the rebels.

At daybreak today the Americans began a further advance toward Candaba, about six miles up the river beyond San Luis.

The insurgents along General MacArthur's front evacuated their positions during the night time, presumably moving further up the railroad.

The Twenty-third Infantry has sailed on the transport Leon XIII. for Jolo Island to relieve the Spanish garrison there.

How San Isidro Fell.

Manila, May 17.—Fuller details of the capture of the rebel position at San Isidro are now at hand.

Colonel Summers' command, consisting of the Twenty-second Infantry on the left, the Minnesota regiment in the center, and the Oregon and North Dakota regiments on the right, preceded by scouts and accompanied by Scott's battery, first encountered the enemy two miles from San Isidro, the rebels retiring when our artillery opened fire.

Just outside the town a rebel force, estimated to number 2,000 men, was intrenched. It made a slight resistance, but quitted its position when our troops turned its right flank.

The enemy's loss was fifteen men killed and twenty wounded. Our troops also captured three prisoners and many rifles. On the American side, one soldier of the Oregon regiment and one of the Minnesota regiment were slightly wounded.

After capturing the town Colonel Summers' troops continued their advance, pursuing the retreating rebels for several miles.

Natives Returning Home.

Although the rebels still threaten San Fernando in considerable force, large numbers of natives, a majority of them being families with their household goods, are returning daily to the towns inside the American lines, at Apalit especially.

Many of the richer Filipinos are coming to Manila and laborers are resuming work in the rice fields. The latter show their respect for American sovereignty by removing their hats to the passing trains.

Owing to the bad condition of the wagon roads, the work of repairing the railroad is being actively pushed. All the broken bridges have been trestled and only a few excavations remain to be filled up. Trains will undoubtedly be running through to San Fernando in a few days. The only natives there are some Filipinos from Macabebe, who are trading with our soldiers.

Rebel Repulse Near Pasig.

At daylight today Lieutenant Hill, who, with twenty-five men of the Fourth Infantry, was concealed in the trenches near Pasig, was attacked by a force of rebels, who evidently imagined they could capture one of our outposts, because only a few shots had been fired by the American force. A few volleys put the enemy to flight, the rebels losing five men killed and a number of wounded.

The army gunboat Napingdan has returned here from the lake, having been disabled by a cannon shot from a rebel position near Santa Cruz, which broke its rudder post.

He has constant fighting, inflicting heavy losses and suffering few casualties; appearance of his troops on flanks of enemy behind intrenchments thrown up at every strategic point and town demoralizing the insurgents, and has given them no opportunity to reconcentrate scattered troops. Kobbe's column with gunboats proceeding up Rio Grande. OTIS."

Portions of the dispatch which have not been made public relate to future movements of the troops.

Hongkong, May 17.—Sam-Chung was occupied yesterday without any casualties.

Sam-Chung was occupied without resistance. The British troops found the gates of the town open.

The boundary of the new British territory was not otherwise extended. The villagers along the route welcomed the troops and seemed peaceable.

China to Resist Aggression.

Victoria, B. C., May 17.—According to news received by steamer today from the Orient, China will resist further aggression by the powers, especially by Germany.

Recently orders were sent to the Mandarins of all districts ordering them to concentrate what fighting men they could and prepare for war. The arsenals have been ordered to push forward the manufacture of arms and ammunition with all haste. The Chinese navy also, according to late reports, is getting ready for an emergency.

It is reported among influential Chinese that a secret treaty has been signed whereby Japan promises the aid of troops in China should Germany seize Shan Tung.

Arbitration Proposals.

The third commission will consider the proposals of Lord Clarendon at the Paris congress in 1856 for the intermediation of a friendly state previous to a recourse to force, the motion of Sig. Mancini in the Italian Chamber of Deputies in 1875 in favor of arbitration, the acts of the Berlin and Zurich conferences on compromise and mediation, David Dudley Field's plan for an arbitration tribunal, the proposals for an arbitration tribunal for the North, Central, and South American States adopted in Washington in 1890, the Marquis of Salisbury's letters to Sir Julian Pauncefote in 1896 relating to the conclusion of an arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and the terms of the ratified Anglo-American treaty and many similar documents.

M. de Staal will open the conference by summarizing the objects of the gathering, and expressing the confidence of Emperor Nicholas that the powers will support the beneficent work of the conference. After the appointment of the commissions the conference will adjourn for a week.

Plans of American Delegates.

The American delegates, it is understood, will carefully abstain from mixing in purely European questions, but will take an earnest part in the discussion of the application of arbitration and improvements in the Geneva rules for the protection of field hospitals, giving also special attention to the abolition of privateering and the exemption of all private property from seizure, except contraband of war, this policy being the same as that adopted by Benjamin Franklin in negotiating the treaty with Frederick the Great, and successively urged by Presidents James Monroe, James Buchanan, Benjamin Harrison, and William McKinley.

Pushing American Industries.

London, May 18.—The Daily News publishes the following dispatch from The Hague:

"The Americans here include Robert P. Porter and an agent of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, anxious to push American trade with Russia. The latter is bound for Siberia. The Americans, so far from regarding Russian authority as hostile to trade, believe that the extension of Russia's power in Asia would benefit American manufacturers. The presence of New Jersey harrows in Russian fields is only one of many signs that the Americans appreciate better than England the opportunities afforded by the Russian markets."

Czar Pained by Germany.

Berlin, May 17.—The Lokal Anzeiger today prints an interview with William T. Stead, who recently interviewed the Czar for the second time, in which the newspaper man is quoted as saying the Czar read with much pain the pamphlets of Professor Stengel of Munich University, one of the German delegates to the peace conference, who defended war, and declared that eternal peace ought not to be the aim of culture. The Czarina, it appears, also greatly regretted that the Czar's idea had found "such an unfriendly echo in her German home."

Throughout Russian official circles, it is added, Mr. Stead found a conviction that Professor Stengel's appointment meant a slight to Russia.

Delays Venezuela Arbitration.

Paris, May 17.—Owing to the attendance at the Czar's peace conference, to open tomorrow at The Hague, of Professor Martens, professor of international law at the University of St. Petersburg, and final arbitrator of the Venezuelan Arbitration commission, the meeting of the Venezuelan commission has been postponed for the present.

MYSTERY OF SUICIDE SOLVED.

Man Who Hanged Himself in Police Station Identified as John J. Williams, Jennie Meyers' Husband.

John J. Williams was the young man who committed suicide by hanging himself with his suspenders in a cell in the Central Police Station early yesterday morning. When he was arrested he said his name was George Watson. The police say he was a professional thief, and was out on parole from a New York penitentiary.

"The handsome woman who was arrested for shoplifting in Marshall Field's store last Monday and said her name was Jennie Meyers was Williams' wife," said Detective John Hanley yesterday. "They came here from New York two weeks ago. The woman is about 34 years old, and is said to be well connected in New York."

The inquest on the body of Williams will be held at 10 o'clock this morning.

AGUINALDO'S "PIPE DREAM."

CYCLISTS ATTACKED BY A MOB.

Three Riders Rescued by the Police After One Has Run Down and Perhaps Fatally Hurt a Woman.

Three bicyclists, one of whom had run down and probably fatally injured Mrs. J. Wisman at Oak and Orleans streets, last night, were attacked and badly beaten by a crowd who witnessed the accident. A fourth rider escaped. Before the mob was dispersed it was necessary to send in a riot call to the East Chicago Avenue Police Station. The wheelmen fled, but were captured later in the evening. They gave their names as follows:

George Bennett, 62 Larrabee street.
Henry Smith, 113 Larrabee street.
George Ellison, 72 Larrabee street.
Herbert Todd, 13 Larrabee street.

Bennett admitted to Detectives Sederberg and Keating, who arrested the quartet, that he had struck Mrs. Wisman. He claimed that he was unable to avoid the collision. Todd was behind the three wheelmen at the time of the accident, and he escaped before the crowd surrounded the bicyclists.

Mrs. Wisman is 65 years old, and lives at 4 Whiting street. She was crossing Oak street at Orleans at 7 o'clock, when the bicyclists came racing along Oak street at high speed. When she was in the middle of the street they shouted to her to get out of the way, but their cries confused her, and she stood still as the three riders came nearer.

The cyclist in the middle of the trio ran into Mrs. Wisman with terrific force, the collision throwing her off her feet. The bicycle passed over her head and the rider was thrown. Several men saw the collision and ran into the street and stopped the wheelmen. While Mrs. Wisman lay in the street unconscious they began venting their anger on the riders. A crowd soon gathered, and a rush was made for the bicyclists, who were thrown down, beaten, and kicked.

Policemen Sederberg and Keating were in Franklin near Oak street, and, hearing the commotion, hastened to the spot. The crowd raised the cry, "The police are coming." Stones were thrown at the policemen, and they were warned not to attempt to rescue the three bicyclists.

The policemen then sent in a riot call, and, returning to the crowd, began clubbing their way toward the bicyclists. Before they reached the three men, however, a man drove through the crowd in a buggy, pulled one of the wheelmen into the vehicle, whipped up his horse, and drove away, followed by the other two wheelmen. The crowd was dispersed soon by policemen who arrived in response to the riot call. Later the police took Mrs. Wisman home. She is suffering from a fracture of the skull and injuries to her back, and it is thought that she may die.

CONTEST OVER MASON WILL.

Litigation to Recover Property from Testator's Son and Daughter Directed in the Document.

A bitter contest is likely to be made against the will of Parker R. Mason, which was filed for probate yesterday. The document cuts off the testator's daughter, Mrs. Clara E. Steele, and his son, William Mason, with $1 each, and divides the remainder of the estate, valued at about $125,000, among the widow and the other two daughters, Angelina and Alice Mason.

The testament instructs the Chicago Title and Trust company, which is named as executor, to continue the proceedings begun last winter in the Circuit Court by Parker R. Mason against Mrs. Steele and William Mason to recover the title to a tract of five or six acres of land adjoining Sunnyside Park, now held in their names through a deed executed by Mrs. Sophronia Downing, mother-in-law of Parker R. Mason. Forgery in the deed transferring the property is alleged.

Judge Batten issued an order directing the Recorder to hold the disputed deeds subject to the order of the court.

HELD UNDER HEAVY BONDS.

V. C. Seaver and E. L. Beach Bound Over on Charges of Conspiracy to Defraud Chicago Edison Co.

After a three days' trial, in which the defendants introduced five witnesses in their own behalf, Justice Richardson yesterday held to the Criminal Court under heavy bonds Vernon C. Seaver, who conducts a restaurant at 86 State street, and Eugene L. Beach, at present an inmate of the County Jail. The charge was conspiring to defraud the Chicago Edison company. It seems that Seaver supplied Beach with burned-out Edison incandescent globes, which Beach would cause to be exchanged at the Edison company for new lamps, falsely representing that the exchange was for the benefit of certain customers of the Edison company where lamps had been burned out and needed to be replaced. The new lamps were taken to Seaver's restaurant and there used. Many hundreds of lamps were thus wrongfully obtained.

NEWSPAPER MEN FEAST.

ANNUAL SOCIAL REUNION OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS IS HELD.

George E. Adams Praises the Craft as the Conservator of Pure, Simple, Forceful English—Says Daily Papers Aid Art and Literature—St. Clair McKelway Speaks on Their Relation to the Times—Dewey Mansion Project Is Indorsed.

The sixth annual banquet, the yearly social reunion, of the Associated Press, was held last night at the Auditorium Hotel, where 125 members and guests sat at tables decorated with scarlet peonies and daisies. Responses to toasts were given by several speakers. Miss Alice Nielsen and the Weber Quartet furnished the music. H. H. Cabanis was toastmaster.

St. Clair McKelway's Address.

"The Press and the Times" was the subject of St. Clair McKelway's address.

"I wish in all seriousness to say," said Mr. McKelway, "that the press of the United States has, in the main, well served the country."

He said ninety-five out of every hundred newspapers had sustained the recent war, and that the few that did not, in part atoned for that by fairly and fully reporting it. These, he said, exhibited the not undesirable exceptions which illustrate the general excellence of the calling. He continued:

"The duration of our stay in the Philippines is prodigiously debated. While the debate goes on, we stay. If the debate coincides with our stay, I think it will be a protracted debate.

"Let us, as newspaper men, bear a few facts in mind, whether we like them or not. One is that the constitution is the constitution of the States and not of the Territories, except as it may be extended over the Territories by legislation. Another is that Territories unorganized by Congress are under the powers which this nation has, as a nation, and which it has without regard to its constitution. Those powers are absolute. In those powers are involved the right of existence, of defense, of aggression, and of conquest.

"The territories which we acquire may come within the rights of the constitution in the ways by law provided, but they can come in in no other way, and until they do come in or are brought in they may have rights, but they are not constitutional rights."

George E. Adams Praises Press.

George E. Adams spoke on "The Influence of the Press on Literature and Art." The art and literature of the coming century, he said, will find their best expression among the people of the United States. "The language used in this country," he continued, "is the strongest, richest, clearest language ever known among men. The press has helped it and will help it more."

Frank P. McLennon Speaks.

Frank P. McLennon of the Topeka Journal spoke on "The State of Old John Brown," and said in part:

"Actions speak louder than words. The real speakers of my own State are now in the Philippines. In the present war for civilization and humanity Kansas was compelled to work her way to the stars through difficulties. Transport after transport sailed for Manila. Not until the fifth sailing did Funston and his men embark for the Island of Luzon.

"Kansas has crossed the Rio Grande and is in the swim now. Kansas believes the Filipino is anxious for a licking. That is why Funston has a preferred position at the head of the column, followed by live matter."

General Anderson Is Heard.

The toastmaster then introduced Major General Thomas M. Anderson, who said in part:

"I feel that embarrassment which the old preacher from Wisconsin is said to have expressed when he made this prudent exordium. He said: 'Brethren, it is pretty difficult for me to communicate those ideas to others of which I am not possessed myself.' [Laughter.] Then I am somewhat embarrassed from the experience of my friend Captain Coghlan of the navy. [Laughter.] I learn from that it is better to know what not to say than to know what to say.

"Winter before last I was sent to Dyea, Skaguay, Alaska, with part of my regiment. I got there just in the nick of time to prevent our British cousins from taking possession of those towns. I refer to this because this is an important question. As possession is nine points of the law where there is any law, and the whole thing where there is no law, I wish to express the hope that our patriotic press will uphold our claim in the gateway to the Klondike.

"I had my first interview with Aguinaldo on July 1. The next day I cabled back to the War department these two sentences: 'Aguinaldo has declared himself a dictator. These people are determined on their independence.' I thought so then, and I believe so yet. There are some 200 leaders of this movement of the Filipinos. They wish absolute independence, because they wish to divide the church property, worth millions of dollars, and abrogate the Spanish concessions, so that they can reissue them for their own benefit. The mass of the common people have been told and believe that we are simply going there to take the place of the Spaniard and to enrich ourselves.

"I believe that if we send there wise men to carry out wise measures—honest, honorable measures—it will make the Philippine Islands as prosperous as Japan, convert the Pacific Ocean into an American lake, and redound to the honor and glory of our imperial republic." [Applause.]

Calls Anti-Imperialists "Cranks."

Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe was the next speaker, and, among other things, he said:

"There is a great division of sentiment in this country, or there pretends to be. There are a few cranks who are trying to show there is a division. The Filipinos are on our hands. The war has just begun. We have got to play our hand regardless of college professors; regardless of Edward Atkinson of Boston, or any other crank that there is in the length or breadth of this country." [Applause.]

James H. Eckels' Speech.

The toastmaster introduced as the next speaker James H. Eckels, who spoke in part as follows: "I take it that there is no one here but is of the opinion that public opinion is the real province of the newspaper man. And that is true, for from the printed word that comes from the printing press each day the man at the plow, the man at the counter, the man in professional life, takes in the greatest measure that which formulates his thought, makes his utterance on public affairs, and decides the manner in which he shall discharge his duty as a sovereign citizen.

"Upon great public questions it is to be said to the honor of the newspaper fraternity that they have unfalteringly discharged their duty in a manner which has best upheld the country in its times of trial."

Other Speakers Follow.

The address of Steven O'Meara of the Boston Journal was in praise of the Board of Directors of the Associated Press.

Harry Scott of Oregon spoke next in favor of expansion.

Melville E. Stone read letters of regret from Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal and D. M. Houser of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and said he had received a message of regret from Brigadier General Harrison Gray Otis of Los Angeles, who has just returned from the Philippines.

Resolved, That we recognize in the National committee of the Dewey House Fund a fitting body to which to send the funds secured by subscriptions to newspapers from their readers and through other sources, and that we commend the object and the method without reserve to the newspapers and periodicals of the United States.

PLAIN TALK BY BISHOP LEONARD

Declares Practical Polygamy Prevails Throughout the Country and Advocates Strict Church Laws.

Cleveland, O., May 17.—[Special.]—The Rt. Rev. W. A. Leonard, Bishop of Ohio, has created something of a stir by the declaration before the Episcopal diocesan convention that polygamy was being practiced all over the country. He made a scathing criticism of the divorce laws of the country.

"The good people of the United States are raising a great hue and cry," said the Bishop, "against the admission of a member of Congress who is a polygamist, when practical polygamy is being practiced all over this country. Things have come to such a pass that the flimsiest pretext is made the means of suing for a divorce. A slight quarrel or miserable lust are alike made means to this end."

Bishop Leonard then went on to say that he wanted the church laws made so severe that a divorced person cannot be remarried by an Episcopal clergyman. He admitted that the system he advocated would cause great suffering among many who are worthy and innocent of wrong intent, but the times are in his estimation so out of joint that the most radical measures must shortly be taken to provide against utter degeneracy.

BIG PLANTS ARE BURNED.

MIDNIGHT FIRE IN LUMBER DISTRICT CAUSES $260,000 LOSS.

John A. Gaugher & Co., S. T. Gunderson & Co., Rathbone, Hair & Ridgeway, and Louis Schaefer the Sufferers—Several Other Concerns Narrowly Escape—Fireman Martin Fitzgerald Has His Feet Burned—Thousands Turn Out to See the Blaze.

The lumber district was imperiled shortly before midnight by a fire which destroyed property estimated at $200,000 in the block bounded by Loomis and Laflin streets, Twenty-first place and Twenty-second street. For a time the high northwest wind threatened to carry the flames into the adjoining lumber yards, but prompt and effective work by the Fire department confined the fire to the block in which it originated. The firms which suffered and their estimated losses are:

John A. Gaugher & Co., planing mill....	$150,000
S. T. Gunderson & Son, planing mill.....	75,000
Rathbone, Hair & Ridgeway..............	10,000
Louis Schaefer, wood turner............	25,000

Gunderson & Son carried $30,000 insurance; Gaugher & Co., $125,000. Rathbone, Hair & Ridgway and Louis Schaeffer were also insured, but the amounts could not be ascertained.

The fire threw 110 men out of employment. F. M. Gunderson said his firm would rebuild at once.

During the progress of the fire Martin Fitzgerald, a fireman on the fireboat Chicago, had his feet burned by escaping steam in the engine-room of the fireboat. He was taken to the County Hospital, where his injuries were pronounced not serious.

Watchman Wullenberg was thrown down by an explosion of varnish on the second floor of the Gaugher plant early in the fire, and, becoming bewildered, was in danger of suffocation. Policeman Thomas McGinnis rushed into the building and rescued him.

Origin of Fire Unknown.

The origin of the fire was not ascertained. By some it was ascribed to spontaneous combustion among oils and varnishes in the Gaugher plant. Others laid it to crossed wires. The suddenness with which the flames burst forth suggested the fire might have been smoldering for some time.

The flames, which started in the northwest corner of the two-story brick mill owned by Gaugher & Co., were simultaneously discovered at 11 p. m. by a United States mail collector making his rounds at Blue Island avenue and Twenty-second street and by Louis Wullenberg, a watchman for Gunderson & Son. Each turned in an alarm, but though the Fire department responded promptly by the time the first company arrived on the scene the fire had spread throughout the entire Gaugher building. It was seen that the lumber district was in danger and calls for extra apparatus were sent in until twenty-two engines and the fireboat Chicago were pouring water into the burning building.

From the Gaugher Building the flames leaped across to the Gunderson mill, the second story of which was occupied by Louis Schaefer, and thence to the Rathbone, Hair & Ridgeway plant. By this time the Gaugher Building was practically demolished, and the firemen devoted their efforts to saving the other two burning mills and preventing the further spread of the flames to the Rathbone lumber stock, valued at $500,000, and to the Pilsen Lumber company plant. The fireboat Chicago, in the Pilsen slip, did effective work, preventing the destruction of the lumber stocks. Other valuable properties which were exposed but not damaged were the South Side Lumber company and the Soper Lumber company.

Under Control at Midnight.

The fire was extremely fierce, but was declared by Chief Swenie to be under control at midnight. Efficient aid was given by the employés of the Lumbermen's Protective association, who formed a bucket brigade 200 strong, and fought incipient blazes started by flying brands through the lumber yards.

"The wind from the northwest made the fire an extremely hard one to fight," said Chief Swenie, "and when I arrived it seemed as if the whole lumber district would be on fire in a short time."

The fire attracted several thousand spectators, who stood ankle-deep in the mud to watch the flames.

DESIRE TO RETAIN DR. QUINE.

Trustees of College of Physicians and Surgeons Unwilling to Accept the Dean's Resignation.

The resignation of Dr. William E. Quine as dean of the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons is still pending before the trustees, who hope Dr. Quine will reconsider the matter and continue in the position he has held for years. The faculty has passed a resolution urging him to recall his resignation, also urging the trustees not to accept it. The charge that politics was the cause of Dr. Quine's action is denied by Dr. W. A. Pusey, secretary of the faculty, who says Dr. Quine has been overburdened with work for some time, and felt that he could not do justice to the many responsibilities that had accumulated upon him.

Martha E. Chant Retracts Charges.

In June, 1898, Mrs. Martha E. Chant, a blind woman, filed a bill in the Superior Court charging Walter F. C. Arlidge of Meaford, Can., and Joseph H. Masters of Chicago with defrauding her out of her property—three lots and a house and $1,600. Yesterday Judge Brentano decided the defendants had managed the property honestly and Mrs. Chant signed a statement that her charges were unfounded.

A Plague of the Night.

ITCHING PILES AND OTHER RECTAL TROUBLES EASILY CURED BY A NEW AND SAFE METHOD.

A Remarkable Number of Cures Made by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

About one person in every four suffers from some form of rectal disease. The most common and annoying is itching piles, indicated by warmth, slight moisture, and intense, uncontrollable itching in the parts affected.

The usual treatment has been some simple ointment or salve, which sometimes gives temporary relief, but nothing like a permanent cure can be expected from such superficial treatment.

The only permanent cure for itching piles yet discovered is the Pyramid Pile Cure—not only for itching piles but for every other form of piles, blind, bleeding or protruding. The first application gives instant relief and the continued use for a short time causes a permanent removal of the tumors or the small parasites which cause the intense itching and discomfort of itching piles.

Many physicians for a long time supposed that the remarkable relief afforded by the Pyramid Pile Cure was because it was supposed to contain cocaine, opium or similar drugs, but such is not the case. A recent careful analysis of the remedy showed it to be absolutely free from any cocaine, opium, or, in fact, any poisonous, injurious drugs whatever.

For this reason the Pyramid Pile Cure is probably the only pile cure extensively recommended by physicians, because it is so safe, so prompt in the relief afforded, and so far as known the only positive cure for piles except a surgical operation.

In one year the Pyramid Pile Cure has become the best known, the safest and the most extensively sold of any pile cure before the public.

Nearly all druggists now sell it at 50 cents and $1 per package.

Address the Pyramid Co., Marshall, Mich., for book on causes and cure of piles and also hundreds of testimonials from all parts of the United States.

If suffering from any form of piles ask your druggist for a package of Pyramid Pile Cure and try it tonight.

CHICAGO QUITS IN THE EIGHTH.

After the Most Humiliating Defeat of the Year Burns' Men Start for Home.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Pittsburg, Pa., May 17.—[Special.]—For the first time this year the Cowboys received a severe drubbing this afternoon, and when the rejuvenated Pirates had done slamming the ball around the field, they had found Jack Taylor for eleven runs and many hits. During the slaughter of Taylor Billy Rhines pitched magnificent ball, and the big batters of Burns' crew could make but one stingy little hit, which, combined with a sharp bit of work by Everitt, yielded one tally and saved an almost inevitable shutout.

The day was dismal and the storm threatened to break at any moment, but held off until the downfall of the Cowboys was assured, after which came the deluge.

The only bright feature of the game was the wonderful throwing of Mertes, who cut down one man at third and another at home and saved the deeper humiliation of the rancheros. He made one other throw that should have cut a runner off at home by ten feet, but Nichols missed the ball and let the tally count.

The game was a walkaway for the Pirates. Donovan's crew started well, and, encouraged by success, fielded brilliantly behind Rhines. Rain fell dismally from the fourth inning to the end, but not enough to stop play, and the Cowboys quit of their own accord after the eighth to catch an early train.

Pittsburg started scoring in the first. Wolverton's fumble and two outs put Donovan on third, Clark drew a base and stole, and both came home on Williams' line drive over second.

In the second Everitt was saved by Clark's muff of a thrown ball and went to third on McCormick's hit. Connor fouled to Bowerman, who slammed the ball to second as Everitt scored.

In the second a gift started Madison. Ely singled and Rhines sacrificed. Donovan bunted safe, scoring Madison, and Beaumont's drive past third sent home two more tallies. Mertes was the hero of the third, a hard error by McCormick started Williams, but an instant later Williams tried to go to third on Bowerman's hit and was caught by Mertes' perfect throw. Then Madison doubled, but again Mertes, by a wonderful throw, shut Bowerman off at the plate, but Green muffed Ely's line fly and let Madison home with the Pirates' sixth run.

Rain was coming up and the Pirates tried to go out as fast as possible in the fourth. Donovan and McCreery both singled, then trotted down to their death, and Beaumont slammed away at a wild pitch and flew to Wolverton. Williams' hit, a wild throw by Everitt, and Madison's single gave the Pirates another tally in the fifth.

A double by Clark, a gift to Williams, and Bowerman's scratch hit filled the pillows in the seventh. Then Ely singled, and when Mertes shut Bowerman off at the plate Nichols dropped the ball. Rhines singled and Donovan walked, filling the bases, and McCarthy drew a base, forcing Ely home with the eleventh tally.

Chicago, seeing the utter hopelessness of the struggle, agreed to quit. The score:

Notes of the Game.

The team left tonight at 7 o'clock for home.

McDonald started to umpire alone, while Hunt and Connolly were loafing in Pittsburg, but in the second inning Connolly went on the field to assist him.

Clark robbed Lange of a double in the first. The big fellow jumped into the air and hauled down Lange's terrific line drive, falling backward in the effort.

McCormick is still suffering from the effects of the blow on the ear received in the last Cleveland game, and, besides, a serious "Charlie horse" is also hampering his movements.

An unusual incident was the demonstration tendered three old players once famous as Pittsburg stars. "Midget" Miller, "Jimmy" Galvin, and "Ed" Morris walked into the stand and received several rousing cheers. "Doggy" Miller was the center of attraction, and he had to take off his hat in answer. Miller was the guest of Galvin. He is en route to join Jack Glasscock's Fort Wayne club to play right field. Said Miller: "The way the game is played in the National league now knocks old-timers in a fit. Games are slow and pitching is not what it was when Galvin was in his prime; the base running reminds me of an ice wagon. Players do not grasp the fine points of the game."

BROOKLYN IN SECOND PLACE.

Twenty-four Men Take Part in the Game with Philadelphia, Which Hanlon's Men Win.

New York, May 17.—Twenty-four players were actively engaged in today's game, which was a combination of slugging, poor fielding, and worse pitching. Brooklyn made it three straight from the Phillies, however, and slid into second place. Brooklyn started off with a lead of 6 to 0, and the fifth inning closed with the score 9 to 3 in its favor. Then Hughes went into the air and the visitors scored seven runs. But the home team won out in the end. Score:

FEAR NOTRE DAME'S TEAMS.

Maroons Believe They Will Have Difficulty in Defeating the Indiana Athletes.

Coach Stagg is getting his track team into condition for the dual meet with Notre Dame on Saturday, and according to the latest calculation it does not appear that the varsity will have an easy time of it.

From present calculations the varsity has none of the field events won and can hardly figure on capturing the majority of the runs, for the Indiana delegation is stronger than Chicago men have figured. Powers, in his remarkable strength, has the strongest bid on the pole vault, high jump, shot put, hammer throw, and broad jump, and from his records made in practice recently in the discus throw he has a good chance to win and make a new record.

There is no one at the varsity who can approach him in either the high jump or the shot put, while his marks in the broad jump are much better than any of the varsity men can cover. In all it can be figured that at least twenty points will fall to his share and if he takes a place in the pole vault in addition it will be the largest number of points any one man has ever made in a dual meet in the West.

Chicago's strength will lie, as usual, in the runs and sprints. O'Brien with his peculiar short stride, which attracted attention at Milwaukee, will be a formidable competitor in the sprints, and while it is not figured that he will give Burroughs much trouble in the 220, he will nevertheless push him hard in the 100-yard event. Corcoran is looked upon as a bad man for Smith to go against this time in the mile event and it is figured that in order to beat him Smith will have to do his best.

In the quarter event Notre Dame has a big bunch of runners who will compete against the varsity squad. Stagg will have Slack, Pettit, and perhaps Maloney in for this event and will take no chances on getting beaten. To win the meet Stagg will have to take the majority of the points in the runs and then figure on seconds and thirds in the field events, which should put the final count of points slightly in Stagg's favor.

The hurdle events are an unknown quantity and Fred Maloney, Trude, and possibly Herschberger will be out to defend the varsity.

Chicago can figure on at least fifty points sure, but that will hardly win the meet. The seconds and thirds will be the points that will go against either team, and the fight for the places will be as hard as the fight for firsts.

The ball game is figured by the varsity men to be a victory for Notre Dame.

Notre Dame alumni in Chicago are preparing to give the college track and baseball teams a rousing reception when they meet Mr. Stagg's young men on Marshall Field Saturday afternoon. Secretary Mark M. Foote of the Alumni association has issued a notice to the sons of the gold and blue to assemble at the Tremont House Saturday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

Yale's Ministerial Sprinter.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—[Special.]—The Rev. J. P. Clyde, the mile runner who took second prize at the Yale dual track games with Harvard last Saturday, was graduated today when the commencement exercises of the Yale Divinity School took place. He will leave tomorrow to enter upon his duties as pastor of a small church in Iowa. He will not run in the intercollegiate games, and thereby Yale will lose a point. The Rev. Mr. Clyde's associates on the track team today presented him with a valuable silver loving cup as a testimonial of their esteem. He has been eligible only a year as a Yale runner. This spring he won the two mile run for the Fisher cup, took third in the mile run in the spring games, was one of Yale's champion four-mile relay team at the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival, and was second in the mile at the dual games.

Northwestern, 8; Knox, 4.

Northwestern defeated Knox yesterday afternoon in a fast game, 8 to 4. The grounds were in wretched condition and the batting suffered accordingly. Northwestern hit hard and often, but the quick infield of Knox covered more ground than that of any team that has visited Sheppard Field this season, and the ball not bouncing on the soft turf, most of the hits were captured. The umpiring also entered into the game and kicks were registered frequently. Meyers, the "southpaw," was put in to pitch for Northwestern, and in the four innings that he pitched the visiting team could get only two hits, and eight of them fanned out. Northwestern fielded well, but is still weak on the bases and needs considerable coaching in this line of play. The score:

Pennsylvania, 14; Georgetown, 11.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 17.—[Special.]—Pennsylvania defeated Georgetown 14 to 11 in a game at Franklin Field today that was played under the worst conditions in the history of baseball. The visitors lost through costly errors at critical times, the work of the infield being particularly ragged. They found Layton for sixteen hits, with a total of twenty-six bases, and every one of their eleven runs was earned—hard enough batting to win most any game. Layton, however, was steady, and, notwithstanding the wet and soggy condition of the ball, did not give a single base. The score:

Champaign, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—During the remainder of this week the University of Illinois baseball team will be kept busy filling its dates. Tomorrow and Friday the most important and probably the most exciting games of the season will be played, with Michigan, and the winner in either case will no doubt claim the Western college championship. McCullom and Johnston will be the battery for the home team tomorrow, and pitted against them will be Miller and Lunn for Michigan. Great preparations are being made for the interscholastic meet, and over 1,000 high school contestants and followers are expected here on Friday and Saturday.

Betrayed by a Snore.

Cleveland, O., May 17.—[Special.]—Louis F. Sockalexis, the Indian ball player, pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication in police court today. He was arrested in the Lyceum Theater last evening for snoring. A fine of $1 and costs was imposed against him. He paid it and went his way, promising not to drink any more.

DECIDE TO FIGHT ON JUNE 9.

Fitzsimmons and Jeffries, Through Their Principals, Agree on Details of the Battle.

New York, May 17.—[Special.]—Managers, promoters, and other officials connected with the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries fight met this afternoon at the Union Square Hotel and agreed finally on June 9 as the date of the big battle.

George Siler of Chicago was agreed upon as referee.

Martin Julian for Fitzsimmons, W. A. Brady for Jeffries, and Alex. Brown, John Dunn, and G. W. Cook, representing the new Coney Island Sporting club, were closeted in the hotel for two hours and came to terms on other details, as well as the date. It was thought at first that May 30 would be the day for the big fellows to meet, but no day in the year has more sporting events than Memorial day and the managers were afraid minor attractions might keep the attendance down. The men will enter the ring at 12 o'clock, noon, on June 9.

A discussion of the picture privileges and methods to be used for getting the best light occupied the greater part of the meeting. No definite action was taken, however, either in the matter of privileges and light, and whether the roof will come off the big building or the great searchlights will be used for the purpose is still a matter of conjecture.

Jeffries, with his aversion to hot weather, preferred to fight earlier in the season, but the refusal of the Police board to grant a license on the first application delayed matters to such an extent that even May 30 was too early for all arrangements to be perfected.

An air of serious business pervades the training quarters of both the pugilists. Fitz knows what a prodigious amount of pounding Jeffries can take and Jeffries knows what a lot of pounding Fitz can give, consequently there is no shirking of work at either place. Few bets have been made as yet, but some money has been put up and more offered on Fitz at two and one-half to one.

Sharkey Calls on Frank Childs.

Jack Bonner of Summit Hill, Pa., who is to meet Frank Childs at the Illinois Athletic club, will arrive in town tomorrow. His meeting with Frank Childs is likely to prove a hard battle. Both are 5 feet 9½ inches tall and weigh about 170 pounds. Bonner has in his record a win from George Byers, who defeated Childs, and once defeated Joe Butler, the Philadelphia colored heavyweight, although the latter subsequently showed he was much the better man, yet lost on a foul after having knocked Bonner down three times in two rounds. Tom Sharkey visited Childs at his training quarters yesterday and expressed a high opinion of the abilities of the colored man. He remarked that a man who could dispose of Armstrong in the way he did was certainly good, as Armstrong, in his opinion, was good enough to dispose of most of the Eastern heavyweights. He thought Childs would stand an excellent chance against Peter Maher.

Still Another Boxing Club.

L. M. Houseman has secured the Adelphi Theater at Wabash avenue and Nineteenth street and purposes giving a series of bouts every Thursday night. John Root and Dan Creedon will in all probability furnish the windup on the opening night. Other bouts in course of arrangement are between Billy Smith and Walter Bloom, Con Suffield and Young Glazer, Steve Crosby and Young Kenny. George Siler will be the club's official referee.

Tommy White Defeats Dempsey.

Pueblo, Colo., May 17.—[Special.]—Tommy White of Chicago was given the decision over Jack Dempsey of Portland, Ore., in their twenty round fight here before the Denver Wheel club. Dempsey had the misfortune to break his hand in the tenth round, but pluckily staid to the finish. White was clearly the cleverer and had a good margin to spare on points. They met at 128 pounds, ringside.

MAY BE THE LAST ROAD RACE.

Cycling Leaders Discouraged at the Lack of Interest in the Annual Event.

The entries for the road race will hardly reach a total of 300. Dr. George K. Herman, chairman of the Entry committee of the Associated Cycling Clubs, said yesterday the entries were not coming in, despite the reopening of the list for another week. John Siman has done some work among the members of the Pilzen club, with the result that fifteen entries are promised from the South Ashland avenue club. Other clubs, however, have not responded as was expected, and a small field is in prospect. The prize list is said to be growing, and the prospects are there will be more prizes that there are contestants, in which case each rider is sure of at least one prize for riding the Wheeling course.

The prospect now seems to point to the abandonment of the Chicago road race after this year. The clubs have lost interest in it. The Associated Cycling Clubs show no enthusiasm, and with the exception of a few of the veterans at road racing this year's race has aroused little attention. There are still several days in which entries will be received.

The leaders of the Associated Cycling Clubs are beginning to discuss giving up the race. That the annual Chicago road race of 1899 should draw fewer entries than either of the two Decoration day races of last year is a surprise and a disappointment. Especially is it remarkable considering that the Associated Cycling Clubs and the Cook County Cyclists' association, which held rival races for two years, have this year joined forces.

Chicago Cycling Club Races.

Entry blanks for the bicycle race meet of the Chicago Cycling club at Hand's track on Decoration day are out. There are six races scheduled, two professional and four amateur. This is the meet over which the club was divided when it came to a question of L. A. W. or N. C. A. control. The former organization won by one vote, so the meet is under Chairman Fred Gerlach's supervision. The events:

E. K. Hand Handicap, half mile, professional—15 per cent of gross gate receipts divided as follows: First prize, 50 per cent; second prize, 30 per cent; third prize, 15 per cent; fourth prize, 5 per cent.

Mile handicap, professional—First, $30; second, $15; third, $7.50; fourth, $5.

Mile novice—First, value $20; second, value $10; third, value $5.

Half-mile handicap—First, value $25; second, value, $15; third, value $10; fourth, value $5.

Mile open—First prize, value $25; second, value $10; third, value $5.

Three-mile handicap—First prize, value $30; second, value $15; third, value $10; fourth, value $5.

Many Interscholastic Entries.

Dr. George K. Herman, who is the chief representative of the Amateur Athletic union in Illinois, will leave on Friday afternoon for Champaign, where he will referee the big meet of the Illinois Interscholastic Athletic association on Saturday. He will have headquarters at the Hotel Beardsley in Champaign. He says everything points to the annual games having the largest fields since the organization was started. The entries from central and southern Illinois high schools are more numerous than ever before, which, with the teams from the northern schools, insures a hard competition. Half fare for the round trip has been offered, and this has led to preparations on the part of the Cook County High schools to take big delegations along with the track teams. Lake View, Hyde Park, and Englewood are the three rivals from Cook County.

Second Crew to Row Annapolis.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—Captain Fred Allen of the Yale varsity crew said tonight that the eight which would represent the university at the contest with the Annapolis naval cadets on the Potomac May 27 would be as follows: Stroke, Cameron; No. 7, Mitchell; 6, Olcott; 5, Cross; 4, Brock; 3, Auchincloss; 2, Greenway, and bow, Atkinson. This is the Yale second crew.

Sutton Defeats Catton.

George Sutton defeated William Catton at eighteen-inch balkline by a score of 150 to 120 at Green's academy last night. Sutton's high runs were 59, 21, and 16. Catton making 42, 25, and 23. The averages were: Sutton, 12½; Catton, 10.

French, German, and Russian coffee and tea makers; low prices. Dalton, 56 Wabash.

ROSADIAH AND IN DEBT.

TWO NEW NAMES ADDED TO THE WINNING LIST AT LAKESIDE.

Races for Two-Year-Olds Captured by Youngsters That Had Not Previously Won Brackets—Hosi Loses Through a Bad Ride—Prince of Melbourne Wins the Melbourne Stakes at Morris Park—Batten the Victor in Louisville's Star Event—Turf News.

Two 2-year-olds won their first races at Lakeside yesterday. Neither race was for maidens, and each had two youngsters among the starters which had won creditably, so that the victories of the new blood were quite unexpected and they were long shots. In both cases the odds on choice finished second.

In the second race, which was for fillies, and at five furlongs, Nina B. L. was the choice, with some support for Contessa and Chump. The winner turned up in Rosadiah, a chestnut, by Belvidere—Rose, belonging to C. B. Campbell, the Indian Territory representative. She never had faced the starter before and was a 40 to 1 shot. Getting away last, she gradually made her way to the front and won handily.

In the fifth race, for 2-year-olds, at a half mile, Indian was a top-heavy choice on the strength of his Southern races, although he was conceding weight to everything. Dr. Tarr, who won so cleverly on Tuesday, was second choice. The two choices and a brown gelding by Blazes—Miss Alice, with the plaintive name of In Debt, were in a close bunch at the sixteenth pole, with the boys all driving hard, and the crowd was surprised to see the outsider draw away from the others and win cleverly, while Indian defeated the Doctor for the place. In Debt belongs to B. Sellen and was at 20 to 1 in the betting.

La Princessa was an easy winner of the first race, for which Stockholm and Pitfall were mild choices. Papa Harry landed second after a long drive, with Pitfall third.

The third race was another runaway for Abe Fuerst, who was heavily played at 1 to 2. The ring, it was reported, lost considerably money. Hugh Penny finished second, although he ran an indifferent race under Caywood, getting cut off early.

Bad work by the jockeys was the feature of the fourth race, which was at a mile, with a fairly well balanced field starting. Caywood's superior riding landed Fred Barr winner in front of Foncliff, the favorite, and Hosi, the second choice, both of whom were apparently much better, but were poorly ridden. The ride by Trotter on Hosi was especially bad. Fred Barr is nowhere near himself and was lucky to get the purse.

The closing race was an easy victory for Kamsin, who was third choice in the betting to Mulvihill and King Bermuda, but was well played, and the ring suffered. Ezell's cripple won much more easily than he did on Monday and is evidently regaining good form.

The rain of the forenoon seemed to help the track rather than injure it. A rather small crowd was in attendance.

WON BY PRINCE OF MELBOURNE

Race for the Laureate Stakes at Morris Park—Algol First Home in a Sprint.

New York, May 17.—The light card drew a small attendance to Morris Park today, but the racing was good. In the Laureate Stakes the added horse, Prince of Melbourne, was the favorite at the opening, but the money came in with a rush on Withers and they were soon equal favorites, with most of the money on Withers. They got away on the first break, with Primrose Day in the lead and Prince of Melbourne close up. Coming out of the dip the latter got his nose in front and was never headed, winning with something in hand. Withers was never prominent, running as if he did not yet care for a race.

The fourth race was interesting because it was in the nature of a trial for the $20,000 Stallion Stakes on Saturday. John Daly's highly tried His Royal Highness, whose race in the Juvenile was not satisfactory to his owner, met Marcus Daly's Inishfree at a difference of five pounds. St. Finnan, a stable companion of Inishfree, and supposed to be the better colt, will carry the copper king's colors, and of course Inishfree's running would give a strong line on St. Finnan. Bromley & Co.'s Missionary, John E. Madden's David Garrick, E. L. Graves' Lamp Globe, and Thomas L. Watts' Lady Vricas, all eligible for Saturday's rich stake, were entered. Owing to an unfortunate start the race threw little or no light on the Stallion Stakes. His Royal Highness beat the flag half a dozen lengths, and, leading all the way, won at the finish by daylight. Inishfree got off far back and ran a strong second. The rest of the field was strung out far up the stretch.

PREMIER STAKES FOR BATTEN.

Rush, McDowell's Oaks Candidate, Starts in the Event and Shows Bad Form.

Louisville, Ky., May 17.—[Special.]—J. C. McDowell's good colt, Batten, today captured the Premier Stakes at a mile, worth $1,300. Mr. McDowell also started his Oaks candidate, Rush, and she gathered in third money. Prince McClurg split the entry, and Ways and Means, the only other starter, finished last. The entry was always favorite at 1 to 4. McClurg closed at 4 and Ways and Means at 12. Rush swerved at the start and crowded Batten against the inner rail before the first turn was reached, but the field was so small that the injury worked no real hardship.

Rush was rank and went away with the lead under double wraps, with Ways and Means second, Prince McClurg third, and Batten trailing the bunch. This was the order until the three-quarter bend, when Hill let Batten down and he raced through, and after a short struggle with his stable companion he assumed the lead.

Ways and Means already had enough of it and was dropping back at every stride. Batten turned into the stretch with daylight behind him, and Beauchamp had begun riding Prince McClurg and had him closely lapped on Rush. At the sixteenth pole Prince McClurg got a good lap on Batten, but he could not outfoot the speedy colt, who lasted long enough to win by a short head.

Rush stopped badly and was third five lengths back and a length and a half before Ways and Means. Many thought after the race that, had Beauchamp made his effort a little sooner, McAvoy's colt would have won.

This race should settle any claims Rush may have to the Kentucky Oaks. She is plainly not in the same class with May Hempstead, and if McDowell expects the big prize Saturday he will have to show another and a better filly.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP OUTLOOK.

Secretary McIntyre Says It Will Be One of the Greatest Races Ever Run at the Track.

New York, May 17.—[Special.]—Hugh D. McIntyre, Secretary of the Brooklyn Jockey club, said today that not fewer than fifteen horses will go to the post for the Brooklyn Handicap, which will be run a week from Saturday. This $10,000 turf fixture will be the greatest race of its kind run in many years.

No accidents of training have happened so far to the noted horses engaged, and nearly all would be ready to go to the post tomorrow. Among those in active training for the handicap are Ben Holliday, Peep o' Day, Algol, St. Cloud, Pink Coat, Don d'Oro, Banastar, Imp, George Boyd, Warrenton, Previous, Jean Beraud, Autumn, Thomas Cat, Filigrane, Fire Arm, and Greatland.

The 3-year-old horses have not been able in the past to run a mile and a quarter against aged horses in May, but there is no doubt that Beraud, Filigrane, and Greatland will have strong support against Ben Holliday and the other top weights on May 27.

On the same day the Expectation Stakes will call out a select field of 2-year-old horses, and the quality of Mr. Keene's Juvenile winner, Doublet, will be tested against the best of all the noted stables.

Match for W. H. Thompson's Yacht.

William Hale Thompson, Vice Commodore of the Oconomowoc Yacht club, purposes invading the East this summer with his new boat Avis II. He has arranged a match with Alfred Peats to take place in August on Long Island Sound. The New York boat is a 25-footer, fin keel type, and has never been beaten. Thompson's boat is a one-rater, built on the skimming-dish plan, and if it proves superior to its predecessor, Avis I., it will stand a good show of winning. The race will be over a triangular course, and the handicaps will be left to the arrangement of a club to be chosen by mutual consent.

Fifteen to See Shamrock Launched.

London, May 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton, the Associated Press is informed, has limited the number of guests at the launching of the America's Cup challenger Shamrock to fifteen. The date of the launch will not be made public. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha will have a private view of the Shamrock about June 7.

Another Match for Auchterlonie.

Members of the Midlothian Golf club have subscribed a purse to be played for by William Smith, professional of the club, and Laurence Auchterlonie of the Glen View Golf and Polo club. No date has yet been set, and, as the Midlothian course is hardly in shape, it may not take place for at least two weeks. Smith is a brother of Alec Smith, who was defeated on Tuesday by Auchterlonie. Last season he was with the Shinnecock Hills Golf club and finished sixth in the open championship at Myopia. He is credited with being fully as good a player as his brother and quite capable of giving Auchterlonie a hard contest. He has made the proposition to Auchterlonie that the winner take the whole of the purse.

BAXTER BOARD AT WORK

P. F. SCHAFFNER TESTIFIES ABOUT PROTECTION TO GAMBLERS.

Relates on the Stand His Experience in Paying Money for the Privilege of Running a Game—Story of a Tour of the Levee Corroborated by Sergeant-at-Arms Landers—Chairman Outlines the Committee's Plans—The Evidence.

Philip Frederick Schaffner, short, stout, and swarthy, was introduced yesterday by the Baxter Investigating committee as its first witness. The session began at 10 a. m. in clubroom L 38 at the Great Northern, and all the members of the committee were present. Schaffner's testimony related to the so-called "wide-open town," and particularly to gambling. His business in Chicago for twelve years, he said, had been gambling and bookmaking. It developed he had been gathering information for the committee.

The main point was to show through him that the gamblers who are permitted to run pay money for the privilege and for protection. Schaffner testified he had paid $25 a week for five weeks prior to the last Mayoralty election to "Tom" McGinnis, known as the "boss of the gamblers." J. R. Burres, attorney for the committee, conducted the direct examination. Assistant Corporation Counsel D. E. Sullivan cross-examined. He said he appeared merely to look after the interests of policemen and city officials whose names might be brought up.

A. S. Moekel, proprietor of the Logan View Hotel, 286 Michigan avenue, where Schaffner testified he had run a game, denied last night that there ever had been any gambling in his house, and asked the police if he could not get out a warrant for Schaffner on a charge of perjury.

Schaffner Tells of Protection.

Attorney Burres asked Schaffner how recently he had been in business.

"Some three or four weeks before the election. I ran a poker game," he replied.

Q.—Had you been in business before that? A.—I had a poker game in the Logan View Hotel, across from the monument, on Michigan avenue.

Q.—How did you come to go out of business? A.—The gentleman giving me protection wanted more money than I could make.

Q.—How much did you give him? A.—Sometimes half of what I would make and sometimes $25 a week. He asked if I could give $50 a week and I told him I could not.

Q.—When was the last time you paid $25 a week for protection for gambling? A.—I couldn't give the exact date. About five weeks before election. Mr. McGinnis came to me and I handed him $25. He wanted to know if I could give a check toward the campaign fund, and I told him I could not make any money, that I had no patronage.

Q.—Who is that man? A.—Tom McGinnis, proprietor of the Berlin saloon, and at that time supposed to be boss of the gambling element.

Q.—Do you know whom he represented when he came to you? A.—I don't know. I was never molested as long as I paid Mr. McGinnis.

Q.—For how long a time? A.—At that time for five weeks.

Q.—Prior to that had you paid anything? A.—Prior to that I made a handbook on the streets, in the hotels, in the Annex, the Auditorium, the Victoria, the Leland, the Wellington—any place where I could find a man willing to bet on the races.

Q.—Did you pay anything for that privilege? A.—I gave a man by the name of John Condon half I made.

Q.—Who is John Condon? A.—He had the race and book-making privileges, he and Mr. O'Leary, who formerly resided on the North Side, and is a well-known character around town. Most of the reporters know John Condon by sight.

Q.—This man McGinnis, you say, insisted on you paying him? A.—He asked me if I could give him a campaign fund check. I told him I couldn't—I had no money. "Well, then," he says, "you had better quit." As an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, I quit.

Q.—In support of what election? A.—I presume it was the Democratic campaign fund, as he is a good Democrat.

Q.—Do you know anything about his relations with anybody in the First Ward? A.—He had the reputation that "if you steal anything and get pinched, go to McGinnis; if you are in trouble of any kind and get pinched in the First Ward, go to McGinnis."

Q.—Do you know who his political associates are in the ward? A.—Only by repute—that he is a good friend of Alderman Michael Kenna. That is only by-talk. I don't know whether they are good friends or not. That is simply conversation among sporting people.

Q.—Do you know where this man McGinnis can be found? A.—I was told the other day he had gone to New York a few days ago. His place of business was open last night.

Q.—Do you know anything else, Mr. Schaffner, about this paying for protection? A.—Simply from conversation among the sporting men as having been shook down and getting the worst of it, and so on.

Tour of the Levee.

Schaffner then related in detail the results of a sightseeing tour made through the First Ward by himself and Z. A. Landers, Sergeant-at-Arms of the State Senate, for the committee last Monday afternoon and night. He introduced Mr. Landers as Colonel Brown of Kentucky, who would back him if he could get protection. They visited numerous places, where, according to both, gambling of various kinds was running "full blast," opium joints and other dens of vice peculiar to the levee district. Alderman Michael Kenna was reported as having informed them there was no protection for gamblers unless they have a chartered club with regular members.

Everything Mr. Schaffner testified to regarding their experience was subsequently verified in full by Mr. Landers. Their stories concluded the opening session of what now promises to be a somewhat long, wearisome inquisition.

Baxter Outlines Plans.

Chairman Baxter, before any testimony was heard, made an explanatory statement as to the duties and powers of the committee. In part he said:

> This committee comes here for the purpose of investigating the manner in which the delegated authority of the State is conferred on municipalities and for no other reason. It is not here for the purpose of promoting the candidacy of any man for office, and it is not here for the purpose of disparaging the candidacy of any man for office. It is here for the purpose of determining the truth, and the session of this committee will be open at all times to any one who desires to give us light along that line.

Schaffner on the Stand.

Then witness Schaffner was sworn. There were few spectators. The City Hall had a stenographer and several agents present. As soon as they got an idea of the program most of the latter disappeared. It was said they went to report so that machinery might be set in motion for defense when the time comes.

Schaffner said he had been long a resident of the First Ward, and thought he knew something about nearly all the wickedness going on in that division of Chicago.

"Have you made any inspection or tour of the gambling-houses in that ward recently?" asked Mr. Burnes.

"I have, sir, during the last three or four nights," was the answer. "I was accompanied by Z. A. Landers, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate at Springfield."

Q.—How much time did you spend that evening in investigating that section? A.—From between 2 and 3 in the afternoon until 12 o'clock at night.

Q.—Where did you go first in company with Mr. Landers? A.—The first place we went to was Alderman Michael Kenna's, Van Buren and Clark streets. It is known as a saloon and as a sort of headquarters for the Aldermen. I introduced Mr. Landers to Alderman Kenna as Colonel Brown of Kentucky, a man of finance who was willing to back me in a gambling venture, and said I knew a place over Kohlsaat's bakery known as the Marlborough club, and that I could get it for $50 a week. I asked him if there was such a thing as protection for gambling, and he said there was no protection for gamblers unless they had a charter and a club. I asked him if it was possible for me to get a charter, and he said: "You have been here long enough and you know the ropes pretty well. You know what you have got to do."

On the Rounds.

The witness testified that he went from Alderman Kenna's to a place in Dearborn street, near Madison, known as the Manila club, when they found George Fagely, "who," the witness said, "represents the place as proprietor and manager, or one of the proprietors."

Q.—When you entered this place called the Manila club, what did you see inside? A.—There were three poker tables and six or seven men at each table, and all going at full blast. I am positive Mr. Landers had never been there before. I asked Mr. Fagely whether there was such a thing as a membership to the club, and applied to him for a card. He laughed at me and said that was all bosh; that he admitted any one he thought was all right and would not squeal. They had a poker game there, and it was a $2 limit. I was given a card to the house, but no membership card. The next place visited was at 464 State street.

Q.—Who runs that place? A.—A John Johnson, better known as "Mushmouth" Johnson, the king coon of State street. The gambling-house is owned and operated by a negro and a white man. There are three floors for gambling. The saloon is in front, and back are the billiard and pool tables, and in the back part there is a "range game," on the second floor a crap game, which was not in operation at that time, and on the third floor a poker game with one table in operation. While we were going into the place we met a colored officer with a shield on from the Harrison Street Station called "Red."

Q.—Was he in uniform or in citizens' clothes? A.—He was in citizens' clothes. I introduced Mr. Landers to him and asked him to tell whether he thought it was safe to gamble there. He remarked that it was just as safe as if he was at home. While there I bought checks and played in the poker game.

The only conversation they had with the proprietor was when he assured them it was safe to gamble at his place. After leaving Johnson Mr. Landers and the witness went to George Prop's place, which is behind a barber shop at 270 State street.

Q.—It that a place for white or colored men, and who is it run by? A.—It is run by an English gentleman, an American citizen now, I should think, but formerly from London.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him? A.—Simply as to whether there was a game in operation. We went there later in the evening, between 9:30 and 10 o'clock, and found a poker game in full operation, with Mr. Prop sitting in. I bought $5 worth of checks and entered the game. A man called "Jew Jake" was also a player. I think he can be found on the levee most any time.

Sample of "Protection."

Q.—Tell any conversation you heard. A.—While I was sitting in the game an officer or detective from Harrison street, who is known as Woolridge, his partner's name is Schubert—Schubert and Woolridge are the detectives who have charge of the gambling from Van Buren street south, according to the conversations among the gamblers—Officer Woolridge came to the door and called the proprietor. The proprietor remarked loud enough for us all to hear that he had got a letter from the Chief of Police that afternoon saying that Woolridge was to report to the Police department, and that he had authority to run his game. The officer departed and the game ran on until a quarter to 12 and I quit. I left the game in full operation. I saw a piece of paper in an envelope which was supposed to be a letter from the secretary of the Chief of Police or his clerk or something.

Q.—Did you see the letterhead, the printing? A.—No, sir.

Q.—What else was said? A.—He said he knew where he was and that was all there was to it. He meant he had protection from the Chief of Police. I could not hear what the officer said to him.

Witness Schaffner stated that Hannah & Hogg's, in Madison street, was visited, and there a "Kelly" game was in operation in the billiard-room. He said there were forty or fifty persons playing and had their money in their hands where it could be seen. No conversation was had with the proprietors. From there they went to the Minden club, which was over Hannah & Hogg's, and was owned and controlled by B. C. Dicks.

Q.—What is his business? A.—Mr. Dicks has a poker game known as the Minden club; a swell one. We took the elevator that runs from the saloon to the clubhouse. I think there was five poker tables in operation and one game of hearts. There were thirty-four men playing. We entered without any interference whatever. The next place we went was to 113 Madison street, known as the Madison-Calhoun club, owned by G. V. Hankins and Harry Romaine. That is in the second floor back. We went into a private room and I introduced Mr. Landers to Mr. Romaine as Colonel Brown, and Mr. Romaine gave him a card to the club and invited him to come up any time. Next we visited a place known as Bachellor's saloon, in the Argyle Block, 3 and 5 Jackson street, patronized by men and women.

In Basement Resorts.

The witness detailed visits made to several basement resorts in the business center where men and women sit at tables and are served with food and drink. They found most of them keep open all night. In several they listened to both instrumental and vocal music, which is permitted until midnight.

Mr. Burnes asked Schaffner whether he visited the Manila club on Saturday night.

"I did," he replied, "and found there was gambling going on; also a game at 83 Madison street."

He could not gain admittance either at 121 or 164 Clark street, the "House of David," but learned there were games running at both places.

"Do you know anything about a handbook in operation at the Wellington Hotel?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, and also one at the Leland."

Witness Schaffner testified that games were running wide open on Saturday night at Johnson's, 464 State street, and Mock's, 2700 State street.

Q.—How about 430 State street? Do you know who is the proprietor of that place? A.—The sign reads, "Powers & O'Brien." The manager I do not know personally. Saturday night there was a poker game upstairs. Monday night they would not admit us.

The witness said he could not get into "Social" Smith's, 336 State street. At Tuckhorn's, 286 State street, where they have music, they were told the poker game was closed up. He said "Mike" Coughlin and Captain White, at 344 State street, did not seem "alarmed with reference to protection."

He described visits to the opium den under Sol Van Praag's saloon, "The Owl," 302 State street, and said Chinatown was full of similar places, but not open to casual visitors. He also told of several.

"Long and Short" Men.

The witness said he could do no business about "protection" with Alderman Kenna.

"Alderman Coughlin and Alderman Kenna are known as the long and short men," he said. "They have never robbed me, but that is the definition among the sporting fraternity."

He told of massage parlors to which the Sergeant-at-arms was taken. As to policy shops, he said the headquarters for policy was at 77 Clark street, and scores of agents go about soliciting people.

Under Cross-Examination.

Under examination by Chairman Baxter the witness said he could not tell how much protection money he had given when he ran gambling-houses. He said that unless protection was paid they would have to close, but as long as he paid his protection money the Police department never interfered with him, but sometimes he would be given notice to close and the party giving him the notice would tell him that he would be informed when he could open up again.

Q.—How long and how often would this spasmodic closing-up last? A.—Shortly after Mayor Harrison was elected the first time he closed them up for almost an entire year or more. They were allowed to open again shortly before election.

Q.—Who seem to be the moving spirits in the First Ward? A.—Mr. McGinnis, on poker, craps, etc., and John Condon and James O'Leary on poolrooms.

On cross-examination by Mr. Sullivan the witness testified: "I paid money to parties who were supposed to allow me the privilege of gambling. I did not give it to the Police department or the Mayor. I gave it to Tom McGinnis."

In the afternoon Sergeant-at-Arms Landers corroborated Schaffner's testimony where it related to their tour of the levee.

The committee adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

MAGILL TALKS OF SECURITIES.

Admits Loaning Large Sums on Unsecured Notes While Conducting His Savings Bank.

George L. Magill told of his early connection with the Avenue Savings Bank when called to the stand yesterday in Judge Burke's court. He testified the account of J. A. Roach was greatly overdrawn at the time of the failure. In many instances Magill had loaned large sums of money on unsecured notes to men who he said were his personal friends and he believed their paper to be all right. Amonk these was Le Roy Payne, whose unsecured note the bank held for $15,000. Another was the Seig Walpole Manufacturing company for $18,000. The bank held the notes of W. G. Waddell for $22,000, of which none was secured. The defendant will be called again to the witness stand this morning.

RIOT OVER MAN'S DEATH.

POLICEMAN BAGINSKI ATTACKED FOR SHOOTING BIASSO LEO.

Eye Witnesses Say His Act Was Not Justifiable—Dead Man's Brother Cervero and Frank Leon Struck by Bullets and May Die—Affray Takes Place Opposite Polk Street School—Victims All Italians—Mob Gathers and Is Dispersed by Bluecoats.

Biasso Leo and Cervero Leo, Italian brothers, and Frank Leon, another Italian, were shot yesterday afternoon, the first named being killed and the other two seriously and perhaps fatally wounded, by Patrolman John Baginski of the Maxwell Street Station. The shooting took place opposite the Polk street school, near Desplaines street, and resulted in the quick gathering of a mob of infuriated Italians, who were prevented from carrying out their threats of violence against Baginski and Patrolman Murray, who came to Baginski's aid, only by the arrival of three patrol wagons filled with police.

Reports of the incidents that led up to the shooting differ widely, as do the opinions concerning whether the shooting was justifiable. Baginski, however, is sustained in his course by his superior officers and has not been arrested. Several eye witnesses declare the shooting was without provocation.

The affray was witnesses by 300 pupils of the Polk street school and caused intense excitement.

Biasso Leo was 22 years old and lived at 196 West Polk street. It was in front of this place that he was shot. His brother, who was wounded, is 26 years old and lived at the same place. He received a bullet in his right lung, and it was said at the County Hospital he could live but a few hours. Leon was shot in the abdomen and his condition is considered serious.

Says He Shot to Save His Life.

Patrolman Baginski says he fired his revolver only after he had been stabbed three times in the back. His blouse shows the marks of three knife thrusts.

"I am detailed to watch things around the Polk Street School," said Baginski, in telling his story. "The Italians who live in that neighborhood are vicious. School children are annoyed by them, and I have received instructions from the principal to keep them off the grounds and steps. At 1:20 o'clock this afternoon five or six Italians stood on the plank walk leading up to the main entrance of the building. I ordered them to move on.

"They refused to obey and I seized one of them by the shoulder and started to take him to the patrol box. When I had got my prisoner to the fence the other men attacked me. I felt the knife go through my coat and strike against my buckskin shirt, which saved me. I was hit also in both eyes and on top of my head.

"Thinking my life was in danger, I drew my revolver and fired. I don't know whether I shot twice or three times. Three chambers of my revolver are empty, but I shot a dog yesterday and don't remember whether I put in another cartridge or not.

"I think I had a narrow escape from death."

"That you did, John," said Captain Wheeler, who had listened to the story. "That's a bad lot in that neighborhood."

Story of an Eye-Witness.

The Leo family lives in the rear at 196 West Polk street, and consists of husband, wife, and the two sons. A stantionery and candy store, kept by Mrs. Sarah Levine and Miss Minnie Solomon, is in front of the dwelling of the Leos.

"I was standing at the door," said Miss Solomon, "and saw the two Leos sitting on the garbage box in front.

Brothers' First Meeting in Years.

"It was the first meeting of the brothers for years, as Cervero had only come to this country a few weeks ago and Biasso, who is a farm laborer in the country, had just come in to see him.

"The young men were happy at meeting each other. They were quiet and disturbed nobody.

"Then the policeman came along. He said: 'Get off that box and get out of here.'

"Cervero does not understand English, but Biasso replied they were doing nothing wrong and were merely talking over old times. Then the policeman grabbed the elder brother and dragged him from the box. He was holding his club in one hand. As they approached our door a struggle took place, and the policeman threw his club into the store and drew his revolver. Biasso came to his brother's aid.

"Then the policeman fired at Cervero and both fell to the ground. As he lay on the sidewalk he fired another shot and Biasso fell. Whether he fired again or not I cannot say—I was too badly frightened."

Others Corroborate It.

"I stood by Miss Solomon's side," said Mrs. Levine, who heard the former's statement, "and saw the whole proceeding. It all happened just as she says. No one was on the opposite side of the street at the time except the school children, who were playing in the yard. I don't see how the policeman can say the trouble began on the school ground."

Miss Annie O'Brien, 194 West Polk street, was also a witness to the shooting. She says a third man was standing near the garbage box when the policeman came along.

"He took no part in the disturbance," said she, "and did not seem to know the other Italians. Yet when Baginski fell to the sidewalk he shot at this third man. I know the Leos well, and a better family does not live in the neighborhood."

Angry Crowd Gathers.

By the time Patrolman Murray arrived on the scene news of the shooting had spread through the vicinity and a crowd filled the street. The two policemen carried Biasso to the playhouse on the school ground. They sought a place of safety, for threats of lynching were heard. It was impossible to get to the patrol box then. After the wounded man had been placed in the playhouse, where he died in a few minutes, a wagon was called.

In the meantime Mrs. Leo, the mother of the boys, came to the playhouse.

"My boys are dead," she shouted in broken English. She upbraided the slayer of her sons and called for vengeance.

Mother Rouses the Mob.

This roused the mob, and a movement was made to attack the police. Just then the patrol wagons arrived. The presence of twenty-five men in uniform and a number of detectives awed the angry Italians, and they dispersed in a sullen mood.

School Principal's Version.

The Principal of the Polk Street School said she saw the affray on the other side of the street while she was on the playground.

"The neighborhood here is generally orderly," said she. "I have made no complaints about people annoying the school children or trespassing on school property."

Baginski has been on the police force sixteen years, and has a good record.

Excitement in the neighborhood was great all the evening, Italians gathering in groups to talk over the affair and to express their hatred of the police.

Policeman Murray said he did not arrive in the street until after the shooting, but found the citizens there wild with excitement and threatening to lynch Baginski.

SAYS CHURCHES MUST CHANGE.

Calamity Predicted by the Rev. J. S. Wilson if Clergymen Fail to Respect Humanity.

The Rev. J. Stitt Wilson preached from the Evanston fountain last night on "Personal Appeal of Jesus Christ," the third of his series of evening talks.

"Christianity," he said, "offers the only meaning to human existence and the only solution to the problems which confront the world. The twentieth century will see the abolishment of church religion, and if we in America do not seriously and honestly stand in the fear of God, and face the problem of human existence, and work out its solution soon we may expect a calamity as great as the destruction of Jerusalem.

"You must change your churches until they teach the religion of Christ. If there is anything in religion let us have it, and if there is not let us kick it off of the planet. The civilization of the nineteenth century is not in sympathy with Jesus Christ. The ministers seem to forget that a civilization that is no respecter of humanity must perish."

Only 2 Days More

On the last day of our history club, a year ago, we took over 200 orders for

Ridpath's History of the World and since then we have been compelled to decline more than 800 sales. After a year's effort we finally secured 200 sets from the publishers—100 sets in Half-Russia and 100 sets in cloth, but both at the same price—$1.00 down and 15 monthly payments of $2.00 each.

In a day or two, when all are sold, we will have orders by the score and people will complain because they procrastinated. Will you be one of them? Just a handful of Half-Russias remain.

LICENSE ISSUE IS DEBATED.

Corporation Counsel Hears Arguments in Hyde Park Beer Garden and Roadhouse Cases.

Corporation Counsel Walker yesterday listened to arguments for and against the granting of saloon licenses to Ed Smith's roadhouse, Fifty-first street, north of Washington Park, and the Schoenhofen beer garden, Fifty-first street and Cottage Grove avenue. John Barton Payne spoke for the Hyde Park Protective association, which is opposing the issuing of the licenses, and Attorney Kelly for the Schoenhofen Brewing company, appeared for the other side. Many members of the Hyde Park association were present as auditors.

Attorney Kelly contended that the ordinance of the Village of Hyde Park which made the strip of land north of Fifty-first street from Cottage Grove avenue to Grand boulevard a local option district had been repealed by a subsequent ordinance of the same village. Should this be held to be the case the Mayor could issue licenses in it the same as he can in any part of the original City of Chicago.

Attorney Payne quoted a decision of the Supreme Court in which the ordinances making prohibition districts out of various portions of Hyde Park were held to be valid and claimed it had a direct bearing on the case, as in this case the claim was made that these prohibition ordinances had been repealed in the same manner in which it is now claimed the option ordinance was.

In the matter of the Smith roadhouse the question hangs on whether the protest of the officers of the Home for the Friendless, situated just west of the roadhouse, is to be counted or not. If it is counted Smith has not got enough frontage consents. If it is not counted he has. The argument made against counting it was that the officers of the Home for the Friendless have no authority under its charter to pass on such an application. Mr. Payne contended that such questions affect the usefulness of such institutions as the one named and consequently are proper ones for its officers to pass upon.

At the conclusion of the argument both sides asked for permission to file briefs showing the legal points on which they relied, and they will be handed to Corporation Counsel Walker today. After he has gone over them he will give his decision.

THE FUND FOR ADMIRAL DEWEY.

"The Tribune" will receive, acknowledge, and receipt for contributions to the fund for Admiral Dewey, as suggested by the Brooklyn Eagle. These contributions will be forwarded to Ellis H. Roberts, Treasurer of the United States, who has been constituted also the treasurer of the fund. The money is to be used for the purchase of a house for Admiral Dewey in Washington, and the surplus, if any, will be properly invested and the proceeds will be turned over to him. "The Tribune" will make a contribution on its own account to this fund.

Admiral Schley is said to be one of the navy's best speakers. His speech aboard the Brooklyn at Santiago to Cervera's fleet last July is regarded by good judges as a model of naval oratory.

In view of the alleged utility of Caprine lymph in restoring youth to decrepit age, Miss Lilian Bell should withdraw her proposal to turn goats loose in Chicago's alleys to browse upon waste paper, tin cans, and discarded umbrellas. The goats should be permitted, at the least, to crop the grass of the parks attended by a Watteau shepherdess of the most approved pattern.

Queen Wilhelmina's beautiful "House in the Wood" at The Hague is the cynosure of all eyes today. The peace conference will meet in the famous "Orange room" of this historic building. Among the many allegorical figures upon its walls and ceiling executed by painters of the Rubens school it is to be hoped another one—the white winged dove of peace—may be added after this congress of nations closes.

Ohio politics is warming up as the June convention draws nearer, and interest in the Gubernatorial situation is increasing. The most remarkable feature is the comparatively quiescent state of the erstwhile stormy petrel of Ohio politics, Senator Joseph Benson Foraker. When he broods over the waves of political agitation like a bird of peace his old-time followers are naturally at a loss to understand what has come over the spirit of his dreams.

General Ludlow, in addition to the regulations sanctioned by himself and the Mayor of Havana as to the Havanese appearing in public in their shirtsleeves or smoking cigarets on street cars, is said to be planning to abolish the present names of the streets of the city and to substitute numbers instead. If there is no more sensible work for General Ludlow in Havana than is indicated in these so-called "reforms," the sooner he is recalled the better for American prestige in Cuba.

The Chicago career of the Ferris wheel is about to be closed, and it will probably next be an attraction at St. Louis' exposition or at Manhattan Island. Perhaps as a scenic attraction it will be missed chiefly by summer excursionists on the lake. The big circle of light served as a kind of lighthouse to vessels approaching the city and produced a novel effect. While always interesting to strangers and always impressive by sheer force of size it needs some scene such as the Columbian Exposition to reinforce its attractions. It is of too Brobdingnagian proportions for a summer garden with vaudeville attractions at its base.

Marchand is the hero of the hour in France. The ribbon of the Legion of Honor was presented to him as he stepped aboard the French cruiser at Djibouti, and he will be given a stirring reception upon his return to France. The French have a capacity for hero worship which often goes to waste. In the present instance, while it is certainly a great feat to cross Africa from the Atlantic Ocean to the Red Sea it is chiefly the Fashoda incident that made Marchand the idol of France. In the dearth of greater men an adventurous explorer looms large on the horizon. Moreover, Marchand is an immense relief from the never-ending Dreyfus affair, not only to France but to the rest of the world.

In Berlin last night thousands of women listened to speeches by Anita Augsburg and other woman orators in favor of the movement for peace, which today takes organized form in the conference at The Hague. The German women Cæsar and Tacitus described were of a different kind. They corresponded rather to the battle maidens of Valhalla. They accompanied their husbands and sons to war and encouraged and sometimes assisted them in the fight. The difference between the two types is not so great as might be supposed. Until war has been entered upon women generally disapprove of it. Once the die is cast, they are even more patriotic and self-sacrificing than men, and do not yield so readily to discouragement and despair.

Anti-Department Store Legislation. The Missouri Legislature has passed an anti-department store bill, and the Governor has signed it. The measure is much like the one which the Illinois Legislature has been asked to enact on several occasions, but has declined doing. Merchandise is divided into many classes, and all stores employing fifteen persons or more, where incongruous classes of goods, such as groceries and hardware, dry goods and jewelry, are sold must pay a license fee of from $300 to $500 a year on each class of goods. The provision that there must be at least fifteen employés lets out the "general stores" which are found in all the small towns and villages in the State, so that the law applies only to the department stores of St. Louis, Kansas City, and St. Joseph. Of course, the proprietors of those stores will dispute the constitutionality of the law. They will deny that the Legislature has power to impose special taxes on them, because they employ many men and sell many kinds of goods under one roof. The Supreme Court of Missouri is an able body, and its decision as to the validity of this anti-department store law will have much weight. If that court holds that the attempt to tax the department stores out of existence is not constitutional the opponents of these stores in this and other States will have to find some new way of attacking them. The most effective will be to undersell them. Low prices have built them up. Lower prices, if obtainable elsewhere, will pull them down.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S 80TH BIRTHDAY.

The celebration of Queen Victoria's eightieth birthday anniversary began yesterday in London with the dedication of the Victoria and Albert Museum which will remain as a jubilee memorial. As the Queen was born on May 24, 1819, it is probably the intention to spread the celebration over a week and make each day's ceremonies commemorate some event in her life.

In the dispatches of Sunday last it was stated that on the following day the Queen would visit Kensington Palace and that its rooms would be put in the same order that they were in her girlhood. As it was there she was born, passed her young days, and received the news of her accession to the throne sixty-two years ago on June 20 next, this visit must have been a memorable and pathetic one to this venerable sovereign. As the aged live in the past her thoughts in those apartments must have been concerned with the events which have taken place since that day when she was awakened from her sleep and met the Lord Chamberlain and Archbishop of Canterbury in her night robe to receive the news of her accession. She has seen eighteen changes of ministry. Of her Premiers only two survive, Lords Rosebery and Salisbury. The others, Melbourne, Peel, Russell, Derby, Aberdeen, Palmerston, Disraeli, and Gladstone, have passed away. The political program of her reign includes Canadian rebellions, Chartism, repeal measures, free trade, ecclesiastical controversies, reform bills, trades unionism, disestablishment, elective franchises, land reforms, colonial expansion, Indian rebellions, and more than one great war.

It is out of the domain of politics that the greatest interest attaches to Queen Victoria's reign. As she recalled the events of her girlhood and lived over the years that have followed she could have reflected that nearly all the useful arts which have changed the ways of living and doing and advanced the world's progress have been given to the world during her reign. The railroad, the steamboat in its complete development, and ocean steam navigation, the telegraph, the telephone, the phonograph, the submarine cable, the sewing machine, the mowing machine and harvester, the electric light and motor, and the great variety of electrical apparatus all belong to the Victorian era. In literature her reign has been as rich as that of the great Elizabeth. It has given to the world the historians Carlyle, Grote, Macaulay, Froude, Gibbon, Hume, and Kinglake; the novelists Kingsley, Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, Reade, Bulwer Lytton, Charlotte Brontë, Lever, Meredith, Black, Stevenson, and Hardy; the poets Tennyson, the Brownings, Hood, Rossetti, and a long train of satellites; the essayists Bryce, Harriet Martineau, John Stuart Mill, Ruskin, Matthew Arnold, Goldwin Smith, and a brilliant array of scientific and politico-economical writers, including such names as Darwin, Huxley, Herbert Spencer, Tyndall, Max Muller, Buckle, and Lecky. The list might be lengthened in every department.

More than sixty years of progress and prosperity is the harvest of this beneficent and almost exceptional reign. As Victoria rested among the scenes of her childhood in the Kensington visit the question must have occurred to her: "Shall I live to see another birthday?" The Psalmist says: "The days of our years are three score "years and ten; and if by reason of "strength they be four score years, yet "is their strength labor and sorrow." But beyond four score there is no promise. The Psalmist is silent. It is in the nature of things that Victoria must soon "be cut off and fly away," but she will leave the memory of a gracious, high-minded woman and the record of a happy and prosperous reign. All unprejudiced Americans will join with her own subjects in congratulating the venerable Queen.

Big Musical Profits. A suit has been brought in the Superior Court by Martin White of this city to recover $25,000 from Paul Dresser, the composer of "On the Banks of the Wabash," "The Letter That Never Came," "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me," "I Believe It for My Mother Told Me So," and other soul-stirring lyrics of a similar nature. White claims that the money is due him on a contract with Dresser, the former putting in the money and the latter the talent for the production of these gems. The Tribune has no knowledge of the merits of the case, but the statement that Dresser has realized between $200,000 and $300,000 from the publication of these ditties will create some surprise and should provoke the query whether musical education has made much progress. When Dresser can pocket a quarter of a million dollars for the sale of such songs and Sousa's monotonous two-steps return him many thousands a year in royalties what is the outlook for the composer who writes music?

FANTASTIC COLOR IN CITIES.

A couple of years ago Mr. Halsey Ricardo, in a London lecture, ventured not only to insist upon the value of color in the architecture of cities but to outline a course of treatment. His fundamental idea was that the interdependence and organic character of modern life demand a harmonious and properly regulated scheme of color in the arrangement of a city. Such an arrangement would make it possible to realize the true value of color, which can be done only when it is dealt with "in large areas and with broad effects," as, for example, in the treatment of a succession of blocks alike in color of roof and façade and in plant ornaments.

His idea further was that all items of special interest or importance should be distinguished by appropriate colors—that is, "the coloring in the main should be heraldic." This principle is already applied to a limited extent by the use of a uniform color for post boxes, fire alarm boxes, and for street cars or buses of a given line. One suggested extension to the idea was that railway stations—the city gates of today—with their approaching arches and walls, should be "lime-whited," since, among other reasons, the naturally eager visitor would most easily be apprised thus of his approach to his destination. So, too, "historical houses" might be rendered more recognizable and impressive by their distinctive color than by door plates.

"The brilliant posters on our boardings" are indeed a testimony to "our hunger for color," and the collections in galleries and museums, so seldom seen, are a sort of mockery of the daily life from which they "lie apart."

"The Medes built the Town of Ecbatana" with its "seven circular walls, one inside the other" rising up the hill. "The battlements to the outer wall were white, to the next black, the third scarlet, the fourth blue, the fifth orange, and the last two . . . silvered and gilt. This picture of a city banded with broad terraces of concentric colors suggests how different a thing to the human eye a city might and indeed may become under a smokeless atmosphere from anything that is imagined today.

Mr. Carnegie in Sore Distress. Mr. Andrew Carnegie made a mistake when he said he esteemed that man disgraced who died rich. The unabashed and persistent genteel beggars of two continents, learning his views, have swooped down on him, determined that he shall not die rich and disgraced. All the undeserving causes, and some which are deserving, have stretched out their palms to him. Corporate and private petitioners for alms are writing to him and knocking at his door. Therefore, Mr. Carnegie cries out in anguish:

> I am looking forward to protection in my highland solitude from the army of mendicants that every hour is importuning me for subscriptions to every conceivable object. Even were I disposed to accede to these applications for promiscuous assistance my resources for philanthropy have already been fully hypothecated, and bombarding me with further appeals is simply adding to the postal revenue.

There will be no letup to these appeals. Nobody will believe that Mr. Carnegie's resources for philanthropy have been hypothecated, when it is known that he is to receive over a hundred millions for his American properties. But were he to pay a 10 per cent dividend on all the applications made him those millions would disappear long before he was ready to die. The curse of open giving is that it engenders begging, and many men might be more generous than they are if they did not see the pitiful plight of millionaires who have given away some money. Mr. Sage does not have to fly to the mountains to escape beggars.

"CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED" IN HAYTI.

Before the anti-expansionists expend all their enthusiasm on the glorious possibilities of native self-government in the Philippine Islands they will do well to study the history of such experiments. The Island of Hayti is an instructive example. It is now almost a century since Toussaint l'Ouverture led a successful revolt of the blacks and claimed the principles of the French revolution for all classes and colors in Hayti. He became master of the island, and was to have been its President for life, but the French leaders treacherously seized him and took him to France, where he died in prison. His followers gallantly renewed the struggle, and in 1804 the independence of Hayti was declared, with Dessalines as Governor "for life." He lived two years. The ninety-five years since then present a record that must dampen the enthusiasm of the stoutest stickler for native "self-government."

Not content with the title of President, Dessalines proclaimed himself "Jean Jacques I., Emperor of Hayti." He was a cruel tyrant, and in 1806 he was assassinated. The island became the prey of several warring chiefs, and four years of bloody internecine strife followed. Then Christophe declared himself King of Hayti, but his cruelty caused an insurrection, and in 1820 he committed suicide. By 1822 the whole island had fallen into the hands of Boyer, who continued to call himself its President until 1843, when he was driven from the island by a revolution. The next year San Domingo set up a separate existence in the eastern half of the island, and the blacks of Hayti, left more completely to themselves, have sunk lower with each succeeding year. After a rapid succession of several dictators, General Soulouque was elected President in 1847. He made war on the other "republic," but met defeat. He was a superstitious and illiterate adherent of voodooism. In 1849 he assumed the burlesque title of "Emperor Faustin I.," changed the constitution to suit himself, and was crowned with great pomp. His despotism and his impudent robberies of the public treasury led to his deposition. Gerard, his successor, made himself as odious as Soulouque and was forced to flee to Jamaica after narrowly escaping assassination. The same thing has been repeated at short intervals up to the present day, when the head of this free people bears the significant name of General Tiresias—"Simon Sam." The President is no longer elected by the people, as he should be by the constitution, but is chosen by a legislative clique and by the troops.

In richness of products and luxuriance of tropical beauty Hayti is not excelled by any other country in the world. Yet a century of independence has left the people more wretched than in the beginning. Imported fruits have degenerated for want of care. The staple productions for which the island was once famous are imperfectly cultivated or neglected altogether. Only the rudest agricultural implements are used. Sugar cane grows here to perfection and so do coffee and cotton, but the agricultural interests are all backward, owing to the disorganized state of society. Mining, once profitably carried on, is now abandoned for lack of capital. Some mahogany and dyewoods are cut in the interior, but only on a small scale. In the midst of unsurpassed natural wealth the people are sinking into complete savagery.

Of the 550,000 inhabitants of Hayti nearly 500,000 are of African descent. These blacks are the lowest in the scale of all the American negroes, while those on the neighboring Island of Jamaica, under British rule, are among the highest. "Liberty," in Aguinaldo's sense of the term, has been a curse to Hayti. When the black rulers were not murderous and thievish they were so ignorant as to prevent all progress. They created large floating debts in the shape of paper money, which they failed to redeem. On their foreign loans they defaulted on the interest and repudiated the debt. These things killed even such industries as they had, until the so-called republic is now as abject as a central African tribe. If the logic of history teaches anything it teaches that Hayti would have been better off as a dependency of an enlightened white nation. Why does it not teach the same thing with regard to the Philippine Islands?

Secretary Long as a Tailor. The Secretary of the Navy not only tells officers where they shall go, but also what they shall wear. He is the arbiter of fashion. He prescribes the cut and color of a uniform and the amount of gold lace to be put on it. All the officers, from Admiral down to Ensign, have to get new clothes if the Secretary thinks they would look prettier if their costume was remodeled. The issuance of new fashion plates is dreaded by the officers, because of the expense involved, and there have been times when they have protested, respectfully but firmly, against changes which might make them more conspicuous when in full dress, but which would force them to have costly dealings with tailors. Such protests are being made now. Not long ago Secretary Long signed an order modifying the present style of uniform in some respects. It is not necessary to describe those proposed alterations. They would not be of much interest to Westerners, who seldom see naval officers in full pontificals. It is enough to say that they would force each one of about 2,000 officers to pay out $100. There are men in the navy who do not depend on their pay, and do not mind having to buy new clothes. With the majority it is different. The Secretary has heeded these protests so far as to suspend the enforcement of his order. Perhaps he will rescind it. The officers of the navy, having done so much good work during the last year, should not be fined a hundred dollars apiece in order that the fine sartorial tastes of the Secretary of the Navy or some one of his subordinates may be gratified. The uniform does not make the man. Neither Dewey nor Schley will be a better seaman if the cut of his coat is changed.

MAYOR VAN WYCK'S RETICENCE.

"No man on earth can call me to account. . . . The influence that controls the Mayor of New York is Robert A. Van Wyck." These were some of the overemphatic declarations of Mayor Van Wyck before the Mazet committee on Tuesday when Mr. Moss was asking if he did not take orders from and account to Mr. Croker.

Overemphatic language is usually like a boy's whistling in the dark. It betrays nervous fear, and nervous fear on the part of public officials in the face of inquiry has an unmistakable significance. Mr. Van Wyck's pretense that he made his appointments without reference to Mr. Croker's wishes is too silly to be worthy even of nervous fear.

His lack of frankness in answering questions was in contrast to the manner of Mr. Croker, whose naive admissions on the stand would form a most interesting chapter in a study of the psychology of the political boss.

The difficulty which Mr. Moss encountered in eliciting information from the Chief Executive of New York corresponds to the difficulty which any inquirer, be he citizen or stranger, experiences in an effort to secure information from the various departments in that city. There are cities whose officials are always ready in every reasonable way to impart explicit and detailed information as to matters in their charge. New York City under Tammany is not one of them, nor indeed is any city of that kind so long as its government is administered not for what it can accomplish in behalf of the public but for the sake of those holding office under it.

Another Soldier's Letter. A letter from F. E. Adams, Captain of a regiment of Washington volunteers, printed by the Seattle Post and Intelligencer, tells an interesting story. His company was ordered to clear the village of Paco of the insurgents. They did so with a will, although they were exposed to a galling fire. During the encounter a church took fire, loud cries for help were heard, and an insurgent was seen behind the iron bars of a window calling upon the troops to save him. The boys tried to loosen the bars, but failing in that they used their bayonets to dig out the stones under the window and succeeded in removing them and saving the man just as the roof of the church fell in. This is one of the letters the anti-expansion newspapers do not print, because it shows that the American soldiers are not murderers or assassins. It would not answer their purpose to print a letter like this.

THE REPUBLIC OF THE BODY.

Two Chicago professors believe or hope they may solve the problem of circumventing old age by the injection of "life cells" from the lymphatic glands of goats. Among some of the lowliest organisms the process of becoming young again—rejuvenescence as it is termed by biologists—is a common occurrence. The amœba itself never grows old, or perhaps it would be more correct to say that it is as "old as the hills." It is hardly an abuse of language to say that it is immortal. At periodic intervals it splits into two parts and each part goes on existing as a separate individual. Many of these individuals have, of course, died since the amœba first began to exist, but such as are alive at the present day are part of the primordial amœba which bisected itself eons ago. "Do you want to live forever?" roared Frederick the Great during a battle to some of his soldier who hesitated to advance to almost certain death. The sentence has been quoted as an example of Frederick's grim humor, but in the future it may be quoted as an anticipation of the discoveries of certain Chicago philosophers!

In a recent number of the Contemporary Review Dr. Woods Hutchinson contributes an interesting article entitled "The Republic of the Body," in which he develops the cell theory of Virchow which regards the human organism "as a cell state or cell republic composed of innumerable plastic citizens, and its government, both in health and disease, is emphatically a government of the cells, by the cells, and for the cells." He then describes the tissues of the body and assigns to the component cells their different functions in health and disease. From the ranks of the connective tissue cells "are recruited the whole army of those secessions from and rebellions against the body at large—the mesoblastic tumors, from the treacherous and deadly sarcoma or 'soft cancer' to the harmless fatty tumor." The white blood cells or leucocytes "are the great mounted police, the sanitary patrol of the body." "The moment the alarm of injury is sounded" or "the red flag of fever is hoisted" "the leucocytes come rushing out from their feeding grounds in the tissue interspaces" and "each one hurls himself upon the toxin or bacillus which stands directly in front of him." "It makes no difference if the first ten or hundred or thousand are instantly mowed down by the bacillus or its deadly toxins, the rear ranks sweep forward without an instant's hesitation and pour on in a living torrent, like the Zulu impis at Rorke's Drift, until the bacilli are battered down by the sheer impact of the bodies of their assailants, or smothered under the pile of their corpses. When this has happened, in the language of the old surgeon-philosophers, 'suppuration is established' and the patient is saved. The only thing that dims our vision to the heroism and the noble self-sacrifice is that it happens every day, and we term it prosaically the 'process of repair' and expect it as a matter of course. Every wound healing is worthy of an epic, if we would only look at it from the point of view of the citizens of our great cell republic."

In this graphic way the writer describes the processes which take place in the body both in health and disease according to the most recent concepts of the biologist and pathologist.

Lawton's Brilliant Campaign. San Isidro, the second capital of the insurgent Filipinos, was taken yesterday by General Lawton, and at latest advices he was pressing rapidly northward, leaving the enemy the choice between the mountains and the sea or capitulation. General MacArthur's division has been driving the insurgents along the railroad to the Bay of Lingayen, forcing them out of their strongest positions, while General Lawton has been sweeping around to the right, turning the enemy's position and driving them from one line of defense to another until they are now in the foothills of the mountains east of Norzagaray. General Lawton's campaign is regarded as a brilliant piece of strategy and will probably win him deserved promotion. Lawton is in his element in this kind of fighting, and with two such Generals as the hero of El Caney and General MacArthur in pursuit the Filipinos are learning some valuable facts as to the strategy and fighting abilities of "los Americanos." The shortest and surest road to peace is prompt following up of the retreating Filipinos until Aguinaldo's power is completely broken, and this seems to be the plan General Otis is pursuing.

Mayor Jones Pities the Unemployed Rich. Mayor Jones of Toledo says that "idleness is as much of a crime at one end of the social line as it is at the other," and that "the sons, daughters, and wives of rich men, who are wasting away in idleness, have my entire sympathy." They have, he says, as much of a right to work as the man at the other end of the line, who needs work to keep from starving. Everything depends on what Mayor Jones calls idleness. If every person who is not in business, who does not make things with hand or brain, who does not have to manage a factory or a store, and who does not do the cooking and sewing for the household is an idler, there are many in the families of rich men. It is fortunate for "the toilers" that there are. If the unemployed rich were to do what Mayor Jones calls "work" the army of the unemployed poor would be larger than it is. If Mayor Jones means that the sons and daughters of rich men are sitting with their hands folded, wasting away for lack of occupation or thought, as idle as Doctor Watts' sluggard, or if he means that they spend all their time in idle amusements which profit neither the mind nor the body, he is wasting a good deal of his sympathy. As a rule, the sons and daughters of rich men lead active, useful, and intelligent lives and do not die of moral or physical inanition. A certain number of the sons of rich men go to the bad. So do many sons of poor men—a larger percentage, probably. There are frivolous and idle rich. There are also frivolous and idle poor, who also enjoy their frivolity and idleness.

Before he takes the witness stand again Mayor Van Wyck of New York should apply soothing lotions to his temper.

"Well, I'm not," replied Mr. Pneer. "They have ruined a good coat for me."

THE NEW CARDINALS.

The next subject of Vatican gossip, now that the Pope is a little stronger, is the coming consistory, says the Rome correspondent of the London Chronicle. The Roman party has for a long time been pressing for more Cardinals, as the number of vacant hats is now fifteen. But the Pope has refused to be hurried. One reason is that he does not wish to promote two or three prominent officials who are ripe for promotion. Another is that the appointment of every Cardinal who is employed in Rome costs the Papal purse several hundreds a year at the least, and the Papal purse is depleted of late.

The vacancies will certainly not be all filled up. There are already two Cardinals "created and reserved in petto," but they need not be formally "proclaimed" in this consistory, for the Pope can always confer on them their full status, even on his death bed, by naming them in the presence of two or three other Cardinals. Besides these two hats, it is always customary to reserve at least two more. The number of creations will probably not be more than eight, if so many.

Of high Vatican officials there are three who are expected to receive promotion—Mgr. Della Volpe, the Major Domo; Mgr. Guidi, the so-called "Uditore Santissimo," who is an able man, holding one of the highest positions as an ecclesiastical lawyer; and Mgr. Genneri.

The Secretary of Propaganda, Mgr. Ciasca, ought to be promoted in ordinary course. As he is universally unpopular in his present office, there are many people who would gladly see him made a Cardinal, in order to effect a change in the great bureau which governs Catholicism in all the Protestant and missionary countries and governs it badly. But the Pope is said to dislike this blunt and vigorous secretary so much that he altogether refuses to give him a red hat.

The death of Cardinal Taschereau is supposed to give Canada a claim to a Cardinalate, which is also a favor to France; and the new Archbishop of Montreal will doubtless be one of those named. The French are also agitating keenly for the appointment of a French Cardinal "de curia" at Rome, who would probably be the able and wide-minded Père Captier, the chief of the Sulpicians, and this proposal is the more likely to succeed, because it is suggested that the French government would be willing, one way or another, to find the money.

Certain English names are also whispered, and there may well be another English-speaking Cardinal to take the place which Cardinal Howard and Cardinal Newman occupied; but there is certainly nothing settled as yet. The names of Dr. Gasquet and Father David have been mentioned. An Italian Cardinal outside of Rome may also be named, especially as the Archbishop of Florence is dead. Such a list of creations would give seven new Cardinals, of whom four would be Italians and three non-Italians, and some such general result is in any case expected, however the details may be varied for personal or political reasons.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT.

AN UNCONQUERED ISLAND OF MAN-EATERS.—News from Formosa that Stoepel, the daring explorer, has succeeded in climbing Mount Morrison, the highest peak in the island, gives but a faint idea of the dangers which he must have encountered. Known for centuries as the garden spot of the East, Formosa is inhabited by a race of savage cannibals which have been able to prevent more than a temporary settlement on the island by white men. The Dutch, the Spanish, and the Portuguese have at different times tried to conquer the island, but have always given it up as a bad job. During the early part of this century Formosa was known as "the graveyard of mariners," because once a sailor set foot on its inviting shores he was never seen again. In 1867 an American bark, the Rover, was wrecked on the island, and the crew was massacred by the natives according to their usual custom. The Asiatic squadron of the United States was sent to enforce satisfaction, and several landing parties were sent on shore. They met with a warm reception, however, and finally it was decided to try peaceful means. Seven officers took their lives in their hands and went ashore unarmed. After a conference with the natives a treaty was made, and since that time European sailors have not been molested. Formosa supplies the world with camphor.

OBLIGING MISSOURI POSTMASTER.—The most obliging postmaster on record lives in Bethel, Mo. RUSSIAN CZAR'S MODEL HOUSE AT THE HAGUE.—In the museum at The Hague, where the Czar's peace conference meets this week, the delegates may see a curious relic of Peter the Great, the most famous of Russia's rulers. It is really a monument to the penurious spirit of the great Peter and was given to the museum in the hope that the publicity would make him pay a large debt which he had fairly contracted. The present Czar has evidently forgotten all about the old insult to his ancestor. When Peter the Great was living in Holland, where he went to study shipbuilding, he was much struck with the neatness of the Dutch houses. He wished to carry back to Russia a model which might serve as an incentive to Russian housewives. Accordingly a worthy Dutch burgher was commissioned to reproduce in miniature a typical Dutch house. He went at the work in the thorough Dutch way. The most skillful workmen were employed. For the library tiny books were printed in type so small that it requires a microscope to read them. Silversmiths wrought with infinite care a set of plate small and dainty enough for fairies to use. Needlewomen embroidered a set of linen as delicate as a spider's web. In every part and in all its details the reproduction was perfect. It took ten years to build the model. When Peter the Great saw it he was delighted, but when he was told that the price was 120,000 francs he repudiated the whole transaction and refused to pay for it. The builder then gave the wonderful model to the museum at The Hague, where it has ever since been carefully preserved.

PROFESSOR EDGAR FRISBIE TO RETIRE.—On May 22 Professor Edgar Frisbie will retire from service as professor of astronomy at the United States Naval Observatory. Previous to entering the government service in 1876 he was professor of mathematics at Northwestern University. In the last twenty years he has made a great reputation as a mathematician and astronomer.

GOT $1,300 FOR ONE WEEK IN CONGRESS.—Congressman Charles F. Cochran of the Fourth Missouri District already has a fight on his hands for the renomination. Among the prominent candidates is Charles F. Booher of Andrew. Mr. Booher has already served one term in Congress. It was the shortest term on record, and Mr. Booher was paid for it at a rate which makes the salary of the President look small. In January, 1889, Colonel James N. Burnes, who then represented the district, was taken suddenly ill at his seat in the House and died within a few hours. His term expired on March 4, 1889, and he had already been reelected for the succeeding term. Governor Francis at once called a special election to fill both the long and the short terms. Mr. Booher was the Democratic candidate for the short term. He was elected, and on February 26 presented himself in the House. So short a time had elapsed since the election that the Secretary of State of Missouri had not yet had time to make the necessary certificate of election. Contrary to all traditions of the House, however, the rules were suspended and Mr. Booher was allowed to take his seat. He thus has a third claim to distinction, in that he is the only man ever seated in Congress who could not show a certificate of election. Mr. Booher served just seven days. Under one of the fictions of the House, which allows that a member elected to serve an unexpired term serves from the moment of his predecessor's death, Mr. Booher drew $1,300 for his week's work. He made one short speech during his term, voted on every question which came up, and did some committee work.

HERR HARDEN SUFFERS FOR HIS OWN SINS.—Herr Harden, editor of the Berlin Zukunft, who went to jail this week for slandering the Emperor, does not follow the usual German custom. Instead of hiring a "responsible editor," whose assignment it is to go to jail whenever the Emperor's feelings are hurt, Herr Harden appears to prefer to suffer for his own sins. And indeed his offense seems to be a particuarly aggravated one. After calling the War Lord a "Poodle Prince," for which he was at once arrested for lese majesty, he came out in the next issue of his paper with an open letter to the Emperor, "An den Kaiser," in which he took his Imperial Majesty to task for getting angry at the comparison. Later he lost his courage and printed anonymous attacks on the Kaiser and wound up his career by severly criticising his treatment of Bismarck.

RELIC OF THE BOOM DAYS—When Wichita, Kas., was a boom town, an extensive street railway system was built, with branches running out into what were to be the suburbs of the future great metropolis. When the boom broke the railroad suffered so severely in patronage that there were no funds for its repair. Finally the company became insolvent. Still the broken down cars were kept running over the rough and uneven rails. This week Judge Dale, in the District Court, declared the charter of the road forfeited, and granted an injunction forbidding cars to run. The evidence showed that the roadbed is in such condition that the cars are continually leaving the tracks, that the overhead wires trail in the streets, sometimes coming into contact with vehicles, that in some places there are breaks of a foot or more in the rail, and that when the cars do stay on the tracks they progress with a seesaw motion which is trying to the nerves of passengers. The injunction granted is a temporary one, and the case will come up for final hearing in September. Meanwhile the picture of life in a boom town, after the boom has collapsed, is a striking one.

DIED FOR HER NAME'S SAKE.—To every war since the revolution the Walworth family of New York has sent a son. One, General Walworth, was killed at the battle of Buena Vista; another was crippled for life in the rebellion. When the Spanish-American war broke out there was no male member of the family to go to the front. Only Mrs. Ellen Hardin Walworth and her daughter, Miss Reubena, were left. Rather than break her family's long record of patriotic service Miss Walworth volunteered to serve as a nurse. "If I cannot fight for my country," she said, "I can at least show in this way that the Walworths are still patriotic." She was a Vassar graduate and had no knowledge of nursing, but by working and studying almost day and night at the Saratoga Hospital she fitted herself for active service and was sent to the National Hospital at Fortress Monroe. Later she went to Camp Wikoff at Montauk Point and volunteered for service in the contagious ward. There she contracted typhoid fever, which resulted in her death. Now the girls of Vassar are to erect a tablet to commemorate her splendid patriotism.

MONUMENT SERVES TO WARN SAILORS.—On the Isle of Wight, where Lord Tennyson lived so long, a tall shaft has been erected which serves at once as a memorial to the great poet and as a beacon of warning to sailors. It is a tall and graceful cross, standing alone on the sea shore, and took the place of the old weather-beaten beacon, which was for years a landmark. On the monument is carved the following inscription:

"In Memory of Alfred Lord Tennyson This Cross Is Raised, a Beacon to Sailors, by the People of Freshwater and Other Friends in England and America."

Farringford House, Tennyson's seat, is closed now, since the second Lord Tennyson has gone out to Australia to serve the Queen. The shopkeepers of Freshwater complain that since the death of the poet laureate the business of the village has suffered greatly.

GREAT SHOW AT PARIS.—One of the most striking exhibits at the Paris exposition of 1900 will be that of the works of the famous Hungarian novelist, Jokai. He is to show a copy of each of his books in every language and edition in which they have appeared. As Jokai has written more than 300 novels, and as each one has been translated into almost every European tongue, it will be seen that the pavilion which is to hold them will not be a small one. He is now busy gathering the various English and American editions of his works. An English translation of his latest romance, "The Poor Plutocrat," will shortly be published in this country.

DEFENDS THE ENGLISH SPARROW.—The despised English sparrow, which a noted English authority has denounced in The Tribune as the "avian rat," finds at last a defender in Dr. Sylvester D. Judd of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. Dr. Judd admits that the sparrow has serious faults, but declares that he plays a good part as a destroyer of weeds. That this is no snap judgment or sentimental conclusion is shown by the fact that before publishing his views Dr. Judd examined the stomachs of over 4,000 sparrows, collected from all parts of the United States and Canada. It was found that during the colder months of the year the food of these birds consisted almost wholly of the seeds of noxious weeds. The English sparrow appears to be particularly fond of the seeds of crab grass, yard grass, two weeds which crowd out good turfmaking grasses, and dandelion. Dr. Judd admits, in conclusion, however, that the native song birds, which the English sparrow drives away, are even better "weeders."

One year ago today it was first reported that Admiral Cervera's squadron was making for Santiago de Cuba.

Dr. Waetzhold, an authority upon nervous troubles, has been collecting statistics which lead him to believe that neurosis and chlorosis in young girls are to be attributed largely to abuse of the piano and the violin. He says that 60 per cent of girls practicing under 12 years of age are sufferers in after life from nervous disorders.

Dr. Büchner, author of the famous book on "Force and Matter," whose recent death recalls the storm of disapproval and resentment which the publication of that work produced in 1855, belonged to a distinguished family. He wrote many other works popularizing materialistic philosophy, but none that attracted so much attention as the first, which, by the way, cost him his position as instructor and assistant professor in clinical surgery at the University of Tübingen.

Heinrich Kiepert, whose death has just been announced, was the greatest authority on the geography of antiquity, and his contributions are everywhere recognized as standard productions. He was a professor at the University of Berlin and published his most celebrated works while connected with that institution. His greatest work was his map of Asia Minor, and probably his best known work was a general atlas of the world, which is accepted as one of the finest productions of the times. His "Atlas of Hellas" was published in parts, beginning in 1840, and was an elaborate production.

THEIR TALK OF CREEDS.

CONGREGATIONAL DELEGATES HOLD DEBATE ON ORTHODOXY.

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus of Chicago Tells State Society That Divine Inspiration Was Not Confined to the Writers of the Scriptures—Declares Lincoln, Tennyson, and Wesley Were Moved by the Divine Spirit—Business of the Convention.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Kewanee, Ill., May 17.—[Special.]—Theological discussions have been the feature of today's session of the Illinois Congregational association. Professor McKenzie began it by raising a torrent of discussion over the question of creeds, and Dr. Gunsaulus ended it with an address upon orthodoxy. The first question hinged upon whether a creed was a testimony of faith or a test of it, and ended with a provision for a debate upon this subject next year, which may end in the adoption of a fixed formula for the confessions of faith.

Dr. Gunsaulus' address last evening had for its title "The Guarantee of Orthodoxy," and in it he directly detracted from the belief in the scriptures of the Old Testament as the direct sacred words of God.

Professor W. D. McKenzie of the Chicago Theological Seminary spoke at the afternoon session. His address was upon "Creeds as a Test of Church Membership."

Professor McKenzie's Creed.

He then summed up that for which he believed Congregationalism stood, as follows:

1. The church consists of those who believe truly in Christ Jesus as Savior and Lord and seek to do his will.
2. The church is directly responsible to Christ alone for all its life work and teachings.
3. No other test than that of Christian faith should be applied to any one seeking to enter the church, if he manifests a reasonable evidence of personal belief in Jesus Christ, as his Savior and Lord.
4. These churches are in fellowship with one another without further test.

This, he said, is what our church actually lives upon here, although many think it otherwise. Jesus Christ is the judge of those who teach false doctrine and of those who receive it. Consistent and permanent orthodoxy comes from permanent and persistent belief and allegiance to him as the Savior and King of every man.

Address by Dr. Gunsaulus.

Dr. Gunsaulus' address was the feature of the evening session. He said in part:

We are continually reminded that what is called orthodoxy today has not always been orthodox. It is the result of a long process of evolution and growth. The guarantee of orthodoxy is the divine guarantor himself. It is safe only as the power and process of growth assimilate to the truths to which the human mind comes in the progress of the spirit of man. The guide of man's spirit is not the Bible, the vision of the divine Messiah, or the church, but the ever present spirit of God himself. The gospel of Jesus Christ was never considered secure except in its consummation—the gift of the holy spirit.

There is as much inspiration in the songs of the Wesleys as in the psalms of David. The man must believe God has vacated his throne who does not feel that the inspiration in Lincoln's soul when he wrote the emancipation proclamation was greater than that under which Joshua commanded the massacre of a prostrate foe.

Business Is Transacted.

The association has been busy all day with regular business, under the Moderatorship of Thomas C. MacMillan. The invitation of the Second Congregational Church of Oak Park was accepted and the association will hold its sessions there next May. The office of the registrar was lengthened to three years, and his title changed to secretary. Delegates were announced to the international council to be held in London, as follows:

Ministerial—The Rev. J. M. Campbell of Lombard, the Rev. H. M. Scott of Chicago, the Rev. William E. Barton of Oak Park, the Rev. J. F. Loba, Evanston.

Alternates—The Rev. S. H. Dana of Quincy, the Rev. W. H. Day of Aurora, the Rev. H. K. Painter of Galva, and the Rev. Theodore Crowl of Sterling.

Lay—Dr. J. E. Bradley of Jacksonville, General W. H. Howard, E. H. Pitkin, T. C. MacMillan of Chicago.

Alternates—J. R. Bennett, G. H. Boyden of Sheffield, L. D. Wishard of Chicago, and H. T. Lay of Kewanee.

Pass Series of Resolutions.

In the adoption of resolutions, the Illinois Ministerial Relief association was commended. Members were exhorted to refrain from membership in clubs where liquor is sold or gambling permitted; the President of the United States was urged to secure the reenactment of the rule prohibiting the sale of liquor to soldiers in forts or camps. Other resolutions are:

Resolved, That we express to President McKinley our implicit confidence in his Christian statesmanship, and thank him for the unswerving fidelity with which he has held our country to its lofty and philanthropic aims.

Resolved, That we express our hearty sympathy with the aims of the International Peace congress, now in session at The Hague.

The meeting of the association will close tomorrow afternoon.

GENERAL NEWS OF RAILWAYS.

Another Attempt to Reorganize the Western Passenger Association Blocked by Union Pacific.

Western General Passenger Agents met at the Great Northern Building yesterday to give further consideration to the proposed reorganization of the Western Passenger association. The Union Pacific, for the first time since the movement was started, was represented by its General Passenger Agent, but he made no concessions. The Union Pacific still opposes the proposition to have the association cover all the territory between Chicago and the Rocky Mountains. It wants one organization east and one west of the Missouri River. The Santa Fé, the Burlington, and the Rock Island roads, which have lines running from Chicago to Colorado common points, refuse to become members of two associations and insist there shall be but one association.

VIOLATING THE CITY SMOKE ORDINANCE.

Roof garden of smoking chimneys on the office building of John Borden, 84 to 90 State street. Sketched from the Kranz Building at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Another serious problem to be solved is the question of what shall be considered immigrant business. The lines which support the clearing-house maintain that all steerage business is immigrant business and should be handled by the immigrant clearing-house in New York. The Union Pacific, on the other hand, insists that there is a good proportion of steerage business which never was intended to be placed under the control of the clearing-house. This means that the Union Pacific will not join the clearing-house unless it can continue to do an independent business with Peter McDonell and other New York immigrant agents who are doing their best to break up the clearing-house.

The annual convention of the International Association of Railroad Ticket Agents will be held at Atlanta, Ga., next spring. Officers and committees of the association met in the Grand Pacific Hotel yesterday to arrange the details for that occasion. Representatives of the roads between Chicago and Atlanta were present and offered the courtesies of their roads. A proposition to reduce the membership fees from $10 to $5 was considered, but action in the matter was deferred.

The Reorganization committee of the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis railway company announces that more than 87 per cent of the first mortgage bonds and a large majority of each other class of securities have been deposited, and the plan and agreement are declared effective and binding. Non-depositing security-holders have until May 20 to deposit their securities, after which they will be received only on such terms as may be imposed by the committee.

Excursion rates at a fare and one-third for the round trip have been granted by the Central Passenger association lines for the following occasions: Indiana State Medical society, Indianapolis, Ind., June 1 and 2, from points in Indiana; National Association of Credit Men, Buffalo, N. Y., June 6 to 8; Independent Order of Good Templars, Supreme Lodge, biennial session, Toronto, Ont., June 27 to July 5.

The Western Trunk Line committee has agreed to make the rates on export provision shipments the same as on domestic business. Similar action as regards grain shipments will be considered at the regular meeting of the committee today.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

The Chicago Underwriters' association held an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon and elected R. M. Bissell Vice President pro tem. in place of R. W. Hosmer, who is abroad. There was some little excitement over the election prior to the time of the meeting, although the balloting itself passed off quietly enough. The street railway agents held a caucus during the morning and decided to put up a candidate of their own for the place. S. A. Rothermel was selected and at the meeting Fred S. James placed him in nomination. Mr. Bissell was then nominated and elected by a vote of 32 to 19. The association also defeated the proposed amendment providing that foreign members should not have the right to pay commissions to outside brokers, a privilege denied to regular members. An amendment was passed defining district No. 1 in so far as it applies to the Union Stock-Yards. This district comes under the jurisdiction of No. 1 agents and class 2 agents may not write in it, but it is proposed to except preferred risks. There are forty-six of these in Ashland avenue and eight in Halsted street. A proposition to add 1 per cent to the rate on grain elevators that contain grain driers was referred to a special committee of three, which will consult with the Superintendent of Ratings. Two elevators in the city—Central Elevator "A" and Nebraska Elevator "D"—have these driers. President Pellet has not yet appointed the committee, which will report at the next quarterly meeting. The association adjourned sine die.

The Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin says: "The feeling is gaining ground in local underwriting circles that the present tariff rates of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange are inadequate. The heavy losses of late, including the Windsor Hotel fire, have exhausted a large amount of premiums, and a number of managers would like to see a more liberal income over their counters now. They do not like a procrastinating policy and think the public would take the advance better now than later, when the fires are forgotten. Their view is that an increase is necessary and must come, and they would like to see it soon. The cutting off of the 30 per cent and 10 per cent reductions has been talked of as the most feasible way of bettering local premium incomes."

Louisville, Ky., May 17.—[Special.]—The fourth annual convention of the Kentucky Underwriters' association was begun today. The annual report of President Robinson recommended a campaign of education as the best defense of insurance interests in Kentucky when the companies are being prosecuted under the anti-trust law. Officers were elected as follows: President, A. H. Robinson, Louisville; First Vice President, A. L. Weil, Paducah; Secretary and Treasurer, D. M. MacPherson, Louisville; delegates to the national convention, G. A. Armstrong, A. G. Simrall, and Alfred Pirtle. The Grievance committee recommended boycotting the following companies for running "dummy" agencies at Cincinnati: British-American, Queen Western (Toronto), Agricultural, American (Man.), Atlas, Magdeburg, Mercantile, North German, Transatlantic, and Pennsylvania.

STUDY POLICE PROBLEM.

MAZET COMMITTEE HAS A DAY OF STUBBORN WITNESSES.

Poolrooms Said to Be Running with Knowledge of Department—Mr. Mahoney, a Bookmaker, Takes Refuge Behind "Private Business" Plea—Commissioner Hess Frankly Admits He Voted to Oust McCullagh in Order to Hold His Place.

New York, May 17.—The Mazet investigating committee resumed its sessions here today. Thomas L. Hamilton, formerly a Police Commissioner, and who was yesterday denounced by Mayor Van Wyck as a blackmailer, was the first witness.

He testified that no police reason was assigned for the retirement of Chief McCullagh, nor was there any accusation or suggestion of inefficiency made against him at the meetings of the board. He denied the statement by Mayor Van Wyck yesterday that he had used his official position to coerce the Casino into the payment of a bill.

Tells of Poolroom Losses.

Philip Cohen, who had lost money in poolrooms and made complaint to the police—first to a sergeant and then to an inspector—told the committee of the trouble he had in procuring a warrant for the arrest of the keeper of one of the rooms, and that when the warrant was finally issued that the police claimed to have no power to enter the place by force, so that when the proprietor was arrested there was no evidence upon which to convict him.

Reports Poolrooms Running.

John R. Wood testified that as an agent for Counsel Moss he had been in 125 poolrooms and had procured evidence against all of them. In many of the places all kinds of gambling games were in progress, such as faro, poker, and craps.

This witness swore also that while Cohen was testifying he heard Chief of Police Devery speak contemptuously of that witness, and tell a man whom he addressed as "English" to look up his record and ascertain if he had ever been arrested.

J. A. Mahoney Stubborn.

Mr. Moss called James A. Mahoney, with whom Mayor Van Wyck testified yesterday he had had business transactions. Mr. Mahoney said he was in the building and real estate business, but that bookmaking had been and still was his principal business.

When asked if he had an office anywhere in New York Mahoney declined to answer and stuck to his declination.

Mr. Moss went over the address of every poolroom mentioned by Wood to Harris, and asked in each case if Mahoney was interested in it. Mahoney refused to answer. He admitted that he had said he was in the building business because it looked better "than to have no business."

After a long contest at cross purposes Mahoney was temporarily withdrawn and served with a subpœna for tomorrow.

Hess Wanted the Salary.

Police Commissioner Jacob Hess was sworn and said he was appointed as a Republican in the Bi-Partisan board. His first official act was to vote for the retirement of Chief of Police McCullagh.

"Upon what basis did you vote for the retirement of Mr. McCullagh?" asked Mr. Moss.

"Well," said Mr. Hess, "I was appointed by the Mayor, and I saw what happened to Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Phillips, and I knew—I didn't want to share in the same fate."

"You knew what would happen to you if you didn't vote to retire McCullagh—is that so?" queried Mr. Moss.

"Yes, and other reasons—and another reason. I believed there ought to be union between the Chief and the commissioners."

The Police Commissioner said that outside of his $5,000 yearly salary as a commissioner he had not an independent living. He was in the cigar business.

"And in order to get that $5,000 to live on you consented to go into that arrangement as a Republican of the Bi-Partisan board to carry out the wishes of the Mayor, is that it?" sneered Mr. Moss.

"Yes," said Commissioner Hess.

"Even though it led to the removal of a Chief of Police against whom there was no charge and no suspicion of corruption or inefficiency?"

"Yes," said the witness.

"Do you regret what you did in performing your first official act in removing a good official servant?" asked Mr. Moss. "No."

"You think you did a good public act, then?" "I think so."

How Horses Are Purchased.

Mr. Moss then switched over to the horses purchased by the police board.

Mr. Hess said all the horses since May 24, 1898, to April 22, 1899, had been purchased from M. McDonald. Mr. Hess did not know who "M. McDonald" was. The chief bought the horses.

It transpired that the chief never bought more than three horses at a time. That, Mr. Hess said, was to keep the amount within $1,000. When asked why Mr. Hess said:

"Because we can't spend over $1,000 without buying the horses by public letting."

The commission then adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

CONVICTIONS IN WALLNER CASE

Penitentiary Sentences for Simpson, Jones, Peterson, and McFadden—Lally Is Acquitted.

The following verdicts were returned in Judge Stein's court yesterday in the case of the five men who were tried for the murder of Policeman Edward E. Wallner:

George Simpson, alias Shakespeare, alias Styles; life imprisonment.

Fred Jones, alias Sam Ritch; twenty-five years.

Charles Peterson, alias Frank Ford; twenty-five years.

Thomas McFadden, alias "Mickey"; fourteen years.

Edward Lally, alias Ed Murphy; not guilty.

The jury reached its verdict Tuesday midnight. Attorney M. V. Gannon, who defended McFadden and Simpson, said he was satisfied, but Attorney Berlet, who represented Jones and Peterson, said his clients got the worst of a compromise verdict.

Simpson shed tears when locked in his cell, but he said to Deputy Sheriff Morgan: "It might have been worse. In fact, I half way expected the death sentence and I guess the strain on my nerves weakened me."

Fourteen years in the penitentiary was the punishment fixed in the case of ex-Policeman Patrick Furlong, the slayer of Policeman Edward C. Leach. He was convicted of manslaughter.

In Judge Gary's court four men were tendered to the defense as jurors for the trial of Michael Emil Rollinger, who is accused of having killed his wife at his home, 188 Racine avenue, on Dec. 15 last and setting fire to the house to conceal the crime.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

D. C. French Not the First.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I note in today's edition of your paper that a cablegram received in New York from Rome states "the American sculptor, Daniel Chester French, has been elected a member of the Academia of San Luca . . . and Mr. French is the first American to receive this honor." This is inaccurate. My father, Randolph Rogers, was the first American upon whom this honor was conferred, receiving it more than twenty years ago. He held the office of Councilor in the Academy, and about two years before his death, in 1892, was made a Professor Emeritus.

JOHN R. ROGERS.

Clubs for Street Venders.

Chicago, May 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your article on the "sweetness of unheard melodies" inspires these lines. Not only has the poet forestalled the peddlers, popcorn men, locomotive engineers, etc., but he must have been a votary of Euterpe. I should stop grumbling if it were possible to have, say, either of the De Reszkes and Campanari seated on a vegetable wagon and make known to a bargain-seeking populace the cheapness of their potatoes. Nor would I object to Plançon's carrying a crate of strawberries on his shoulder making a house to house canvass. But these are fancies, and the husky-voiced Slavs, Greeks, and Syrians are realities. Besides, the aforementioned favorites could not make head against the piercing whistle of the popcorn cart. To discover a counter-irritant, or, if you please, a squelching apparatus, might be taken in hand by a wizard like Tesla.

I do not often advocate the policeman's club, but it seems to us the only effective means to check a spreading evil. We must invoke it until a nonpartisan musical board shall have been appointed to grant licenses to sweet-voiced hucksters only.

Meanwhile, why cannot the vegetable and berries venders select side streets in which to display their wares at stated times? On the West Side the fish market is conducted on these lines, and buyers and sellers intermingle freely. There is no necessity of our being tortured any longer.

Russia on the Side of Peace.

Evanston, Ill., May 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I notice an editorial in "The Tribune" of Wednesday in which you criticise the statement which I made at the First Methodist Church on Sunday to the effect that Russia was the friend of peace, and that it had been forced against its wishes into the Crimean and Turkish wars. The language you quoted was not mine but the reporter's. The idea, however, was one which I advanced. Inasmuch as you question the accuracy of that statement, will you allow me space for a brief reply to your comment?

You will find in the Review of Reviews for April, 1899, page 433, this statement: "Russia has been, far more than any great power of Europe, consistently and persistently on the side of peace, and her influence has been thrown, so far as practicable, in favor of peace. She was virtually tricked into the Crimean war, which ended so disastrously for her, and the Russo-Turkish war of 1897-'98 was not desired by her but forced upon her partly by the sentiment referred to above, partly by force of circumstances which she helped to originate, but which got beyond her control. The dual alliance has been and is today an absolutely peace measure, as France appears to be at last discovering, to her own disgust." The above quotation, I believe, puts the facts of history correctly. I shall not take space to substantiate it. It accords with what I said on the subject Sunday. I then went on to call attention to the active part which Russia had taken in promoting humane methods of warfare, for the purpose of showing that the call for the present conference was consistent with the past policy of Russia. I referred to the attitude of Alexander II. of Russia, grandfather of the present Czar, in relation to the Geneva convention of 1864, mentioned by Sir Henry Maine as the first great attempt since the epoch of Grotius to humanize the laws of war. I also called attention to the fact that this same Alexander II. convoked the convention of St. Petersburg of 1868 for the same purpose, and that the same Czar summoned the Brussels conference of 1874 with the view of determining with greater precision than in past times the laws and usages admissible in a state of war and of diminishing the calamities attendant upon it. I called attention to the fact that the father of the present Czar was likewise a man of peace, and that in more than one international controversy it was only his devotion to peace that held Russia back from war. I think there is no doubt that the facts of history justify the statement that Russia has been on the side of peace, and has been more actively identified than any other power in Europe with the movements which have been made for diminishing the calamities of war.

HENRY WADE ROGERS.

To German-Born Americans.

Chicago, May 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In an "Oration on Schiller," delivered on the anniversary of his death, in St. Louis the speaker, Dr. Hugo M. Starkloff said, among other things: "He called upon the Germans: 'Be ye united, etc. . . . It has come to pass. . . : The Suabians, the Hessians, the Saxons, Bavarians, and all others, whatever their name . . . founded a fatherland. We have become Germans and have a fatherland. And, though we are tarrying in a foreign country (in der fremde weilen!) and have sworn allegiance to this country (diesem lande! treue gelobt) and give to it our energy, still our heart anxiously follows, concerned about its welfare, the course of the fatherland, gained by such great exertions—our Germany!'"

The passages deserve more than a mere hearing in the light of some present controversies. A few personal notes are indispensably necessary before I present the object of these remarks.

Dr. H. M. Starkloff, as I am informed by a former resident of St. Louis, has "tarried" (geweilt) in "this" country some thirty years, more or less, sufficiently long to become a citizen and a prominent one, both socially and politically. On account of his social station, rank, and talent he was elected President of the N. A. Turnerbund; as a politician he was successful enough to obtain a United States Consulship at Hamburg during Harrison's administration.

Now, if such a man can voluntarily declare himself a "foreigner," i. e., one living in "der fremde," and can speak so coolly of the country which has honored him quite as much as he honored it, giving him in return for his "adopting" it so many gifts which his fatherland did not and does not possess, whilst waxing so warm upon the old country, he—and those of an opinion with him—ought to be consistent enough not to grow red or white in the face if some narrow-minded other fellow calls him or them "foreigners"!

There never was any logical or moral justification for knownothingism in this country; but the knownothingism of the semi- (or hyphenated!) Americans is more ludicrous than that of those whose action gave rise to the term ever was. Such expressions as the one challenged in these lines, backed up by many editorials in the so-called German-American press, in German-American societies, and found among many German born inhabitants of our country, citizens of the same not exempted, must in time produce a reaction which, as human nature is constituted, may go to extremes also. Those who can read as they run will understand the gist and the importance of these objections; those who cannot may turn red for excitement or white for anger, the facts and the logic of the case will remain the same.

Moreover, the younger generation, even of German-Americans, are American to such an extent that the fact is patent that the German-American press is almost absolutely dependent upon the old heads in the family for support. That great poet and thinker whom Dr. H. M. S. glorified in his "fiery" speech asserts somewhere that one may learn from his enemies; if "my friend teaches me what I am able to do well (was ich kann) my enemy instructs me as to what I should do (was ich soll)." Now, rightly considered, one telling the truth to his fellow-being is not his enemy; but I fear the fanatics among the German-Americans will adjudge me such, yet a fairer admonition and a hint more worthy of consideration has not been put in print for a long time.

CREDIT MEN'S ANNUAL FEAST.

Dr. Hirsch, Franklin MacVeagh, H. N. Higinbotham, and Others Speak at the Banquet.

The duties and responsibilities of the credit man with dissertations on commercial ethics in general and the economic relations of trusts to the business and general interests of the people were discussed at the third annual banquet of the Chicago Credit Men's association at the Grand Pacific Hotel last night. More than 300 men, representing business houses of Chicago, were present. President R. C. Hall presided.

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, an invited guest, said trusts are the natural sequence of present economic conditions, and so long as they work in legitimate lines they are distinct benefactions to the human race. Trusts which worked, as many do, to extort toll from a patient community were, he said, to be condemned, and he especially denounced those which had to do with articles of general necessity. He touched upon the question of public franchises, and commended the position recently assumed by Governor Roosevelt of New York. He also deprecated the tendency to overcapitalization.

Franklin MacVeagh spoke on "Credits and Sales." He said there was a growing demand in the business world for broad and informed men, and that the best equipped business-man was he who kept himself informed on matters outside his actual business.

Harlow N. Higinbotham spoke on "The Credit Man." John Barton Payne spoke on the "Relations of Debtor and Creditor," and Colonel Henry L. Turner closed the speaking with a talk on "The Rennaissance of Oratory."

SETTLEMENT WORKERS END CONFERENCE WITH SECRET SESSION.

Eastern Delegates Hold the View, According to Robert Woods of Boston, That Publicity Harms Rather than Helps the Movement — Says People Are Sensitive—Proposition to Form Permanent Organization Is Not Adopted.

The conference of settlement workers at Hull House yesterday agreed that the work of the settlement is best conducted quietly and without publication of the purposes or results. Robert Woods of the South End House, Boston; Star Cadwallader of the Goodrich House, Cleveland; and Miss Jane Addams, discussed the advantages and disadvantages of public statements of the settlement's relation to its neighborhood and of the study of local conditions.

Mr. Woods stated the belief of the Eastern workers that publicity does the movement more harm than good. He contended that the people for whose benefit the settlement is intended are sensitive and object to the description of their homes as a part of the slum districts. The aim of the settlement, he said, was often defeated by discussion of plans in the newspapers, and in the East it had been found necessary to refrain from such discussions altogether.

In deference to this opinion of the Eastern delegates to the conference, the sessions of the day were considered as committee meetings, and none but the representatives of settlements was admitted.

"The intention of the conference," said Miss Julia Lathrop, "was that the discussions should be entirely informal, and the delegates thought that informality could be secured best by having the sessions strictly family affairs."

The delegates decided against the suggestion to establish a permanent organization, and it was stated there was no probability of another conference being held for several years.

"I think all the delegates agree the conference has been a success," said Miss Jane Addams. "We did not accomplish anything, but we did not come together to solve any problems or to adopt any propaganda for educational work in settlements. We have met, compared notes, and listened to reports of the progress of the settlement movement in various cities. Good always comes from a conference in which men and women exchange views on the subjects in which they are interested."

In explanation of the work of the afternoon session, Miss Lathrop, chairman of the Press committee, said:

"The session was executive, not because there was anything to be done that we desired to keep from the press. Many of those who attended thought it desirable to make the session executive because it was the last session to be held and freer expression would be obtained by the exclusion of reporters. Considerable unfinished business was disposed of and the various questions debated. A good deal was said concerning the publication of matters concerning the work in newspapers."

"Was there any discussion concerning trade unionism?"

"Yes; its relationship to economics was discussed and the general sentiment expressed was that trade unions are necessary."

The conference ended in the evening with a reception to the delegates in the parlors of Hull House.

Many of the delegates left for their homes later, after having expressed the belief that the conference had proved of great benefit.

DAUGHTERS OF THE KING MEET.

Hear a Sermon by Bishop McLaren and Transact the Business of Their Semi-Annual Session.

The local assembly of the Daughters of the King for the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago held its semi-annual session yesterday at 11 a. m. at St. Alban's Church, Forty-third street and Prairie avenue. Bishop McLaren and eight clergymen and a large number of the members were present. The women represented seven church chapters.

Morning prayer was read by the rector, the Rev. George W. Knapp. The Bishop preached the sermon. He chose as his text:

> And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost—Acts II.: 4.

The subject was appropriate to the work of the Daughters of the King, which seeks to foster and develop the religious interests of women.

The President, Mrs. M. McGregor, read her report. She said the membership was increasing rapidly and that the work done by the society was more generally appreciated. A great deal had been accomplished by the society in the way of visitations among the poor.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting at St. Peter's Church. Officers will be elected then.

The members of the clergy present were:

Rev. George W. Knapp, Rev. W. H. Lealtad,
Rev. R. McIntyre, Rev. C. E. Bowles,
Rev. Wm. W. Wilson, Rev. Father Erickson.
Rev. T. D. Phillips.

Luncheon was served.

UNIVERSALIST WOMEN MEET.

State Association Holds Its Tenth Annual Session at St. Paul's Church.

The tenth annual literary May meeting of the Universalist Women's association of Illinois was called to order by the President, Mrs. O. W. Nash of Oak Park, yesterday morning, at St. Paul's Church, Thirtieth street and Prairie avenue. Mrs. D. B. Cooke delivered the address of welcome. Reports of the various State societies were made and Miss Helen Currier gave a report of the league, which is an auxiliary branch of the association. Mrs. William Guile read a paper on "Women in Recent Literature."

The afternoon session was devoted to the reading of several papers. Mrs. Helen Sherry discussed "Newspapers, and Uses and Abuses."

At the evening session it was decided to establish a Sunday School union for the State. Arrangements were made whereby a committee will prepare the way for the union.

The convention will close this evening with the first annual dinner at the Lexington Hotel.

GARGOYLES FOR LINCOLN PARK.

Relics of a Mexican Palace Presented by Manager Campbell of American Tourists' Association.

General Manager Campbell of the American Tourists' association has given to Lincoln Park four interesting gargoyles from a famous palace in Mexico. They are blocks of limestone about 6 feet 10 inches high and about 18 inches in diameter. On one end of each is a grotesque head with wide mouth, which forms the exit of a duct extending through the entire length of the stone. They were part of the palace of Yturbide, which was built 126 years ago by the Marquesa de San Mateo Valparaiso.

The Park board passed resolutions thanking Mr. Campbell and also thanking Congressman Boutell for securing a Spanish cannon for the park.

Garfield and Webster avenues were accepted as boulevards, but Belden avenue was rejected because the houses in that thoroughfare are not all built on the same grade.

FINED $5 FOR THEFT OF PAPER.

Thomas Trakas Caught Taking a Copy of "The Tribune" from a Doorstep and Arrested.

Justice James M. Doyle yesterday imposed a fine of $5 on Thomas Trakas, who was caught stealing a copy of THE TRIBUNE that had been delivered at 1453 West Monroe street. Complaints of thefts of papers in that vicinity had been numerous and a watch was set which resulted in the arrest.

SAID TO BE THE OLDEST HOUSE IN CHICAGO.

At Sangamon and West Van Buren street in a capacious yard far back from the street stands a house which attracts but little attention from passersby, but which is said to be the oldest house in Chicago. There is nothing in the appearance of the dwelling to denote extreme age, and, indeed, many of the other houses in the vicinity seem to be much older.

The building was erected in 1851 by John C. Haines, and during his term as Mayor of Chicago, in 1858-'59, the house was the scene of many an entertainment.

When the house was built there were but three architects in Chicago, and of these Asher Carter was chosen to draw up the plans. In 1882 the dwelling passed out of the hands of the Haines family, and since then it has had many tenants. The present occupant is Roland Hill, who uses it as a boarding-house. The present owner is William Fleming, who purchased it in 1882 from Walter Haines, a son of the former Mayor.

Since the purchase the grounds have been built upon, but around the house there is still a wide stretch of lawn. The grounds are 125x145 feet in dimension, and the house, which is of the architecture common to country houses, is set back in the yard almost lost to sight in the lilac bushes which fill the grounds.

WOMEN MAY STUDY THEOLOGY.

Directors of Wittenberg College Will Open Religious Branch to Them and Confer Degree of B. D.

Springfield, O., May 17.—At the meeting today of the Board of Directors of Wittenberg College, one of the oldest Lutheran educational institutions in the country, it was decided to admit women to the Theological Seminary, and upon completion of the course to confer the degree of B. D. upon them, the same as the men. The action was taken with but one dissenting vote.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

Widow Coxe's Wig.

"YES," said Ella Witherley, "I really think I'm going to have a step-grandmama at last!"

She spoke in a whisper, so that the hale old squire, reading the newspaper on the front porch, should not hear her, neither should her voice reach the ears of the Widow Coxe, who was making lemon pies in the kitchen.

Ella stood out among the currant bushes, while Josie Hall, her boarding school mate and dearest friend, leaned over the garden wall.

"Dear, dear, how dreadful!" said Josie, in sympathetic accents.

"Not so bad, after all," retorted Ella, stooping to gather a four-leaf clover. Mrs. Coxe is a nice sort of woman, if grandpa fancies her—and in case they should get married, you see I am free to go to New York and take those drawing and painting lessons that I have sighed for so long."

"But she is such a horrible old scandalmonger!"

"That's a fashionable failing."

"And she goes patting around in those plush slippers like a supernatural pussy cat—and she talks about the dear squire?"

"Well, why shouldn't she?"

"O," said Josie, with a careless toss of the head, "if you're satisfied no one else should object."

The squire had finished the newspaper when Ella returned to the house.

"Where have you been, my dear?" he demanded, blandly.

"Down in the garden, grandpapa, after currants."

"And where is Mrs. Coxe?"

"In the kitchen."

"What is she doing?"

"Making lemon pies, grandpapa, I believe, and getting ready to preserve gooseberries."

"Ah-h-h-h!" said the squire, comfortably nodding his head. "Nice woman, Mrs. Coxe. I chanced to mention yesterday that I was fond of gooseberry jam in the winter, and here she is trying to anticipate my wishes already. A very nice woman."

"Yes, grandpapa," said Ella demurely.

"By the way," cried the squire, suddenly starting up as a new thought struck him, "there are more of those choice seedling peaches gone again since last night. Did you see it?"

"I noticed that the branches were broken down a little, grandpapa."

"Burglars! Sneak thieves!" cried the squire, the bald crown of his head becoming a rosy pink in his excitement. "To dare to steal my fruit before it is ripe! But I'll be even with 'em yet! I'll chain Don, the bloodhound, to the foot of the tree! I'll have a man-trap with teeth as sharp as a steam saw—I'll—dear me, is that the dinner bell? But Mrs. Coxe is so surprisingly prompt."

Mrs. Coxe herself, however, the nonpareil of a housekeeper, who aspired in time to become Mrs. Squire Witherley, did not appear at the table. Ella knocked at the door with anxious inquiries.

"Pray excuse me for today, my dear," Mrs. Coxe's nasal voice answered from within the sanctuary of her own bedroom." "I'm a little tired out with preserving."

Late in the day the widow made her appearance, her head tied up in an enormous pink-spotted handkerchief.

"Dear me, Mrs. Coxe, what is the matter?" said innocent Ella.

"It's to prevent influenza," said the Widow Coxe, looking under the pantry shelves to find the milk skimmer. But she took particular pains to keep out of the range of the squire's vision.

"How did the gooseberries come out? " Ella inquired, thinking that at last she had hit upon an acceptable topic of conversation.

"They—they stuck to the kettle," said Mrs. Coxe, and she hurried out of the room to feed the young turkeys.

Half an hour afterward the hired hand, Moses Mickell, came up to where Miss Witherley was weeding her flower beds.

"You couldn't spare me a little cookin' soda, Miss Ella, could you?" he asked, in a mysterious whisper.

"Cooking soda, Moses? What for?"

"Well, it's our Billy. He's dreadful on-settled in his stummick."

"Cholera, Moses?"

"O, bless ye, miss, no! But boys will be boys, you know—and Billy, he found a kettle o' gooseberry jam sot to cool down on the garden wall, back of the well, and he went into 'em with a will, till, all of a sudden like, he stirred up somethin' with a stick—and," lowering his voice again, "it was a wig! A red wig!"

Ella burst into a peal of irrepressible laughter. It was plain enough now. The Widow Coxe had lost her wig in the preserving kettle.

"Well, Moses," she said, as soon as she could sufficiently control her voice, "don't say a word. I'll get the soda, and you must tell Billy to be a little more careful as to stolen sweets hereafter."

There was no moon the next night, only the fiery, golden glitter of stars and the uncertain lamps of myriads of glow-worms. All the lights in the Witherley mansion were out, and no one save Ella and the squire's self knew that the latter personage was stealthily watching down under the shadow of the tall currant bushes for the midnight depredator who had so lawlessly rifled his young peach trees.

Just as the clock was on the stroke of 12 there was a rustle among the bushes, the sound of stealthy footsteps, the crackling of leaves and gravel under foot. The squire sat up, his eyes starting from his head, his whole frame trembling with triumphant expectation, as a tall, gaunt figure, robed in black, emerged from the shrubbery, and, stooping beneath the tree, took something from beneath a clump of elderberries at the foot of the finest peach tree.

Like a cat from its ambuscade the squire pounced upon the midnight prowler.

"I've got you, have I? Villain! Sneak! Wretched thief! And I'll shake every bone out of your body, see if I don't!"

"Squire Witherley!" shrieked a shrill voice of terror and apprehension.

"Why, it's Mrs. Coxe! In the name of all the fates and furies, ma'am, what are you doing under my peach trees at this hour of night?"

But between rage and fright the widow was for once thrown off her guard.

"You're no gentleman, Squire Witherley!" she exclaimed. "Nor you, neither, Ella—no lady, I mean," as the squire's astonished granddaughter appeared on the scene. "A-prying and a-peeping night and day!"

"But you shall not leave the spot, ma'am," insisted the undaunted squire, "until you explain pre-cise-ly what you are doing here at this time of the night."

"What I'm doing here!" she sharply repeated. "I ain't stealing your peaches, anyhow! If you must know, I came to get my new face-front o' curls! I dropped my other wig yesterday into them dratted gooseberries, and I sent by express for this 'un. And I told Pete Dickinson to leave it here quietly and not come bawling all over creation that he'd brought home my new wig. There ain't no harm in wearing a wig, I suppose, if your own hair ain't so thick!"

"Certainly not, ma'am, certainly not," said the abashed squire. "I hope you'll accept my——"

"I'll accept nothin'," protested the inexorable widow, "except it's my month's wages. I won't stay in a family that's so inquisitive and coarse-minded as this. I'll leave you tomorrow, see if I don't."

"Dear me, dear me," said the squire, scratching his head. "Very awkward, this!"

And it was.

For the squire lost his winter store of gooseberry jam, Ella lost the housekeeper, and the widow lost her wig. It was awkward. And yet, after all, it was nobody's fault.—New York News.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY'S LETTER.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.]

In spite of the Prince of Wales' Teuton descent and accent, and notwithstanding his taste for continental life, there is no one in England who possesses a keener and more delicate sense of British popular taste than himself. It is, indeed, this knowledge and the exquisite tact which guides him in his utilization thereof that constitute the main source of his popularity both at home and abroad, as well as his sobriquet of "The First Gentleman of Europe." No one recognizes this more thoroughly than the Queen, who, especially of late years, has come to rely in no small degree upon the advice of her eldest son in such matters.

If I mention this it is because last week the Prince, at the request of his mother, drove down from Marlborough House to Kensington Palace, and made a quiet inspection of the apartments and of the showcases contained therein that were thrown open to the public on Monday last. Hitherto closed to the public, Kensington Palace, that home of King William III., of good Queen Anne, and of the Georges, besides being the birthplace and girlhood residence of Queen Victoria herself, has now been thrown open as a species of museum, the apartments inhabited by the Queen as a child having been arranged with showcases containing mementos of her youth.

The Prince of Wales was of the opinion that several of these mementos, while of value to her Majesty's own family circle, were of too domestic a character to be exhibited to public gaze, and calculated to excite ridicule on the part of those not imbued with the necessary amount of veneration and loyal affection for the aged Queen. Accordingly, after carefully inspecting all the cases, he had quite a number of objects of this character removed, and they have since been sent to Windsor.

The Prince was accompanied by General Sir Arthur Ellis, now Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Lords, who, although he has ceased to be the Prince's equerry, continues to act as the art adviser of his future King. Like Count Seckendorff, the faithful and devoted Grand Master of Empress Frederick of Germany, he possesses an extraordinary knowledge and wide experience of everything connected with art, and his judgment is rarely at fault.

Like so many of her subjects, Queen Victoria, once she has left her native land and is on the continent of Europe, relaxes that strictness which at home she is accustomed to exercise with regard to those who are admitted to her presence, and accords not only recognition but likewise hospitality to individuals whom she would never dream of permitting to cross her threshold in England.

If I mention this it is because I find in the so-called "Court Circular," published in the London daily papers and edited by the Queen herself in person, an announcement to the effect that the evening before she left the south of France she gave a dinner party, to which she invited, amongst other distinguished guests, the Comtesse de Vigier. Now, the Countess in question is no other than the great prima donna Sophia Cruvelli, who took Paris and London by storm with her voice, her dramtic talent, and her beauty in the latter part of the 40s.

Like so many others of her sisterhood, she could not abstain from seeking to introduce into her private life the romance and the drama of the stage, and her "affaires de cour" were of the most startling description, furnishing material for constant gossip alike on the banks of the Seine and on those of the Thames. A German by birth, she hails from Bielefeldt, in Westphalia. She manifested that tendency to sentimentality which, inherent to the Teuton character, softens much of its native ruggedness. But she counterbalanced this failing—if failing it can be called—by a strong dose of common sense in all financial matters, taking good care of her pecuniary interests and putting by for a rainy day.

All these love affairs finally culminated in a terrific scene with Napoleon III.'s Jewish Minister of State, M. Fould (grandfather of that Marquis de Breteuil married to Miss Garner of New York), the statesman receiving a stinging box on the ear in public from the actress two days before she ran away from Paris with young Vigier, whom she subsequently married.

She retains now only a few traces of her former beauty, the ravages made by time being rendered all the more apparent by the efforts made to conceal them through artificial means. Indeed, she is the least attractive old woman that it has ever been my lot to see, and her aspect is calculated to excite ridicule on the part of those who happen to be unaware of her identity.

The Countess Vigier is, with her questionable and stormy antecedents, precisely one of those people who do well as acquaintances and even friends abroad, but who would have to be ignored at home. Even admitting this, it is somewhat of a shock to find her dining at the table of Queen Victoria at Cimiez, and one cannot help recalling in this connection the words of a well-known essayist and keen observer of English society, to the effect:

"Queen Victoria's married life was a moral lesson and an elevating, improving picture in itself. For more than a generation it worked wonders, and its influence extended far beyond the circle which is more or less compelled to follow the lead of the court. But of late years there have been symptoms of a relapse."

Assuredly there are indications of a relapse when one finds a person with such a past as the Comtesse de Vigier dining at the table of a Queen once famed as the most stern of all moralists.

Queen Marguerite of Italy, in addition to her ordinary dressers and maids, has a clever Parisian milliner permanently attached to her household. The milliner selects materials, matching or contrasting with the dress which the Queen may happen to have on, forms them into a pretty arrangement with gold and jeweled pins, and fastens them to her Majesty's hair. That is the secret why Queen Marguerite is never seen twice with the same hat or bonnet on her head. The moment she removes it it falls to pieces. I commend this practice to American elegantes. It certainly has the merit of originality, and constitutes the surest kind of safeguard against the commonplace.

The proposal to signalize the return of Admiral Dewey to the United States by presenting to him a house the cost of which shall be defrayed by public subscription, while deserving of commendation can hardly be said to possess the merit of novelty. For not only were Admiral Farragut, President Grant, General McClellan, and other distinguished officers of the war of the secession thus honored by their fellow-citizens, but there are several great nobles in Europe who occupy mansions, palaces, and châteaux presented to their more or less remote ancestors by their respective grateful countries.

Thus the Duke of Marlborough, who is married to the daughter of W. K. Vanderbilt, has as his principal home that Palace of Blenheim which was the gift of the nation to the first Duke after his winning the battle of Blenheim. Considerably over $2,000,000 in the money of the epoch, or probably five times that amount in the currency of the present day, was spent in building the palace according to the designs of the famous architect, Sir John Vanbrugh, and the mansion, together with the large estate, previously known as the Crown Manor of Woodstock, constituted a gift in every sense of the word worthy of the grandeur of the victory which the great Duke had won.

The present Earl of Nelson has as his chief abode Trafalgar House, situated in the neighborhood of Salisbury, and presented to the surviving relative of England's most famous Admiral after the battle of Trafalgar. Apsley House, in Piccadilly, London, a palatial abode adjoining the entrance of Hyde Park, is the home of the present Duke of Wellington, and was presented to his grandfather, the first Duke of Wellington, after the battle of Waterloo, by the nation, along with the estate and country seat of Strathfieldsaye.

All these national gifts are held not as freehold property but as tenures from the crown in return for annual gifts to the sovereign of a couple of French flags by the Dukes of Marlborough and Wellington and by Lord Nelson on the anniversary of the victories of Blenheim, Waterloo, and Trafalgar. Friedrichsruh was presented by the German nation to Prince Bismarck at the close of the war of 1870. By all means present Admiral Dewey with a residence and call it Manila House.

Woman Suffrage Is Defeated.

Hartford, Conn., May 17.—The Senate today voted, 12 to 9, to reject the measure providing for woman suffrage.

SETS ASIDE ITS ACTION.

SCHOOL BOARD RESCINDS ABOLITION OF TRUANT DEPARTMENT.

Directs Committee to Report a Plan for Making It Less Expensive—Repeals Rule Requiring Teachers to Live in City Limits—Desk Contract Let to A. H. Andrews Company—Civil Service Commission Decides to Certify the Old Employes.

The Board of Education at its meeting last evening rescinded its action abolishing the compulsory education department. It also repealed the rule requiring teachers to live inside the city limits. Then it spent most of the remainder of the evening discussing the contract for school desks, which was awarded at length to the A. H. Andrews company.

In the matter of the compulsory education department President Harris called attention to the opinion of the attorney for the board that the truant law of the State required the employment of at least one truant officer. It was accordingly held as the opinion of the board on formal vote that its action abolishing the department altogether was illegal. Then Trustee Sexton moved that enough money to support the department during the remainder of the school year be taken from the contingent fund and this was passed after an agreement had been made that the Compulsory Education committee report a plan whereby the department could be made less expensive.

Trustee Gross moved that the rule requiring teachers to live inside the city limits be rescinded, as many cases had come to light where it worked a hardship on teachers who had bought homes outside. Trustee Loesch said the rule was illegal anyhow, as it interfered with the personal rights of the teachers, and it was rescinded by a vote of 12 to 4, the negatives being Trustees Harris, Rogers, Sexton, and Wallach.

School Desk Contract.

All during the evening the members discussed in various forms the letting of the school desk contract. Two bids were under consideration, one by the A. H. Andrews company and the other the Manitowoc Desk company. For stationary desks the Manitowoc company was $90 under the Andrews company, the figures being $26,010 and $26,100 respectively. The matter of some adjustable desks came in also, however, making the Manitowoc company between $400 and $500 lower on the whole contract.

Trustees Gallagher and Sherwood advocated letting the contract to the Andrews company on the ground it would be encouraging home industry, while Trustee Gross opposed it because under the law it was the duty of the board to let contracts to the lowest responsible bidders. To complicate the matter the Molders' union asked that the contract be refused the Andrews company because its iron work was done in Elgin by a non-union foundry. The contract finally was given to the Andrews company by a vote of 11 to 5, the negatives being Brenan, Cameron, Gross, Rogers, and Meier.

Other Business Transacted.

A start toward equipping the John Worthy Manual Training School at the bridewell was made by appropriating $400 for the purpose.

The use of the Hammond Building was granted for the McCormick vacation school.

The Grand Army of the Republic was given permission to send speakers to the various schols on Memorial day.

On motion of Trustee Sexton the board omitted from the call examinations for special teachers in drawing, music, and German, and added an examination for teachers in domestic science.

The list of fifteen teachers recommended for involuntary retirement on a pension by Superintendent Andrews on account of alleged inefficiency was recommitted to committee for revision, and the clerk ordered to keep it secret.

Merit Board Yields.

The trouble between the Board of Education and the Civil Service commission over the attempt of the commission to discharge the old employés of the board, who failed to make application for reappointment at the examination held in February, was ended in the afternoon. The commission decided, after consultation with Corporation Counsel Walker, to certify the old employés.

He promised to do so. The village marshal will be given instructions to arrest everybody caught swearing on the streets.

Can You Use A GOOD Set OF Brains?

GRAPE-NUTS

Are made of food elements that tend directly to rebuild the brain.

A BRAIN MAKER.

If one cares for good, sturdy health with which to build up a business or peacefully and happily conduct a household, attention must be paid to the food. Bad food, or good food poorly cooked, causes dyspepsia, poorly nourished bodies and general irritation.

People who use Grape-Nuts for breakfast can depend on having the highest quality of nourishment, and that perfectly cooked, for the food is finished at the factory and goes into the packages crisp, fully cooked and ready for instant use with either hot milk or cream or with cold thick cream or syrup.

Either form gives a delicious dish that one craves morning after morning, and brain-workers notice a distinct gain in mental power for the delicate particles of natural phosphate of potash taken from the grains unites with the albumen and goes directly to rebuild brain and nerve centers.

To find the proof in one's own body is the best argument. Try Grape-Nuts ten days. A good, sturdy set of brains may start you into a great career.

TETTER ON HANDS CURED

I had been troubled with tetter for several years. At times my hands would be sore all over, so that I could not use them at all, and were so tender that clear water, even, smarted like fire, and it spread over arms, neck, and face. I had been treated by physicians, but without benefit, when I began the CUTICURA remedies. I found relief before I had taken the first bottle. I used three or four bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and one box of CUTICURA (ointment), and it has never troubled me since. ELLA CURZON,

BLOOD POISON CURED

One of my children ran a rusty nail into his foot, which was most painful. His blood got out of order, and sores broke out on his hands and feet. I gave him one bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and used one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and the child recovered.

TO UNITE MATCH MILLS.

OUTSIDE CONCERNS MAY BE ABSORBED BY THE DIAMOND.

Quotations Advance on a Rumor the Industry May Be Consolidated in the One Concern—List of Mills Now Outside — Talk of Elevated Roads Being Merged into a Single Corporation—South Side "L" Shows Another Advance.

Diamond Match was the strongest stock on the local board yesterday. It sold up from 150 to 153¾, and closed one-half point under the highest quotation. There were sales of 1,712 shares, which is an unusually heavy day's trading for this stock. There continue to be rumors of an intention to take in the outside match companies, which would give to the Diamond Match company control of the match trade of the United States. The company now manufactures more than 75 per cent of all the matches made in the country, but the outside mills are sufficiently strong to cut into the trade in certain localities. While the Continental Match company is not the largest of the competing companies it probably gives the Diamond Match company more concern than any other of its competitors. Edwin Gould, President of the Continental Match company, has been active in his opposition to the Diamond Match company since he first started the Continental, and while it is said he has been manufacturing matches at a loss to himself, he is able to stand that loss. His efforts in the sale of matches are confined principally to the territory contiguous to New York and Chicago.

There is nothing definite in the rumors of a consolidation of the Diamond Match company with the outside concerns. One of the principal officers of the company is authority for the statement options have already been secured on several competing factories. Another officer makes as positive statements that no plan is under consideration looking to the absorbing of the outside concerns. While the Diamond Match company has the bulk of the trade it is by no means alone in the match-making industry. There are thirty-four match-making plants outside the Diamond Match company, though some of these concerns are closed down, and others manufacture only in a limited way.

Competitors of the Diamond Match.

The outside companies engaged in the manufacture of matches, grouped by States, are as follows:

California—The Bay City Match company, the Metropolitan Match company, the Fearless Match company, the Parker Match company, and S. Lehman.

Georgia—The Brunswick Match company.

Illinois—The Square Match company, Chicago; the National Safety Head Match company, the Graham Match company, and the Home Match company.

Indiana—The American Match company.

Missouri—The Columbia Match company.

Maine—The Portland Star Match company and the Excelsior Match company.

Michigan—The Globe Match company, the Ruby Match company, and the Improved Match company.

Mississippi—The American Match company.

New York—The Continental Match company, the Binghamton Match company, the Star Light Match company, and the Watertown Match company.

New Jersey—The New Jersey Match company, the Keystone Match company, the Newark Match company, the Continental Match company, the Trenton Match company, and the United States Match company.

Ohio—The Ohio Match company.

Oregon—The Vancouver Match company.

Pennsylvania—The American Fusee company, the Hazelton Match company, the American Safety Head Match company, the Spring Grove Match company, and the Keystone Match company.

Elevated Roads May Combine.

Stocks of the elevated railroads have been in active demand recently at advancing prices. This has been due to the rumor of probable consolidation and the passing of the control of these properties to the Eastern capitalists who have secured control of North and West Chicago. People who are interested in the elevated roads admit the question has been under discussion, but they say it has not assumed anything like definite shape as yet. That something may come of the proposed merging of the elevated properties into a single corporation is one of the probabilities of the future, though it is considered doubtful if anything is done in the near future. The fact the various roads all operate on the Union Loop would make it feasible that they should be combined. Such a combination would undoubtedly result in considerable economies in the operation of the roads. The contract made by the four elevated roads with the Union Loop company, while advantageous to the companies, is one which calls for a considerable expenditure in payments to the Loop company. Each of the four roads pays to the Loop company ½c for each passenger carried, whether the passenger rides around the loop or confines his riding to other portions of the line. The companies also pay in proportion to their traffic the expense of operation and maintenance of the loop. This means the payment of more than 10 per cent of the gross passenger receipts to the Union Loop company.

If the companies should consolidate the Union Loop company would be taken in and the consolidation might be effected under its charter. The Lake Street Elevated railroad has bonds and stock outstanding to the amount of $15,902,000. The bonds and stock of the South Side Elevated amount to $11,-703,000. The Metropolitan, under the reorganization, has bonds and preferred and common stock to the amount of $26,500,000. The bond and stock issue of the Northwestern Elevated amounts to $15,000,000. The Union Elevated railroad company, which owns three sides of the loop, has bonds and stock outstanding to the amount of $9,387,-600, while the Union Consolidated railway, which owns the south line of the loop, has outstanding bonds and stock to the amount of $1,407,000. This makes a total capitalization for the four elevated railroads and the loop structure of $79,899,000.

Strength in Elevated Stocks.

South Side Elevated broke all previous records yesterday, when it sold up from 94 to 96, with the close at 96. The advance from 80 to present prices has been a steady one. Metropolitan preferred sold from 51 to 51⅝. Lake Street Elevated sold from 18 to 18⅝, while Lake Street certificates showed a range of 15⅞ to 16⅛.

The stock market yesterday was fairly active and prices were strong. National Steel common sold up to 53¾, the low quotation being 52, and the closing 52⅝. Steel preferred sold at 87 and 88. National Biscuit common showed sales of 2,890 shares at 42 to 44½, with the close at the top. Linseed preferred, on sales of 1,623 shares, sold up from 59⅜ to 60¼, with the close at 60.

SENSATIONAL SPURT IN SUGAR.

Stock Shows a Net Gain of Six Points Over Tuesday Night's Closing.

[BY H. ALLAWAY.]

New York, May 17.—[Special.]—Sugar was a most conspicuous feature of today's market. It made one of its old-fashioned sensational spurts from 155¼ to 160¼, and closed within a fraction of the top price, showing 6 points net gain over Tuesday night's closing. The most aggressive buying of the stock was variously attributed to Mr. Keene, Mr. Lawson, and to Havemeyer interests themselves. The Standard Oil contingent was also credited with large purchases of the stock.

The story of a settlement of the war between the trust and its competitors was persistently circulated, and, although it received no more confirmation than heretofore, it did get some attention among conservative people, who, claiming to have seen excellent buying of the shares during the last few days, were inclined to believe that something of more than ordinary importance is pending in sugar trust affairs. The fact that the trust and the Arbuckles have unbent so far as to make an agreement upon a campaign for extending the use of package coffee was taken as an indication of a more amicable feeling between the two interests.

The positive announcement that an extra session of the Legislature is to meet next Monday to discuss and amend the Ford franchise bill was a bull argument on all of the local shares. The strength of Metropolitan and Manhattan came from buying induced by this news, and in Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Consolidated Gas, and other local shares the definite extra session announcement was also more or less effective.

Metropolitan enjoyed steady buying by the Wormsers, and in high quarters a good deal of bull talk on the stock was to be heard. The company's earnings, which are said to be making daily increases of $5,000, furnished a basis for a lot of bull arguments.

Central Pacific and Southern Pacific maintained their conspicuous position in the market, the former getting up to 34¼ and the latter to 53⅝. Both made gains approaching 2 per cent.

Interests more or less identified with the several Vanderbilt properties are quite bullish on Southern and Central Pacific, although they will say nothing regarding the reason for their attitude. It looks much as though there has been consummated some big Southern Pacific deal and it is altogether probable that Mr. Morgan has been instrumental in bringing about whatever arrangements have been made. Wall street men close to Morgan & Co. are also among the most confident bulls on the Pacific shares.

Further aggressive buying by brokers who are supposed to be acting for Mr. Anthony N. Brady was responsible for the continued buoyancy of People's Gas. Nearly 40,000 shares of the stock were traded in and it advanced steadily, getting up to 121⅝ and closing at that price, with a net gain of 4⅝ points for the day. Chicago houses were also heavy buyers of People's and there was a rumor that these purchases were the Great Western end of a bull pool which was formed some time ago, and which, since ex-Governor Flower's death, has been doubled in size.

Among Flower interests sentiment on People's Gas is quite bullish and much higher prices are talked for it. The bull arguments most used by friends of the property are the old ones—People's Gas' sure position as a 6 per cent dividend payer and the probability of still larger dividends in the near future.

In all the granger shares houses with Western connections were good buyers. Chicago took considerable St. Paul and Burlington and in the latter stock there was also a lot of Boston buying.

Some of the larger local commission houses are talking with much confidence on the outlook for Burlington and the more important bulls on the stock are intimating that within a short time there will be announcements of another bond issue and of another lot of subscription rights for stockholders.

IN THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

Timidity of Holders Dispelled by Capital Behind the Flower Stocks.

NEW YORK, May 17.—When it was announced on Monday morning that some of the most powerful financial interests in the country had banded themselves together for the support of prices in the stock market it dissipated largely the timidity of holders of the group of securities which had been so marvelously increased in price under the favoring activities of the late ex-Governor Flower. It also caused the professional operators, who always stand ready to attack values of securities at any vulnerable point, to pause in their purpose and cover short contracts left outstanding since Saturday.

The capitalists behind the Flower group apparently felt so much encouraged with the firmness and confidence displayed by the market since the crisis that they made up their minds today to complete its rehabilitation and to put prices back to where they were on Friday last. It was not until the latter part of the day that this purpose seemed to be seriously in hand.

Some large transactions in bonds especially in recent or contemplated issues of railroads of the 3½ and 4 per cent grades were also in evidence of the pressing demand for investment from a large reserve of capital. The money market was notably easy, and advices from different points in the interior were of large funds on hand.

The statements of St. Paul's earnings for the second week in May, showing an increase of over $24,000 compared with the corresponding week last year, when the extraordinary grain movement incident to the Leiter deal was in progress, was taken to indicate a continued prosperous condition of railroad traffic. London also showed a favorable disposition towards American railroads, and advanced prices before the opening here. And although part of the purchases were resold here later, having some possible effect in strengthening the rate of exchange on London, the sales were not in sufficient volume to threaten the money market here.

More mature consideration of the trade statistics for April disclosed the continued strong position of our international commerce, notwithstanding unfavorable comparisons at some points with the unprecedented period of last year.

The market gradually but persistently hardened under these various influences early in the day, Central and Southern Pacific, Chicago Terminal, the iron and steel shares, Sugar, Tobacco, and New York municipal corporation stocks advancing sharply. In the late afternoon the market leaders undertook to push up Brooklyn Transit to where it was last Friday. This they did through a flood of offerings, and held it there to the close, over seven points above yesterday's close. People's Gas, the Federal Steel stocks, International Paper, Rock Island, and Atchison pfd. are from one to over four points higher. The railroads shared generally in the later strength of the market, the close being buoyant and active at the top.

The large demand for bonds sought persistently for pretty much all issues not already at prohibitive prices. Total sales, $4,890,000. United States new 4s and the old 4s registered, advanced ¼ in the bid price.

Money on call steady at 2¼@3¼ per cent; last loan, 2¾. Prime mercantile paper, 3¼@4¼ per cent. Sterling exchange strong with actual business in bankers' bills at 487¼@487½ for demand and at 485¼@485½ for sixty days; posted rates, 486 and 488; commercial bills, 484@484¼. Silver certificates, 61@62. Bar silver, 61. Mexican dollars, 48⅝. Total sales of stocks today, 650,489 shares.

BERLIN, May 17.—On the Beorse today Mexican securities were in strong demand on the completion of the conversion loan. Spanish 4s eased on realizations. Americans were firm, and Canadian Pacifics hardened. Local shares were good.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes: Cash in hand increased 18,280,000 marks; treasury notes increased 1,220,000 marks; other securities decreased 14,280,000 marks; notes in circulation decreased 38,800,000 marks.

PARIS, May 17.—Influenced by the news in regard to the Transvaal, prices commenced easier on the Bourse today, but soon became more favorable and closed firm. International securities governed the transactions. Spanish 4s sharply recovered. Brazilian securities were in good demand owing to the improvement in the rate of exchange. Rio Tintos declined on the reported increase in the visible supply of copper, but were firmer at the close. Kaffirs were freely offered, but closed firm, no importance being attached by the operators to the arrest of alleged revolutionists at Johannesburg, the belief being entertained of a favorable solution of the trouble.

MORE TALK OF DAMAGE.

BULLISH REPORTS COME FROM MANY DIRECTIONS.

All Have More or Less on Wheat and Advance Values the Best Part of a Cent — Strength in Liverpool Also a Factor to Better Prices Here—Heavy Tone in Corn, with Oats Continuing Active and Firm on Short Stocks.

Wheat yesterday responded to crop damage reports much more promptly than at any previous time recently. The reports which were considered influential were of several kinds. There were numerous dispatches from Indiana, Illinois, and the Southwest telling of the development of damage by Hessian fly. In addition to these dispatches there were a number of telegrams from good authorities throughout the winter wheat States telling of indifferent growth and development of the plant. A press dispatch from California claiming there will not be over half a crop attracted considerable attention as tending to discredit the government condition and estimate of acreage and production. It was a strong market, with prices gradually working upward and an unimportant reaction. The low prices were only ⅛c below the previous close and the full advance was over 1c. Most of the advance was maintained at the close. The strength in Liverpool was naturally a factor. The closing cable quoted prices up ⅛d to ⅜d on futures, with spot wheat unchanged. Antwerp was unchanged, but Paris was 10 to 15 centimes lower. There was some early selling, supposed to be for St. Louis, but the buying of the day was better in character than the selling. Half a dozen prominent commission houses were prominent on the buying side. McReynolds & Co. sold 100,000 bu of No. 1 Northern wheat for direct export by way of New York. Local receipts are light, and this condition of affairs was emphasized by the fact that local millers bought No. 1 Northern wheat out of store. Local receipts were 32 cars, against 37 a week ago and 251 a year ago. For the same three days receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were 218, 196, and 604 cars respectively. The statistics were favorable to holders, particularly those referring to movement. Primary receipts at 295,000 bu were about one-third the receipts of a year ago and not much over one-half over the day's clearances. Minneapolis reported 50,000 brls of flour sold on Tuesday. The whole market was influenced by the crop reports. A lot of wheat was taken on by local operators which is likely to come out either on a further advance or on a fractional reaction in price.

July wheat range.

Corn Inclined to Drag.

The tone of the corn market was decidedly heavy. In face of the wheat advance July corn closed at the low price of the day and at a decline of nearly ½c. The selling was rather mysterious, but it was generally assumed that Bartlett-Frazier, Patten, and the people who made the latest of a series of efforts to advance prices were letting go. The heaviest early selling, and that which attracted most pit attention, was by Broughton & Nickles. Clearances were light at 246,000 bu, but Liverpool was up ¼d to ⅜d. No one seemed to be paying much attention to the situation at Buffalo, as the speculative market seemed to be weak enough on its own account regardless of conditions in the market for cash grain. A few small cargo lots were worked.

Provisions opened easy on a local overrun of hogs to the extent of 6,000. The influential selling was by Patten of lard and ribs. Shipments of product were fair. The export demand for lard has not apparently developed to the extent anticipated, and there was selling by Hately and Geddes. Western markets had 89,800 hogs, against 125,800 a year ago. The provision market did not sympathize with wheat, but closed at the low point and at a sharp decline for the day.

Oats continue to show strength and activity, largely owing to the scarcity of contract stocks. The May premium continued 3⅛, the whole situation inspiring fears of a possible squeeze in May. The close on this delivery was ¼c higher than on Tuesday, while September was ⅛c lower. Receipts were 447,100 bu, against 498,700 bu on the corresponding day last year. Shipments were 309,100 bu, as compared with 306,500 bu. Rye was neglected and dull, but firm. May was 1c higher at 62c, and July unchanged at 54½c. September closed 50c asked. There was a light trade in barley, confined entirely to feed at unchanged prices, 37@38c. Timothy was about unchanged at $2.45 bid October. Nominal conditions prevailed in clover. Flaxseed was generally easier and in slow demand. May eased off from $1.07⅛ to $1.07, with No. 1 Northwestern at the May price. July sold $1.05⅜ only, closing at that. September declined from 92c to 91c, closing at the inside. October, 89½c. Receipts here were 7 cars. There were 6 cars at Minneapolis and 11 at Duluth.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

The forty-first annual report of the Board of Trade, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1898, has been put in book form and is now being distributed. It is fully up to the high standard of Secretary Stone's former compilations, and contains an immense quantity of statistics and other information of interest to the trade.

Official crop reports from the territory of the St. Paul road state that wheat is looking fine, and growing crops generally have never presented a better appearance, considering the short time the seed has been in the ground. The acreage of flax will be 25 per cent greater than last year.

The weekly Missouri crop bulletin says: "Corn is generally coming up well, although heavy rains and cool nights have been unfavorable. Considerable replanting will be necessary, but much less damage by worms has been done than usual. Some fields are becoming foul. The wheat that has been left is making rapid growth, and some fields are now heading. In central and southern counties considerable damage is being suffered from chinch bugs. Oats and flax are growing finely."

The curb was not disturbed. July wheat being quoted 71⅝c. Puts sold off from 71⅝c to 71¼c, and calls from 72¼c to 72⅝c. Puts on corn were 33¼@33⅜c, and calls 33⅝@33¾c.

Estimated receipts today: Wheat, 32 cars; corn, 107 cars; oats, 185 cars; hogs, 23,000.

More or less attention was directed toward the California crops sent in by a traveling newspaper correspondent, but the general impression was that the facilities for ascertaining the facts in the case enjoyed by the government are quite as complete and reliable as any special sources of information possessed by the young man in question; and that for some reason, not impossible to guess, the credulity of the correspondent has been imposed upon.

Zahn & Co. of Toledo, who get out extensive crop reports, and Prime both insist on serious damage by Hessian fly. Prime says that in southeastern Illinois conditions have changed radically within the last ten days, and the outlook now amounts almost to a calamity. The Hessian fly has almost ruined the wheat, and we cannot grow at best over 25 per cent of the crop.

Copper Stocks and Stocks of Copper.

There is a difference between the market price of a copper stock and the market value of a stock of copper. There are copper stocks on the market with nothing but monopolistic manipulation to give them a price: but only the mechanical manipulation of honest labor gives a value to a stock of copper. Honest toil demands the metal for its work; honest toil supplies the metal by its work. The price of a copper stock and its value often have little relation. The value of a stock of copper, and its price, are practically inseparable. Just so long as there is a steady and growing demand for copper, just so long may the owner of a copper property view with indifference the flurries of "the street." To the speculator in copper stocks "the street" is everything; to the dealer in stocks of copper "the street" is nothing. One fact only has the dealer to consider at present—viz.: the demand for the metal exceeds the supply; and so long as that condition continues, so long may he regard with the utmost complacency the predictions of wizards and philanthropists.

One little, cold, hard fact is just at the present time of far more interest to the man who would make money in copper than all the stock quotations ever printed.

Here is the fact. Ten years ago the great French Secretan copper pool failed. That copper pool held 170,000 tons of copper. To prevent this vast amount of metal being thrown on the market, and thus reducing the price to a figure which would wipe away all profit to the producer, an agreement was entered into between the bankers who held this copper and the American producers, by which only 15,000 tons of the pool copper should be sold annually. The past ten years have been rather a dull period in the business history of the world; yet while copper production has increased steadily in that time copper used has likewise increased, so that it has absorbed not only all the increased product but the 15,000 tons annually of pool copper, and at present there is less than 25,000 tons of spot copper in sight, with the demand growing more rapidly than ever.

Figuring this condition down, it is mathematically demonstrated that, without some vast increase in production, in about 21 months from the present time there will be NO spot copper. It hardly appears likely that under these circumstances the price of copper is going to shrink very much below the present figure. It rather seems that the price would naturally increase. It certainly would with any other product; why not with copper?

The copper authorities do not look for a diminution of the demand, nor for an immediate increase in the supply. Mr. Leonard Lewisohn says: "I do not see where our supplies are coming from." Morrison, Kekewich & Co. of London equally fail to see where the supplies are coming from; and, in fact, no one has yet ventured to tell where the supplies are coming from.

The old mines are producing practically their limit. Mr. John Stanton says that it is impossible for a new mine in the Lake Superior region to become a producer in less than three years. Still the United States is expected to supply 65 per cent. or more of the world's copper. Where can be gotten from with the greatest probability and at the earliest possible day?

The nearest approach to a practical solution of this momentous problem is found in the statistics of copper production in 1898. They show conclusively that the rate of increase in this industry in the territory of Arizona for the past year was six times that of all the other American copper regions combined. Two cogent reasons for the rapidity with which Arizona is thus increasing her copper production are the fact of her mild climate, which precludes interruption of work from snow or severe weather as in the northern latitudes, and the other fact that every item in the cost of producing copper is cheaper than in the Lake Superior or Montana districts. Many mines in Arizona have become producers in less than a year after the vein was developed. The copper belts are of great magnitude and value, and a mine can be put on a dividend paying basis there with less expenditure of money than in any other copper district in this country.

Further, the Arizona Copper belts contain in many cases considerable amounts of gold and silver; for instance, the Boston "Herald" of May 10th gives the cost of producing copper to the Calumet & Hecla Co. as about 7 cents, while the price of the United Verde product is placed at 1¼ cents per pound by reason of the precious metal vaues in the ore, as well as through the ore being found so near the surface. The Calumet & Hecla workings extend to a depth of over 2,200 feet, while the deepest shaft in the United Verde is only 550 feet.

The increased production MUST come from Southern mines. The present is Arizona's opportunity, and the Val Verde Copper Co., Ltd., proposes to take the fullest advantage of it.

Through the Grand Canon district, and underlying all the famous mines of that district from the rim of the Grand Canon to below the United Verde runs the great United Verde copper belt. This belt shows an outcrop in the Grand Canon itself 1,800 feet below the rim, manifesting the permanence of the deposits. Fifteen miles south of the Grand Canon, and almost due north of Williams, lie the properties of the Val Verde Company, covering in all a length upon this great copper belt of almost three miles. The company holds here in all 21 properties, comprising seven producing mines and fourteen contiguous claims, showing color and outcrop; a total of 420 acres of mineralized land. The seven producing mines have been operated for the past three years, and a large amount of exploitation work has been done, disclosing vast bodies of ore, not only rich in copper itself, but carrying as high as 15 per cent iron, and large amounts of other natural fluxes. The ore is soft in character and very easily extracted, and from its large percentage of fluxes, is very economically handled in the smelter. The cost of production is thus extremely low, while the percentages of copper in the ore are equally high, in some cases running as rich as 80 per cent. Mr. John L. Davis, formerly our consulting engineer, now our superintendent at the mines, endorsed by the Hon. Henry F. Ashurst, Speaker of the Arizona House of Representatives, as an honorable and reliable expert of fifteen years' experience, examined these mines before the Val Verde Copper Co. purchased them. He reported that "the richest deposits thus far discovered in this belt are in the Copper Queen and Halliday claims, where it is not unusual to expose masses of this ore, which will assay as high as 79 and 80 per cent," and, further, that "the permanence of these deposits is assured."

Mr. Davis' statements as to the character of these ores were fully confirmed by an examination made by J. B. Girand, M. E., U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor, of Williams, Ariz., on March 13, 1899, after the purchase of the properties by the Val Verde Company. Mr. Girand's report states that many tons of ore running from 30 to 50 per cent have been taken out on the main shaft of the Copper Queen; that on the Halliday the returns from the various assays made run from 10 per cent to as high as 73 per cent; that the indications for a large and far-reaching body of ore are very favorable, and that "for each thousand tons of ore milled and treated a net profit of $21,600.00 should be realized."

These ores have been assayed by the Guggenheim (Philadelphia) Smelting & Refining Co., and by both Hetherington and Barnharts of Prescott, Ariz., and the average result from twenty different assays returned is from 10.78 per cent to 30 per cent of copper. The milling tests of carloads showed 21 per cent of copper.

Samples of the ore from three of the mines in sealed registered package, under affidavit from the Superintendent, were delivered to Dr. Pierre de P. Ricketts, Professor of Analytical Chemistry and Assaying of the Columbia University School of Mines of New York, and, as is well known, one of the greatest authorities on mining in the United States, and head of the firm of Ricketts & Banks, 104 John st., New York, whose report is as follows:

Sample No. 16,755..........17.12% copper
Sample No. 16,756..........21.31% copper
Sample No. 16,757..........35.44% copper

thus verifying the richness of the company's ores.

The originals of the above assays of the smelter returns and engineers' reports are on file at the offices of the Company, and at all times open to the inspection of investors, as also maps and specimens of the ore. The latter include the big nugget taken out of Copper Queen No. 2 about two months ago. This nugget, the largest lump of copper ore ever taken out of any mine in the Grand Canon district, weighs more than 300 pounds, and is 50 per cent pure copper.

All the tests of this Company's ores make 17½ per cent copper an extremely conservative estimate of the average value of the ores. The economy of production and reduction makes a net profit of $12.00 per ton on a basis of 12-cent copper; another extremely conservative estimate. (It will be noted above that Mr. Girand's estimate is $21.60 net profit per ton.) $12 per ton will pay 24 per cent dividends on the entire capital stock; 18-cent copper will double them. All our estimates and claims for this property have been made on an absolutely safe basis, and with a wide margin for all contingencies; nothing whatever in our reckoning is or has been taken for granted. Probable production cannot be demonstrated any more in the case of the Val Verde mines than it could have been in the Calumet & Hecla or United Verde when they were first opened; work alone can demonstrate that; but every indication points to this as the richest portion of the whole copper belt from the United Verde to the Grand Canon, not only rich in high grade ore, but with every assurance of a depth and permanence not surpassed by any copper producing section of the country.

The work thus far done has simply confirmed the judgment of the vendor and his associates in this company. It has demonstrated the fact that these mines contain good ore and vast amounts of it, and that it is going to pay to develop it on the scale that has now been undertaken. The ore bodies continue to improve in appearance as work progresses, and we are thoroughly assured that Mr. Girand's predictions as to a large and far-reaching body of ore in these mines will be fulfilled. The ore gets better with depth, and shows indications that gold and silver will prevail to the same extent as in the United Verde. So firmly convinced has our manager at the mines become that this is going to be one of the greatest paying mines in the country that he has persistently urged extension of development, and the directors have finally adopted his suggestions and decided to extend the work into the adjoining claims, seven of which are to be opened up immediately and the mines patented. The general trend of the ore bodies justifies the belief that these adjoining claims will prove fully as rich as the mines now being operated, and the expense of working them in connection with the present mines will be far less in proportion. Additional smelter capacity will be provided and sufficient men put on to push the work of exploration and development vigorously. It is believed that this course will at least double the dividends estimated in our original calculations, and in all probability far more than double them.

The prospective value of the Val Verde properties is probably as fully appreciated by copper men as by anybody among the investing public, and when the leading officers and others connected with the two largest copper mining companies in this country place their subscriptions with us to the extent of 500 and 1,000 shares at a time, it is pretty conclusive evidence of their value. They are men who know the country and its surroundings, and they invest, like all others, simply to make money out of the copper in the mines, and not merely for the pleasure of owning a certificate of stock. Neither they nor we are in the slightest degree interested in the speculative side of copper; both are interested in copper solely as a business, in the substance itself, and not in its shadows as represented by names and stock certificates.

Flurries in "the street" affect neither them nor us. The company is provided with ample capital to carry out its original propositions, and to continue the development of the properties as originally contemplated. It has no debts, no liabilities, owns its properties and believes in them, and it fully believes that every subscriber to its stock is going to be well satisfied with the result of his investment and will be richly repaid. It is confident that all its subscribers will receive as great returns as the original subscribers to the great copper companies of today. They have followed the principle that made those investors rich, have put their money into what they have reason to believe is a good, solid, substantial property, and they will reap the same reward—great dividends, and great advances in the value of their stock.

The low capitalization of the Val Verde Company is an advantage to investors. Its share capital of $600,000.00 is an extremely low figure as compared with other companies possessing far less ore bodies. It might as easily have been organized with a capital anywhere from one to two and one-half millions; but on that basis, the owner of a thousand shares would have received in one case $720.00 in dividends, and in the other case but $288.00, while under its present actual capitalization, he will receive $1,200.00 per annum.

The big coppers of the present cost too much to MAKE MONEY on them. The LARGE returns from them have been reaped by the first investors, and are not open to those who buy them now. The only chance for investors in copper companies to secure a good investment and large speculative opportunities at the same time, is to go into good but not fully developed properties whose stock is selling at low figures, the same as the present big ones did a few years ago.

It is just this opportunity that the Val Verde Company offers today. Its possibilities are as great as were originally those of any company included in the Amalgamated. The development of the United Verde copper belt is yet in its infancy, but it is the opinion of experts that this section offers a better opening for profitable investments than any other in the world. The results thus far from the Val Verde's properties not only justify, but make a duty, the proposed extension of operations into the adjoining claims as above stated.

For the purposes of this extension, and of increasing the smelter capacity as required, a limited issue of the stock reserved to provide working capital is now offered at par.

$5.00 Per Share.

This figure is not, however, guaranteed for any specific number of shares, as the properties are constantly becoming more valuable, and the directors therefore expressly reserve the right to advance the price to $7.50 or more without notice.

Subscription blanks and latest prospectus mailed on request, or may be obtained at our offices, as below. Every facility will be afforded intending investors desiring to inspect the mines for themselves.

Application will be made to have this stock listed on the Boston Stock Exchange. It is now dealt in on the New York Curb at par.

Checks made payable to the order of VAL VERDE COPPER CO., LTD., should accompany applications.

NEW RULES FOR COUNCIL.

CHANGES SUGGESTED WHICH WOULD REVOLUTIONIZE THAT BODY.

If Adopted Ald. Herrman Would Possess Practically the Power of a Dictator — Appointment of Standing Committees on Compensation and Intramural Transportation Recommended—Proposal to Tear Up Certain Car Tracks.

Two important committees will be added to the standing committees of the City Council if that body adopts the report of the Committee on Rules, recommended by it yesterday for passage. More important still, this same report would clothe the Committee on Rules with powers similar to those of the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives, and, as far as Council legislation is concerned, make the chairman of that committee, at present Alderman Herrman, the absolute dictator as to what shall and what shall not come before the Council. This last provision is sure to meet with sharp opposition, and it is likely to defeat the whole project.

The new rule provides that the Committee on Rules shall make up an order of business for each Council meeting. This would give it power to bring any ordinance it favored up for immediate passage inside of the charter limitations, and it could bury any ordinance or measure it did not approve of.

The two new committees proposed are those on "compensation" and "intramural transportation." It is provided that all ordinances granting privileges to any person or corporation shall be referred to the Committee on Compensation, and all matters relating to street railways shall go to that on Intramural Transportation. It is also made the duty of the Committee on Compensation, in cases where application is made for special privileges, to advertise for bids for the privileges asked for and recommend granting it to the person or corporation making the most advantageous offer to the city. Members of these committees are to be appointed by the Mayor.

Rule to Expose Lobbyists.

There are also some minor changes suggested to the existing rules, one of which is that any Alderman who is talked to by any person in the Council meeting seeking his support for any measure shall arise in his seat and report to the presiding officer that a lobbyist is laboring with him.

It is also provided that no ordinance requiring the expenditure of money or the making of any improvement to be paid for by special assessment shall come up for final action until two weeks after the time of its publication.

In speaking of the clause giving extraordinary power to the Committee on Rules, Mayor Harrison last evening, before departing for his tour of Indiana, said:

"I heard something about this proposed rule some time ago, but have not paid much attention to it. It might do for a more dignified body than the Council, but I am afraid if it were attempted to tie the Council down to a stated order of business named by a committee it would result in small riots at every Council meeting, and end in continual motions to set aside the rules so that this or that measure could be considered."

To Remove Unused Tracks.

The Committee on Judiciary reported favorably the ordinance requiring the Commissioner of Public Works to remove all street railroad tracks which are not used oftener than once an hour, on petition of a majority of the frontage owners. It also reported favorably Alderman Fowler's ordinance, which provides for a seat for every admission ticket sold to a ball game and a protection from sun and rain for every seat. Exceptions are made in the case of games played by college or other students.

W. K. Ackerman yesterday took the place of E. A. Halsey as Deputy Controller.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Browning decided yesterday the dog pound could be turned over to the care of the Humane society by naming President Shortall as poundmaster, and this will be done.

STRAWBERRIES IN OVERSUPPLY.

More Come In than the Trade Can Take Care Of.

Nearly 60 car loads of strawberries came on the market yesterday and for a time swamped it. Owing to the storm early in the day unloading facilities were greatly restricted and it was not until well along in the afternoon that the last of the assignments were on sale. Extreme Southern States, such as Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas, did practically nothing in the way of contributions, but Kentucky and southern Illinois made up the deficiency. Prices were a full 25c lower than the day before. Spring vegetables, except in the fancy list, were more or less neglected, berries attracting about all the attention.

WITHOUT DELAY.

Before you loan on your furniture without removal, publicity, or delay, stop and think why it is I make more loans than any three in the business. In twenty years I have done business with 71,000 people, not from advertisements; simply treating every honest man as a brother. I have retained their business and by their recommend have got their friends also. Agents, trusts, and men that will promise you anything only what they will do you will avoid, and papers free if you present this ad. to me; deception never used; fair play to all is the motto of S. RICHARDSON, 142 La Salle-st., Room 2 Otis Block, s. w. cor. Madison.

Two rare curtain bargains.

They come from the more-than-willingness of a pretty big curtain manufacturer to make them for us at what we think a dead loss to him. But that is of no concern to us or to you. The curtains are the sort every one wants—& the prices have never before happened.

1,000 pairs handsome ruffled curtains—fancy lace stripe scrim of best laundering & best wearing quality—full size & well worth $1.50 here or anywhere—a really extraordinary opportunity to purchase cottage, bedroom & sitting room curtains at less than cost. The price is, per pair— 58c

25c for new patented extension curtain rods—½-in. diameter, with extension from 30 to 54 in.—polished brass & silver ends, complete with brackets.

As to How Many Miles of Ribbon

there is used in that great widow display over 1,100 guesses were made yesterday afternoon. About 600 of these guesses were within five miles of correct. The other 500 varied in their estimates from two miles to 27,000 miles. The lady who made the latter guess would have had 2,000 miles of ribbon left after girding the earth. The fact is the window contains 23½ miles, or 41,340 yards, but owing to the fact that late in the afternoon every one was guessing 25 miles, we have decided to abandon the guessing, and will commence this morniug and give a souvenir with every pnrchase to the amount of $1.00 or over as long as the souvenirs last.
